AKRON BREAKS TO PIECES IN STORM AT SEA; 73 DEAD

Today

Prayer for Roosevelt.
Germany's Boycott.
Money From Gambling.
The Dead Man's Hand.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., April 4.

Protestant and Jewish clergymen spoke. The gathering of different faiths was brought about by a decree of Pope Pius XI, declaring this a holy year.

FORMER GOV. ALFRED E. SMITH asked the nation to implore special divine guidance for President Roosevelt, and to pray for "an uprooting of bigotry and oppression."

The Rev. S. Parkes Cadman interpreted the gathering as American recognition of President Roosevelt's call for a better national life, as well as of the exhortation of the Pope.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT was represented by Postmaster General Farley. Former Gov. Smith in his address predicted:

"The position of the Pope in respect to universal peace must eventually be assumed by all nations and by all peoples as the fundamental principles of right thinking."

Many believe that deeper religious conviction will help end the depression.

THE GOVERNMENT, now going ahead with its plan to employ 250,000 idle in the forests, will establish one thousand or more forest camps, each to accommodate from one to two hundred workers, by July 1. Each state will send its quota of workers to these camps.

The establishment of the camps, let us hope, will be done more economically than such work was done by dollar-a-year patriots of the big war. This is a war, but not one for dollar-a-year patriotic squandering.

THE WISER men in Germany are endeavoring to moderate the anti-Jewish boycott. Even the lower stratum in race and religious hatred shows less violence. Boycotting placards attached to Jewish shops no longer use the words "beware of the Jew" or "danger—Jew store," and black and yellow quarantine signs are no longer attached to Jewish premises.

Germans of Jewish blood could teach race hatred a useful lesson, if it were possible for all to leave Germany with their property and their important enterprises simultaneously. But that is out of the question.

It is probable that many of the younger Jews, with important industrial, commercial and scientific work ahead of them, will leave Germany. They will be missed.

The alleged seizure of Prof. Einstein's $7,000 bank account is not worthy of Germany's traditions.

FLORIDA NOTES the fact that three horse racing and seven dog racing associations have paid to the state this year $710,000 in commissions on betting. That is gratifying.

But to get the $710,000, men and women in Florida had to bet at least $23,000,000, practically all of which went to the gambling promoters and the betting operations. Race track bettors do not leave with profits. They stop when they must, because their money is gone. That is not so gratifying.

FLORIDA MAY find comfort in the fact that the greater part of the $23,000,000 was supplied by visitors from other states. On the other hand, citizens of Florida certainly contributed at least four times the amount that Florida got for its commission.

Therefore, the state of Florida itself is actually out a couple of millions, carried away by the dogs and horses.

THEN AGAIN you are told that without this race track money, divided among the counties of Florida, public schools in one county might have been compelled to close for lack of funds. Some Florida boy, thanks to education paid for by gambling money, may develop genius that will discourage or prevent gambling.

That will take a long time, for gambling is the vice of those that lack ambition or real ability. Gambling takes the place of genuine effort and will last a long time.

A PHOTOGRAPH from the Japanese-Chinese war region shows a Japanese soldier bearing on his back a dead comrade, carrying him to the rear. The Japanese general Tadashi Kiwahara stops the living man, with his burden, and shakes hands with the dead soldier, congratulating him on having died for his country.

You probably would not see that outside of Asia. It emphasizes the patriotism of the Japanese.

But it does not bring the dead man back to life or take care of his wife and children.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will send Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, to Denmark as "envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary."

Mrs. Owen will do the work of the State Department ably and conscientiously, represent the United States with dignity, look after Americans traveling in Denmark as well as she can, and make no display of snobbishness.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT utilizes the credit of the government to reduce interest rates on farm mortages "from six and seven per cent to a maximum of four and one-half per cent."

In this state of Florida, the legal and usual rate is eight per cent. The same is true of other

ASSURE BEER FLOW HERE FRIDAY

Inaction of Assembly, Herron's Hands-Off Stand Clears Way

The way was cleared today for unrestricted flow of 3.2 beer at Thursday midnight.

The Legislature, by inaction, gave more convincing proof that it wouldn't stop it. Mayor John S. Herron said he wouldn't.

Problems of distribution were clarified by a statement from Attorney General William A. Schnader.

All of which made apparent that nothing remains to be done but turn on the big spigot at the midnight hour set by Congress.

BEER SUPPLY

Thousands of cases of brew are stacked up in Pittsburgh breweries ready for distribution at 12:01 Friday morning.

The Attorney General said the breweries may hire all the trucks they wish; truckers who have certificates from the Public Service Commission or Alcohol Permit Board, may haul all the beer they wish, and persons buying direct from the breweries may transport all they want in their own conveyances.

Schnader summarized the regulations as follows:

"A brewer or a permit holding wholesaler, or a purchaser may transport beer in his own conveyance.

MICHIGAN WETS SWEEP POLLS

DETROIT, April 4.—(AP.)—Michigan next Monday will cast the first formal state vote in favor of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

At least 86 out of a possible 100 votes will be cast for repeal.

This became certain today as additional returns from Monday's referendum showed the tremendous strength of the anti-prohibition forces. The total votes in 2,488 of the state's 3,417 precincts gave:

Against, 194,504.

Up until 10:30 a. m. today only one delegate pledged to vote for retention of the national prohibition law appeared to have been definitely named. This was in Barry County, which voted dry in the referendum on elimination of

Everest Plane Crashes Daring New Heights

CALCUTTA, April 4.—(AP.)—One of the two airplanes which yesterday flew above Mt. Everest, crashed today in a flight over Kanchanjunga, a nearby peak nearly as high as Everest.

It was believed that the pilot was P. F. M. Fellowes, technical adviser to the expedition. R. C. W. Ellison was believed to be flying with him in the second plane.

The Marquess of Clydesdale, head of the expedition, who piloted one of the planes across Everest yesterday, started from Bihar as soon as he had word of the accident.

He was in a light Moth plane from which he hoped to locate the fallen ship and drop food to the crew.

Details could not be learned immediately, but it was reported that a fuel shortage necessitated a forced landing at Jalalgarh, 16 miles from Purneah, the expedition's base.

Crew Stuck to Posts as Airship Crashed, Akron Survivor Says

New Boycott Abandoned By Nazis

BERLIN, April 4.—(INS.)—The anti-Jewish boycott which gripped Germany on Saturday will not be resumed tomorrow, it was officially announced this afternoon by the Cabinet of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, made known at the time that the boycott would not be resumed if assurances were received that the "anti-German propaganda campaign" in foreign countries had ended.

It was announced by the government-controlled press that the Nazis have succeeded in obtaining representation in the most important national industrial organizations. The party is now planning to establish a "National Protestant Church" with the purpose of removing state churches.

The Telegraphen Union in a dispatch from Breslau said a Jewish merchant named Alfred Gasmann and his wife, son and maid narrowly escaped lynching after Gasmann opened fire on policemen searching his home.

Naval Officer Gives Vivid Account of Battle in Storm

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Lieut. Commander Herbert V. Wiley, only officer known to have survived the Akron crash, reported to the Navy today that a few minutes after midnight the ship had suddenly shifted violently, descended and was "demolished on impact" in the water off the New Jersey shore.

His cryptic report said:

"In lightning flash saw many men swimming.

"Sighted thunder storm about 30 miles south of Philadelphia about two zero four five (8:45 p. m.), and proceeded on east and northeast course. Light night, mostly to south. Ground obscured by fog. Ship in good static condition. Approximately 5,000 pounds. Heat heavy. In vicinity of Jersey shore at 10 o'clock.

"Surrounded by lightning at Light (presumably Barnegat Light). Night atmosphere not very turbulent. Ran east course until about 23:00 (11 p. m.). Then crossed to west at 24:00 (midnight). Sighted Light on ground and changed course to 130 degrees. Ship began to descend rapidly from flying alti-

NEW YORK, April 4.—(Universal.)—Rudy Vallee and his wife, Fay Webb, have "temporarily separated," it was revealed last night by Hyman Bushel, attorney for the band leader.

Pittsburgh Native One Of Dead

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—A message to the Third Naval District headquarters today said that the body of Lieut. Commander Harold E. MacLellan, of Westerly, R. I., an officer aboard the dirigible Akron, was picked up by Coast Guard Boat 75, about 10 miles from the spot where the airship crashed.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 4.—(AP.)—Lieut. Commander Harold E. MacLellan, 37, chief navigator of the Akron, had his home here. He spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Alexander C. MacLellan, and his sister, Ethel, and as he departed Sunday he told them he expected to be over Westerly this morning if the weather was good.

MacLellan was born in Pittsburgh, August 15, 1895, but through long residence here he regarded himself as a Westerly boy.

Max G. Leslie Ill, Condition Critical

Former State Senator Max G. Leslie, long one of the powerful political leaders in Pittsburgh, lies critically ill in his home in Fisk street, Lawrenceville. Leslie will be 69 Thursday.

The ex-Senator's health has not been good for several years and his condition became serious almost a year ago.

Walker and Actress May Wed Next Week

CANNES, France, April 4.—(AP.)—Former Mayor James J. Walker of New York and Betty Compton, the actress, have arranged to be married quietly next week after the expiration of the nine-day period required by law, following the filing of a notice at the City Hall yesterday.

RESCUE BLIMP DOWN IN SEA

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., April 4.—(AP.)—The naval non-rigid dirigible J-3, of the naval air station at Lakehurts, crashed into the sea about 1,000 yards off shore at 1:45 p. m. today. The fate of its crew was not immediately determined. Two members of the crew, believed to have been still alive, were taken from the water by rescue workers in surf boats and in a waiting ambulance were rushed to Paul Kimball Hospital in Lakewood, 20 miles away.

ELEVEN ABOARD

Commander Simon R. Sands, commandant of the Fifth Coast Guard district at Asbury Park, said 11 men were on board.

He said he had received word the crash of the ship was 400 yards off shore and directly opposite the Bond Coast Guard station.

Three seaplanes were standing by and Coast Guard prepared at once to deflate the bag, Sands said.

To the 500 or more persons on the beach who were watching the search for the Akron wreckage, it seeme dimpossible, one said, that HOLLYWOOD, April 4.—(AP.)—The elopement and marriage at Las Vegas, Nev., last Friday of Alice Joyce, motion picture actress, and Clarence Brown, screen director, was made known to their friends yesterday as the couple returned to Hollywood.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park sent word to his office today that he was in bed with a cold and would "take things easy for three or four days" on order of his physician. Park left his office feeling fatigued yesterday.

ONLY THREE SURVIVORS IN GREATEST AIR DISASTER

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—The largest airship ever flown, the U. S. S. Akron, was demolished in the sea at 12:33 a. m. today, with the probable loss of 73 lives.

The members of the crew stuck valiantly to their posts, with perfect discipline, through a violent electrical storm that the great ship could not ride.

Four men were rescued. One of these died. The body of another was found later in the day.

Still missing this afternoon were Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Aeronautical Bureau, and 70 others.

The Akron sighted the storm that doomed it at 8:45 o'clock last night 30 miles south of Philadelphia. It proceeded on an east and northeast course through a light night and over a fog that obscured the ground.

Lieut. Commander H. V. Wiley, rescued second in command, reported that the ship was at that time in good static condition.

He said the sea was heavy. At 10 p. m. the Akron reached the Jersey short and at Barnegat Light was surrounded by lightning. It ran an easterly course until 11 p. m., and then turned to the west until midnight.

SHIP ENVELOPED BY LIGHTNING

Sighting a light on the ground, the officers changed the course to 130 degrees. The ship began to descend rapidly from its flying altitude of 1,600 feet as lightning enveloped it. Ballast was dropped to regain altitude.

Continuing Commander Wiley's report:

"Three minutes later seemed to be in center of storm. Ship began to shift about violently. Called all hands. Ship commenced to descend. Stern inclined downward

"Dropped ballast. Rudder control carried away. Descent continued to water. Ship demolished upon impact."

His report was sent to the Navy Department by wireless from the Coast Guard cutter Tucker, which carried himself and the other two survivors to Brooklyn Navy Yard.

At Akron, O., where the Akron was constructed by the Goodyear Company, officials predicted the accident would affect the future of "lighter-than-air craft.

A sister-ship, the Macon, was recently completed and is about to undergo tests. Admiral Moffet christened the Macon a few weeks ago.

WORST OF FLYING WEATHER

The tragedy occurred in the worst of flying weather. Besides the peril of the electric disturbances, visibility was exceptionally poor and the flying ceiling was close to sea level.

Communication concerning rescue efforts was hindered by continuing static. Third Naval District headquarters in New York reported that all wireless receivers there "went dead" about the time of the crash and remained out of commission for a considerable period.

At Lakehurst, N. J., home port of the Akron, at Washington, and in other scattered regions the relatives and friends of the missing airmen hoped against waning hope that some word of further rescues would come from the stormy sea. Typical of the attitude of wives and mothers and children of the Akron's crew was that of Mrs. Moffet. Hours after the crash she said:

At Washington President Roosevelt sent his newly-appointed Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Latrobe Roosevelt to New Jersey to take charge of the co-ordinated rescue efforts.

Representative McClintic recalled in Washington that the Akron was 24,000 pounds over the weight called for in the original specifications but that Admiral Moffett had written an article saying this would not affect the ship's general airworthiness.

In connection with the crash it was learned today that no word was heard from the Akron at 11:30 last night, when she was due to make a regular four-hour report. At the time this caused no anxiety as it was believed merely that static had prevented reception of the report.

Weather observers on the Jersey coast said the storm came suddenly but that it had not been unexpected, unsettled conditions for the region having been predicted.

Although families of the missing men refused to give up hope there was a great tendency in official circles to acknowledge that little hope remained.

Wiley, Richard Deal, M. E. Erwin and Robert W. Copeland were picked up by the German tanker Phoebus which was attracted to the scene by what it thought to be flares. Copeland died shortly after being taken aboard. Deal was taken to a hospital as soon as the Tucker arrived at Broklyn. His injuries were slight.

The men were transferred to the Tucker early in the day so that the Phoebus might stand by and search for wreckage or effect further rescues.

Static hampered the exchange of wireless messages during the storm, and only the Coast Guard station at Asbury Park, N. J., heard the S. O. S. of the Akron. Third Naval District headquarters in New York reported its receivers "went dead."

Airplane and ship rescue efforts were hampered throughout the day by poor visibility and a flying ceiling that was close to the sea level.

The number believed to have been drowned makes the disaster the worst in the history of lighter-than-air flight.

Three Survivors, Body Of One Arrive in New York

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—The three survivors of the Akron disaster arrived at the Brooklyn Navy Yard early this afternoon, one having to be removed to the Navy Hospital on a stretcher. The others walked ashore from the Coast Guard destroyer Tucker.

Lieut. Commander Herbert V. Wiley and M. E. Erwin, an enlisted man, walked from the Tucker and climbed to the front seat of one of the three ambulances which waited arrival of the Tucker.

Richard Deal, another enlisted man and the third survivor, was carried ashore on a stretcher and placed in an ambulance. Face scratches were the only visible injuries and Dr. T. J. Smith, of the Navy, who made a preliminary examination on the Tucker, said Deal was apparently not "in bad shape."

REFUSE TO TALK

All three survivors declined to make any statement before completing their official reports. After they left the Tucker the body of Robert Copeland, enlisted man, was brought ashore.

Commander J. Whitbeck, of the Tucker, at first refused to say anything, but later expressed the oponion that "there is no doubt the Akron has sunk."

Commander Whitbeck said the Tucker arrived on the scene at daylight, took the survivors and Copeland's body from a rescue ship, and started back as soon as convinced that further search would be fruitless. He said the sea was very rough at the time and while numerous pieces of wreckage were seen no bodies were found in the water. He said:

"These are probably the only survivors."

CLOTHING SHRUNKEN

Commander Wiley arrived wearing his own uniform jacket, shrunken so it barely covered him, and trousers and shoes he had borrowed from a coast guardsman. He said:

I'l can't talk."

Then he climbed up to the front seat of one of the ambulances. Someone asked:

"How do you feel!"

"Oh, I'm all right."

Erwin walked from the Tucker wrapped in blankets and only shook his head in response to all questions.

Commander Whitbeck said that all his crew had been ordered to maintain strict silence concerning all they had seen until a full official report should be made.

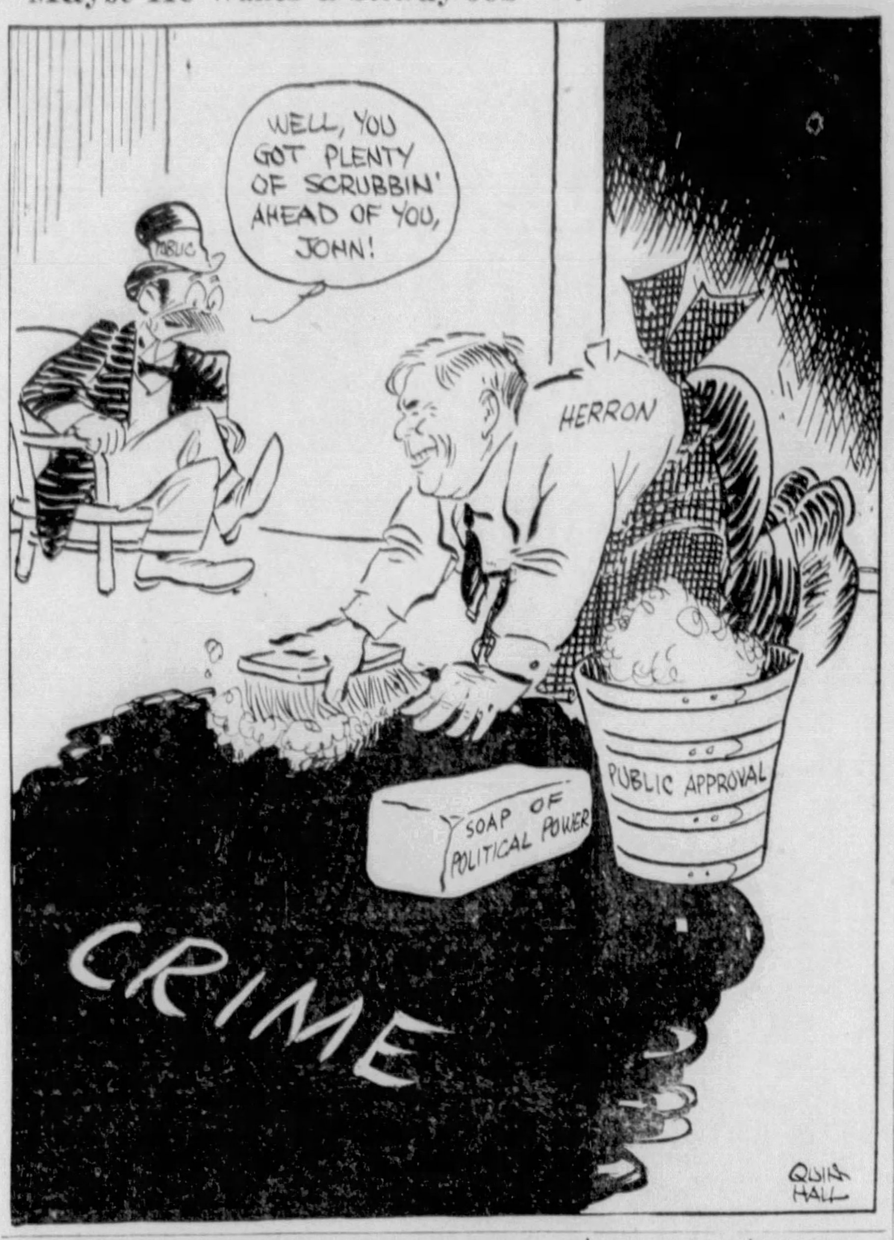
Maybe He Wants a Steady Job -:- By QUIN HALL



Moffett, Navy Air Chief Among Akron's Missing

Admiral Fought for Dirigibles Despite Many Tragedies

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Adding to the gloom at the Navy Department, tense with anxiety today over the Akron disaster, was the knowledge that Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics and one of the service's best loved officers, was among the missing.

Moffett, the only chief the Bureau of Aeronautics ever had, left the Navy Department at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon to drive to Lakehurst for the Akron's flight.

Had it not been for him, it is possible the Akron and her successor, the Macon, would not have been built.

The Shenandoah disaster, in 1925, caused much criticism of lighter-than-air craft. But the tragedy did not discourage Moffett, nor did the other tragedies that have attended development of airships. He believed that experience would overcome the mistakes and that the dirigible type had an unparalleled value for scouting.

During the Spanish-American War, Admiral Moffett, then an ensign, served with Admiral Dewey at the battle of Manila Bay.

He was appointed chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics by President Harding in 1921 and later reappointed by Presidents Coolidge and Hoover.

Talbot Relief Bill Advanced in Senate

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(INS.)—The State Senate lost no time today in placing the Talbot $20,000,000 relief bill on the final passage calendar for Wednesday.

The bill passed second reading today without dissent. It sets aside $5,000,000 for relief during the first five months of the coming biennium, and $15,000,000 for the remainder of the two-year period. The money would be distributed by county poor boards.

Wife Keeps Courage, Lives Up to Navy Traditions

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—A message of steadfast courage was given today by Mrs. William A. Moffett, wife of the rear admiral missing in the Akron disaster. She said:

"I shall not believe otherwise until I have definite word from the Navy that he is really lost.

"The admiral had a way of coming out of things safely and I expect to get word from him.

"That is my message to the press, and that is my message to all the wives, who, like me, are waiting word from their husbands."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt cancelled all engagements to visit with Mrs. Moffett, as the Admiral's wife awaited the arrival of her son, Lieut. George H. Moffett, and her daughter, Mrs. Elliott MacFarland Moore, en route by plane from Coronado, Cal.

'BLOW TO NAVY,' SAYS SWANSON

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—"One of the greatest peace-time blows the Navy has ever experienced."

Thus did Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson characterize the U. S. S. Akron dirigible disaster in a special message to the American public, which he gave over a coast-to-coast radio hookup at noon totday. Swanson said:

"At this time it is futile to speculate as to the cause of the disaster. A careful investigation will later determine all the facts that are available.

"It is still too early to venture to outline the department's future policy in reference to airships, a development which the Navy has been carrying on for a number of years, and one with which the name of Rear Admiral Moffett has been immediately associated.

"Once more the Navy has paid the toll in life and to those who have been left behind to bear the grief the Secretary of the Navy sends his deepest sympathy."

ST. NAZAIRE, France, April 4.—(AP.)—The French dirigible E-9, a small ship, was badly damaged today in a forced landing at St. Andre des Eaux, near here. One officer was slightly hurt.

AKRON TRAGEDY SPURS WAR ON DIRIGIBLES

Demands for Sweeping Probe Made by Congressmen

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Demands for an investigation of the Akron tragedy poured quickly today from senators and representatives, even as the Navy itself moved to initiate one.

The accident also aroused slumbering opposition to the expenditure of money for lighter-than-air vessels.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, Democrat, of the Naval Committee, asserted that a "prompt, thorough and direct investigation should be undertaken without delay." He said:

"The tragedy that has overtaken the Akron is appalling. I thought the large number of aircraft catastrophes in the Army and Navy had led to the exercise of such care and caution that an accident of this proportion was almost impossible."

SCORES DIRIGIBLES

Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, a former member of the Naval Committee, who had consistently opposed appropriations for lighter-than-air craft, called the mishap another "illustration of the awful waste of money of building great gas bags that serve only as sky shows in peace time and are worthless in war." He contended:

"One little airplane would put them out of use in a minute. We have wasted more money on them than anything we have done in the Navy.

"I don't see what use they would be in war and they risk the lives of good men. It is a crime to put the boys in those things, and we in Congress are to blame for letting the Navy talk us into it."

NO MORE SHIPS

Chairman Vinson, of the House Naval Committee, telling of plans to question the three Akron survivors in the investigation to be held, said:

"You can add this—there won't be any more big airships built. We have built three and lost two."

Data on hand for his committee showed the United States has spent more than $20,000,000 on airships.

Representative McClintic (Dem.), Oklahoma, sponsor of the investigation made by the Naval Committee last Congress, said he always had felt the airship might have been irreparably damaged by its accident at Lakehurst.

McClintic recalled that the Akron was 20,000 pounds above specified contract weight and because of that weight had not been able to carry enough fuel for a safe cross-continent trip. He said:

"This is a terrible catastrophe. But I hope it will cause those building the Macon and those who operate it to be more careful."

The honor roll of Westinghouse High School at the last report period included 200 students. Forty-five of those honored are members of the department of public safety of the school.

MANY FEARED DEAD

Hundreds of persons had been watching the maneuvers of the ships for more than two hours. Spectators said the waves were high and the easterly winds becoming stronger, as the ship suddenly crashed into the ocean with a terrific impact.

The gondola sank into the waves, with the wreckage of the non-rigid bag closing in upon it.

Surf boats immediately were put out and the two unidentified men hauled from the water. Other bodies or survivors were not seen immediately.

Many of them will get good security in place of mortgages that could not have been collected.

DR. HERMANN VON SCHRENK, of St. Louis, consulting timber engineer, says the oldest living thing is a cypress tree in Mexico near Oaxaca City, called the tree of tule. The tree is 140 feet high and 117 feet in circumference forty inches above the ground, according to the expert. It is 4,000 years old. California's giant trees may be older.

The naturalist Burroughs once said they "had bark a foot thick when Christ was born."

It is hard to say which living thing on earth is oldest. According to some scientists there are probably, in very deep parts of the ocean, creatures that have lived for tens of thousands of years.

Man, with this little three score and ten from teething to tombstone, has a short lease. But it is how much you think, how much you do, not how many years you live that matters.

NINE TRI-STATE MEN IN AKRON DISASTER

Commander Rodgers, From Mt. Lebanon, Saved by Transfer

Two officers and seven enlisted men from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia were members of the crew of the dirigible Akron when it crashed into the sea early today off the New Jersey coast.

Also listed as aboard was Lieut. Wilfred Bushnell, who in 1929, with Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, won the national balloon race which started from the Pitt Stadium. They constituted the Navy No. 1 team.

Fridolf R. Magnuson, 29, of Kane, Pa., aboard the Akron as a machinist, had been ordered to report to the new airship Macon, but the order was changed. Magnuson was a high school football star at Kane in 1921.

A former Pittsburgher, Lieut. Commander Bertram J. Rodgers, was one-time aide to the former commander of the ship, Charles E. Rosendahl. Rodgers, whose mother, Mrs. Clara E. Rodgers, resides at 310 Orchard avenue, Knoxville, was assigned March 1 to superintending the final tests of the Akron's sister ship, Macon, now being completed at Akron. O. Rodgers visited his mother during the week-end.

Chief Machinist G. C. Walsh, 349 Huran avenue, Renova, Pa.

Ralph F. Engler, Manheim, Pa.

'Saw Men Die,' Captain Of Rescue Ship Says

By CAPT. DALLDORF

Master of German Tanker Phoebus.

(Copyrighted by the Associated Press.)

S. S. PHOEBUS AT SEA, 20 MILES OFF BARNEGAT LIGHT, April 4.—About 12:30 o'clock this morning, during a thunderstorm and heavy rains, I saw aircraft lights flashing as my ship ploughed its way toward Tampico from New York.

Shortly afterward I saw lights flashing on the water.

I changed my course to approach the lights and soon heard men hailing from the water.

I stopped the ship, turned on all lights, lowered boats and put lifeboats over the side.

I saw mattresses and wreckage, and pulled one mat over the side of the boat. We got three men. I saw some men sink before we could get them.

DALLDORF'S STORY

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The story of a five-hour search in lifeboats for survivors of the Akron was told in the terse language of the sea by Capt. Dalldorf, master of the Phoebus, in a message to the vessel's owners intercepted by the Navy Department.

It was to the Standard Shipping Company, of New York.

Dalldorf said two lifeboats searched the waves from 1 o'clock this morning until 6 without results.

Four men were rescued, among them the unconscious William Copeland, who was unconscious four hours and then died.

RESCUE MESSAGE

Dalldorf's message said:

"Rescued four men Moody Erwin, Richard Deal, Lieut. Com. Wiley, William Copeland, the last unconscious four hours.

"Treatment failed, gave rescued men and body to destroyer Tucker. Two lifeboats searched from 1 a. m. to 6 a. m., without results.

Gave destroyers position approximately of place of accident.

Roosevelt Expresses Grief Over Disaster

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Mourning the Akron's sad fate as a "national disaster," President Roosevelt expressed the grief of all Americans today in a statement which said:

"Ships can be replaced, but the nation can ill afford to lose such men as Rear Admiral William A. Moffett and his shipmates who died with him upholding to the end the finest traditions of the United States Navy."

At the time, the Navy lacked any word from the rescue ships off the Jersey coast on which to base a hope that any of the 72 missing would be found alive.

The President had dispatched the assistant secretary of the Navy, Henry L. Roosevelt, to take charge of the search for possible survivors and bodies and of the investigation ordered by the Navy. Congressional authorities arranged to co-operate in the inquiry.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke after spending the morning inquiring into the disaster.

Nominal gas volume, 6,500,000 cubic feet; length over all, 785 feet; maximum diameter, 132.9 feet; height over all, 145.5 feet; gross lift, 403,000 pounds.

The ship carried eight engines, with a total horsepower of 4,480. Its maximum speed was said to be 83.8 miles per hour.

CRASH RECALLS PROBE INTO FITNESS

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—The U. S. S. Akron, mightiest of airships, which crashed on the Atlantic off the Jersey coast today, has been followed by a "jinx" since she made her first actual flight at Akron, O., where she was built in 1931.

Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, survivor of the crash of the U. S. Naval airship Shenandoah over Ohio in 1925, in which 14 lives were lost in a squall, commanded the Akron on its first flight.

An alleged Communist was charged with strempting to leave out rivets to weaken the construction of the Akron during the time it was being built at the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation airship dock at Akron.

As the giant airship neared completion, it was announced that the ship would be about 19,000 pounds heavier than the prescribed specifications.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett explained this as "a direct conversion into increased safety and military factors."

He said the overweight would not seriously affect her general air worthiness.

MATERIAL PROBED

Charges made by two workmen that materials used in the construction of the Akron were faulty were investigated by the Naval Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives last year. After a lengthy hearing on the charges, the investigation termed the airship was without defects.

While the Akron was being groomed at Lakehurst on February 21, 1932, for a flight with a congressional sub-committee to demonstrate the air-worthiness of the dirigible, a sudden gust of wind lashed it into the ground and damaged its fabric and verticle fin.

The congressional flight was called off.

A month previous, the giant naval airship had torn loose from the mast of the naval tanker Patoka in Norfolk, Va., during maneuvers. The Akron was reported not to have suffered any damage.

Another minor accident occurred in the second week of March, 1932, while the Akron was undergoing repairs in her hangar at Lakehurst.

A storm blew in a pane of heavy glass. The glass cut through the top fabric of the airsh; and tore open a gas cell.

But it was on its first major training flight—a cruise to the Pacific Coast—during May of 1932 that the Akron recorded its first casualties.

TWO MEN KILLED

In an attempt to land the mammoth airship, two men of the mooring crew at Camp Kearney, Cal., were hurled to death, while a third saved his life by clinging to the end of a 300-foot rope for two hours.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover christened the Akron before a crowd of 100,000 persons at Akron, O. The airship was accepted by the Navy. Admiral Moffet's eyes gleamed with pride when first he saw the silvery ship rise into the air, her motors roaring a song of man's inventive skill in conquering the skies.

Here was a $5,375,000 cruiser of the air, 785 feet long, of 132 feet diameter, with a top speed of 84 miles an hour and able to travel 13,000 nautical miles on a full loading of fuel.

The general appearance of the Akron was similar to the Los Angeles and other airships of the type. Some of her outstanding features were:

Eight propellers suspended from outrigger struts with means for tilting each propeller, so as to give thrust in four directions.

An internal hangar for housing four or five airplanes.

Use of combined automatic and manually-operated gas valves.

Refuse to Give Up Hope for Men on Doomed Akron

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Death reached out of the skies today into scores of peaceful suburban homes, where in tears and heartache the crash of the dirigible Akron was echoed.

Mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers of the men who went down with the naval airship heard by radio, telephone and newspapers of the disaster—and refused to believe.

Frederick Starr, father of 25-year-old Seaman S. W. Starr, of Peekskill, N. Y., said:

"We are living in hope. Perhaps he might be picked up later. He was a daring youngster. . . "

His voice trailed off. There was a pause. Then he said:

"Excuse me, we had to take his mother out of the room. She is dreadfully upset. We have four other children, but he was the daring one of the family. He was in the service almost three years."

WAIT FOR NEWS

It was the same with the family of J. J. Zimkus, boatswain's mate, of Stamford, Conn., where an aged father and mother sat, surrounded by six other children, "waiting patiently for news."

Mrs. Louis Olbert, mother of Norbert Wind, machinist, said her son had been "so enthusiastic about this training trip," when he was home on furlough two weeks ago.

Mrs. Ralph Stein, whose husband's fate came to her by radio in her home at Belmar, N. J., said:

"All we can do is wait and hope and pray."

From happy contemplation of new enlistments, new travels, the families of the men aboard the Akron were plunged into uncertainty, confusion. They clung to the straw of "maybe." Maybe more news would dispel the awful fear that nothing—nothing was left.

SECOND DISASTER

Only Mrs. Richard Deal, of Lakewood, wife of a boatswain's mate, was silently knowing. She had been through it all before, as the wife—and widow—of George Joffrey, chief mechanic aboard the ill-fated Shenandoah.

"Again," said her tragic eyes—for she did not utter a word—"the elements have stricken down my man."

To Mrs. Alfred F. Masury, of New York, the news of the disaster leaped from impersonal to personal when John A. Sloan, her husband's secretary, phoned to tell her Col. Masury had begn the guest of Rear Admiral Moffett on the flight.

She had known her engineer-husband contemplated the voyage. He was afraid she would worry about him, as she had on several other occasions, notably the time he crossed the atlantic on the Graf Zeppelin.

With all its dangers, the life of the airship men was of their own choosing, their families reported, so even the sudden ending—if ending it be—must be accepted. Said Mrs. Samuel Shevlowitz, of Brooklyn, whose brother-in-law, Joseph, was a machinist on the airship:

"He loved it. He has been in the Navy since the war and was on the Shenandoah when it crashed. At that time his parents begged him to leave, but he said: 'This is my life, I must stay with it.'

"I have a feeling that if he was not crushed inside the ship when it fell, he will come through. He had supernatural good luck and great strength. If only he was thrown from the ship, he'll stay afloat till he's picked up!"

From behind her, as she spoke, came the strains of dance music, eerie accompaniment to the terror in her tones. She said:

Saved from Akron By Visit of His Mother-in-Law

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—His mother-in-law's visit may have saved the life of Lieut. George F. Mentz, the Navy's public relations officer, here.

Mentz planned to go with Rear Admiral William A. Moffett to Lakehurst yesterday in order that he might make the scheduled trial flight up the New England coast on the Akron.

Just as he was ready to leave, Mentz received a message that his mother-in-law, Mrs. Alfred Pochon, in Front Royal, Va., was coming up for a visit. He changed his plans and did not go to Lakehurst.

FAITH IN MACON NOT SHAKEN

AKRON, O., April 4.—(AP.)—Confident that a searching probe would reveal that some unforeseen threat—thrust of lightning, perhaps—had brought disaster to her sister ship, Goodyear-Zeppelin and Navy officials today reiterated sturdy faith in the U. S. S. Macon now being prepared for her maiden flight here.

The one man most concerned, the one who designed the U. S. S. Akron and the U. S. S. Macon, and in whose hands rests the fate of American lighter-than-air industry, Dr. Karl Arnstein, stood tense and grim by a desk heaped with charts and drawings. He said quietly:

"I can say nothing now. I must know more."

"News of the Akron disaster comes as a profound shock. From the viewpoint of the personnel, it is a staggering loss to the nation. In the absence of anything other than the most meager reports, we are at a loss to understand what might have caused the wreck and naturally I cannot endulge in speculation."

Olympic Athlete Aboard Dirigible

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—One of the Navy's foremost athletes was aboard the Akron when it crashed.

Lieut. George Calnan, Construction Corps, of Watertown, Mass., was a participant in the Olympic games last year at Los Angeles.

Safe in Shenandoah And Akron Crashes

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—One member of the Akron's crew has gone through the Navy's two major airship disasters and is still living.

He is R. E. Deal, of Lakehurst, N. J., one of the four picked up by the German tanker Phoebus. Three other members of the Akron's crew were also survivors of the Shenandoah tragedy in September, 1925, but so far they are among the missing.

Kane Man Aboard Akron One Month

KANE, Pa., April 4.—(INS.)—P. R. Magnuson, an enlisted man on the U. S. S. Akron which crashed early today, was transferred from the Los Angeles to the Akron only a month ago.

Air Passenger Record Possessed by Akron

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—The U. S. S. Akron once carried 207 persons, the greatest number ever to be taken aloft by either lighter-than-air or heavier-than-air craft.

The 207 persons, including the crew, were taken for a 10-hour cruise over New Jersey and neighboring states on November 3, 1931.

Retirement Near, Lost With Akron

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(INS.)—Paul S. Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hoover, of Harrisburg, was a cook on the U. S. S. Akron which crashed into the Atlantic last night.

Hoover had been in the service 14 years and would have been eligible for retirement next year, his parents said.

BEER ASSURED HERE FRIDAY MORNING

transportation of beer, if the brewer, and not the owner of the truck, is responsible for the truck's operation while it is hauling the brewers' beer.

HAULING PERMIT

"A trucker may contract to transport beer without a permit if he holds a certificate of public convenience issued by the Public Service Commission.

"A trucker may not contract, directly or indirectly, to haul beer, unless he has a permit issued by the Alcohol Permit board or a certificate of public convenience issued by the Public Service Commission."

Mayor Herron made a terse statement on his attitude toward the sale of brew. The Allegheny County Ministerial Union had decided to ask him to prevent the sale until the Pennsylvania Legislature sets up regulations. He said:

"I take my law from Congress."

BEER BY PLANE

A plane load of beer, 20 cases and several kegs, will go out on a Transcontinental and Western Airways plane at 1:28 a. m. Friday morning, the concern announced today. It will be from the Independent Brewing Company, assigned to a number of state and federal officials.

About the same time, the cases of beer for President Roosevelt will be switched from the St. Louis plane to another at the county airport, and be sent on its way to the White House.

House Passes Beer Bill To Senate for Changes

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 4.—The Senate has a job today which the House did not care to deal with, the writing of a beer license and revenue bill.

The upper branch of the Legislature is pledged by Representative Clinton A. Sowers to amend his bill in a manner which will satisfy every one. If that is done it will be satisfactory to no one.

On this promise, Sowers early this morning procured the assistance of the Democrats in the passage of his bill through the House, the vote being 156 to 22.

As passed, the bill puts the licensing of beer sales in the hands of county courts. Sowers promised Democrats that the Senate would amend the bill to eliminate the judges and substitute regional license commissions, made up of bi-partisan political choices, so there would be a bit of patronage and political preferment for everyone.

What the Senate will do to the bill, no one knows. What Gov. Pinchot will do with it is plainly understood. He has said flatly he would veto the measure.

Senator John J. McClure, chairman of the Finance Committee, to which the beer bill was referred, said this afternoon that amendments were being prepared and would be ready late this evening. He was unable to say what their final form would be, and which Democratic faction would be placed.

Philadelphia Republicans were confident right to license retailers would be left to the courts, as demanded by William S. Vare.

As an illustration of the hopelessness of legislation by Friday, when beer becomes legal, the House permitted Representative Morton Witkin, Philadelphia, to introduce and have read a bill definitely amending the state enforcement act to declare 3.2 beer not intoxicating.

This would remove any uncertainty as to whether the state act automatically reacts to the national Volstead act.

'Back to Farm' Bill Passed by Senate

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—The Harris (Allegheny) "back-to-the-farm" bill for unemployment relief was passed by the Senate and sent to the House today.

It authorizes the state Department of Agriculture to purchase and improve farm lands and lease and stock them for unemployment relief.

Mine Town Probe Bill in Committee

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—The Senate today had referred to the Mines and Mining Committee the House resolution providing for an investigation of conditions in "company towns."

HOUSE DEFEATS ECONOMY PROGRAM

HARRISBURG, April 4.—The Republican organization, which attempted to lay an embarrassing economy program on the Governor's desk, last night laid a political egg, in the language of the theatrical critics.

Despite all the pressure imposed by State Chairman Edward Martin and Joseph R. Grundy, the House defeated the Turner bill to reorganize the state government and theoretically reduce expenses by $10,000,000.

The defeat came after an initial retreat by Gen. Martin during the afternoon, in which he had pledged an amendment changing the bill so the Governor would not be stripped of executive authority through revision of the executive board, putting complete control in the hands of elective officers out of political sympathy with Gov. Pinchot.

STEEDLE AIDS TURNER

Led by Turner and Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, defenders of the bill asserted it would mean economy in government and would restore to the Legislature control over many of the state bureaus which have been built up through executive order.

TIE VOTE

There was pressure on the Allegheny County Republican delegation to go along with the bill, but Representatives Gallagher, Reed, Hoffman and McClure balked through the influence of Senators Frank J. Harris, William D. Mansfield and Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead.

Senator James J. Coyne held the remaining Republicans in line, and added Representatives Rectenwald and Shenkel, nominal Democrats.

Representatives Phillip Sterling, Philadelphia; John J. Kane, Pittsburgh; Rhodes, Montgomery, and Andrews, Cambria, the lone independent member, attacked the Turner bill.

The almost solid Democratic bloc was the result of the visit the Governor paid last week to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who communicated to Joseph F. Guffey a desire that the Democrats turn in to defeat the Turner bill. Despite this, Representative Wilson G. Sarig, Berks, Democratic floor leader, voted for the bill.

The result of last night's vote has been to dislocate the entire organization economy program and throw the Legislature back to where it was at the beginning of its sessions in January.

TEACHERS' PAY CUT PASSED BY HOUSE

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—After an hour's debate, the House today approved the Wilson (McKean) teachers' pay cut bill, which it rejected a week ago.

The vote was 120 to 79 against that of 88 to 113 last week.

The teachers' salary reducer was amended last night after the House reconsidered the vote by which it defeated the measure. The bill now permits districts to cut teachers' salaries 10 per cent during the next two years and, with approval of local courts, make further reductions in salaries and slash other mandatory expenses.

In deciding to revive five companion measures, Wilson said the latest plan for cutting state and local school costs includes reductions in state appropriations for teachers' salaries, transportation, vocational education and closed schools.

Search for revenue for a proposed $5,000,000 revolving fund to aid poorer districts have failed. Original plans included diverting money to this purpose by suspending state payments to the teachers' retirement fund.

An obstacle in this path, Wilson explained today, is the fact that the state payments to the fund constitute the source from which retirement income is paid to the older teachers.

W. Va. Radio Expert Escaped Akron Crash

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., April 4.—(AP.)—Paul F. Randolph, of Salem, who supervised the installation of radio equipment on the Akron and later served as its chief radioman, was not aboard the dirigible when it crashed.

Randolph a few months ago was sent to Akron, O., to supervise installation of radio equipment of the Akron's sister dirigible, Macon. Robert W. Copeland, who replaced Randolph on the Akron, is listed among the casualties.

Pennington Fights Beer Racketeers

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—(AP.)—John D. Pennington, federal prohibition administrator for New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, conferred yesterday with brewers on means of eliminating the racketeer from the 3.2 per cent beer business, Pennington said:

"Unless the legitimate brewers get proper protection they will be dominated by the wildcat, illegal manufacturers."

MICHIGAN WETS SWEEP POLLS

Repeal delegates were leading in the 13 other districts, but the figures were not far enough advanced to definitely assure their election.

It was the first opportunity the electors of any state have had to vote on repeal of the national prohibition law and the convention next week will be the first assembly of its kind ever held.

Among the centers that voted for repeal delegates were such cities as Detroit, Grand Rapids, Flint, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Marquette, Muskegon, Saginaw, Port Huron, Battle Creek and Lansing.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 4.—(AP.)—A decisive vote was hoped for, anti-prohibitionists said, in today's voting to pass judgment on the Eighteenth Amendment.

From a list of 30 candidates, the voters will select 15 delegates to the convention on ratification of repeal at Madison April 25. The delegates will be elected at large and action taken at the Madison convention will be a formality.

Barleycorn, Jr., To Be Baptized By Moose

The return of beer will be celebrated Friday night by the Pittsburgh Lodge No. 46, Loyal Order of Moose, at the Moose Temple. The announcement to members said "John Barleycorn, Jr., will be baptized," and added:

"The good old days will return aga full of happiness and contentment. They will drive away the blues and make life worth living again. Bring your wife or sweetheart—children will not be permitted on this occasion—also bring a prospective member."

SUNDAY SPORTS BILL PUSHED

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—The House approved the Senate-House conference report on the Schwartz bill, permitting local referenda on Sunday afternoon baseball and football.

The vote was 140 to 51.

After receiving the House-approved report, the Senate withheld action last night, with the possibility that the measure will be taken up later in the week.

SENATE PASSES UTILITY BILL

HARRISBURG, April 4.—The McClure omnibus bill, containing the only major utility regulation legislation to reach a vote in this session, has been sent to the House by the Senate without a word of debate.

By vote of 44 to 5 the Senate last night passed finally the measure which is sponsored by Senator John J. McClure, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the Public Service Commission.

The negative votes were cast by Senators Frank J. Harris and William D. Mansfield, Allegheny; Edward E. Bennett, Indiana; Benjamin H. Thompson, Westmoreland, and Leon C. Prince, Cumberland.

The measure would give the Public Service Commission jurisdiction over utility security issues, control over holding companies and the right to regulate the sale or lease of appliances by utility companies.

PINCHOT REPEAL PLAN SCORED

The Pennsylvania drys' plan for electing delegates to a state convention to consider repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was attacked today by Raymond Pitcairn, secretary of the United Repeal Council.

Pitcairn said the Pinchot-dry proposal to choose delegates from the legislative districts of the state would disfranchise a vast portion of the electorate. A bill passed by the Legislature, which Gov. Pinchot has indicated he will kill, provides the delegates shall be elected from the congressional districts and at large.

Pitcairn pointed out two legislative districts in the state have a population of about 5,000 each, while in city legislative districts the population runs as high as 135,000. Each district would have a delegate to the repeal convention.

SALARY BOARD BILL IN HOUSE

HARRISBURG, April 4.—The bill of Senator James J. Coyne to strip the Allegheny County Commissioners of power to fix salaries of county employes awaits action by the House.

The bill reduces the board of County Commissioners to one vote on the county salary board. At present the three commissioners have three votes and form a clear majority of the board.

On the roll call the negative votes were cast by Senators William D. Mansfield (also a County Commissioner); Frank J. Harris and Herman P. Brandt, of Allegheny, and Benjamin H. Thompson, of Westmoreland.

Senators Coyne, Morris Einstein and Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., supported the bill. Mansfield, Harris and Thompson also voted against the Coyne bill to authorize the appointment of a county fire marshal in the District Attorney's office at $4,000 a year.

PAY CUT BILLS GO TO FLOOR

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—Salary cuts for legislators and judges had been submitted to the Legislature today by the House Appropriations Committee.

Among a score of measures reported for passage was one by Hutton (Franklin), cutting $2,000 from judges' salaries and another by Holmes, of Center, reducing the lawmakers' salaries from $3,000 to $2,500.

The Hutton bill applies to judges of all courts and the committee, in a statement, said it will cut judicial salaries to the amounts they received prior to 1929.

The Reed (Dauphin) Senate bill, reducing the pay of traveling judges from $30 to $20 a day also was reported.

Wine for Own Use, Waiter Says; Freed

Joseph Bussone, 30, waiter in the New Venice Restaurant, Penn avenue, was discharged today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg when he testified he did not sell wine or ale in the restaurant, but had it there for his own use. Following a complaint, police raided the restaurant and took small quantities of the liquid. The complainant failed to appear at the hearing.

ARMY TO ENLIST 2,500 HERE IN FOREST WORK

Enrollment of approximately 2,500 unemployed Pittsburgh men in the nation's "reforestation army" is expected to start within a few days, according to word received today by Maj. William Buerkle, in charge of the United States Army recruiting station.

Although no definite information as to registering recruits has been received from the War Department, indications are that 13,000 will be enrolled within the area, according to a communication from the headquarters of the 3rd Corps Area in Baltimore.

The Pittsburgh station, second largest in the area, is prepared to enlarge its medical force to rush "recruits" through physical examinations and dispatch them to designated camps as soon as the order is given, Maj. Buerkle said.

3 Pennsylvania Bureaus Speed Reforestation Work

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—Three state departments are laying the groundwork for Pennsylvania's part in President Roosevelt's reforestation program to put thousands of unemployed men to work.

Lewis E. Staley, Secretary of Forests and Waters, was in Washington today to confer with Maj. R. Y. Stuart, United States Chief Forester, on preliminary plans for using state, as well as national forests.

The State Department of Labor and Industry will co-operate by making its employment offices available as recruiting stations, while the Health Department will inspect the sanitation of the forest camps as they are established.

Warren Van Dyke, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, asserted yesterday that national reforestation work and funds will be allotted to Pennsylvania in the same proportion that the state's unemployed hold to the number of jobless in the nation.

Van Dyke said he was informed the work will begin in the Allegheny National Forest in Warren, Forest, Elk and McKean counties. The forest contains 350,000 acres and experts estimate that 18,000 can be supported by the work program.

U. S. Seeking Sites For Forest Camps

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Spots in the nation's forests where the weather will permit the immediate beginning of work by men employed by the government were sought today as foresters were called to meet with the new director of the forest conservation program—Robert Fechner, of Massachusetts.

Fechner, a vice president of the International Association of Machinists, hoped to be able to start his first contingent of recruits for the woods by April 15.

Climactic conditions in the South led to the expectation that the first groups would be put to work in the timberlands of that section.

Registration of unemployed will be started by the Labor Department Friday or Saturday and the first men chosen will spend part of next week in Army camps in preparation for the forest work.

PITCAIRN WIFE GETS DIVORCE

Judge Thomas M. Marshall today granted a divorce to Clara E. Summers from Frank W. Summers, both of Pitcairn. Her charge was cruel and barbarous treatment.

Explaining that only the "cool head" of another man had saved her husband from being shot, the wife testified at the hearing:

"A man come to my door and gave me a string of beads and a compact and told me my husband gave these to his wife, and he also had caught him with his wife, and said if he had not been so cool headed, he would have shot him.

"I called my husband and gave him this string of beads and compact. He got red in the face, started to swear and didn't want me to say anything about it."

The couple married June 30, 1926.

SENATE RUSHES FARM BILL

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—A rough but certain path through the Senate was forecast today for the administration's broad price-lifting and mortgage-easing farm relief program.

Hopeful of having a combined measure ready for prompt Senate consideration within a few hours, the Agriculture Committee was called together again this morning to pass finally on the mortgage debt refinancing proposal.

Approval of the plan to give Secretary Wallace wide latitude in employing price-lifting machinery was voted yesterday by the committee after writing in an optional production cost guaranty proposal.

Almost immediately the committee went to work on the mortgage legislation sent to Capitol Hill by President Roosevelt at noon.

The idea is to combine the two measures, speed them through the Senate and back to the House which already has given overwhelming indorsement to the farm relief bill. Leaders predicted final congressional action early next week.

A banking subcommittee also is studying the mortgage bill. It probably will complete work today.

'SECRETS' BILL DRAFTED TO BAN BOOK

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The official secrets act which the administration is endeavoring to rush through Congress is designed to prevent the publication of a book concerning the diplomatic code work of a former State Department deciphering expert.

The contents of this book are of such an amazing nature that the administration feared its publication might cause international repercussions and perhaps a rupture of diplomatic relations with a foreign power.

Department of Justice agents are reported to have seized the manuscript of the book. However, it was found undesirable to take legal action because of the publicity. Therefor, the Justice Department requested Congressional action to prevent publication.

PURPOSE REVEALED

The State Department admitted in an official statement that one of the purposes of the resolution was to "protect the diplomatic codes." The statement said:

"Section 2 was suggested by the State Department for the purpose of protecting our diplomatic codes and to make possible the prosecution of any person guilty of tampering with them."

The statement added that the first half of the resolution was desired by other government departments to prevent the sale of documents which come into the possession of government employes. It emphasized that the resolution was "in no wise intended as a muzzle of cencorship of the press."

The case recalls the stir which followed the publication in 1931 of a book by Maj. Herbert O. Yardley, former code expert of the War and State departments. Maj. Yardley's services were dispensed with when Henry L. Stimson became Secretary of State. In his book, entitled "The Black Chamber," Yardley alleged that the State Department maintained from 1917 to 1929 a super code room in which the secret codes of other governments were deciphered.

FACES CHARGES

The bill rushed through the House yesterday faces radical revision or cancellation at the hands of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The provisions of the measure are so broad that some House members declared a censorship could be placed on American newspapers equal to that of many European nations.

Chairman Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, of the Judiciary Committee, which reported the bill to the House after secret hearings, promised to recommend amendments to the Senate which would eliminate all press censorship authority.

Opening of Sewer Fails to Reveal Yelping Dog

CANONSBURG, Pa., April 4.—(AP.)—The yelps of a dog caught underground has the city engineering department resorting to picks and shovels. City Engineer S. M. Day, answering a call from the J. L. Lyons home, dug into an eight-inch sewer six feet underground but found no dog.

BOLT DAMAGES PILGRIM SHAFT

PLYMOUTH, Mass., April 4.—(AP.)—The national monument to the Pilgrim forefathers, reputedly the largest granite monument in the world, was struck and damaged by lightning during the night's electrical storm.

The figure representing "Law," near the base of the monument, was badly damaged and the pedestal moved a foot. Damage was estimated at between $2,000 and $3,000, but officers of the Pilgrim Society announced immediate repairs would be made.

McFadden Resigns Post as Protest

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—The resignation of Representative Louis T. McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, from the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and Coinage, was in the hands of the House of Representatives today.

McFadden resigned in protest against the discipline meted out to him by his removal from the Banking and Currency Committee because of his attempts to impeach President Hoover at the last session of Congress.

INSURANCE LOAN BAN EASED FURTHER

HARRISBURG, April 4.—Insurance Commissioner C. F. Armstrong today lifted several additional restrictions which had been imposed on loans against life insurance policies when he declared the insurance loan holiday March 10.

Today's new order permits loans to be extended to policyholders in cases of "reasonable" need to meet necessary financial obligations.

When first imposed March 10, the restrictions banned all loans except in cases of "extreme need" when $100 might be granted as a maximum to one person against all his policies. Later a modification permitted loans to employers to supply payroll funds, if no other source of meeting the wage requirements could be found.

Today's liberalization of the loan restrictions lifts the ban "where a company is satisfied that the applicant has no other reasonable means of meeting the necessity" in any of the four following classes:

To pay taxes, interest, rent, hospital and medical expenses and purchase food for the policy holder or his dependents.

For educational purposes.

For loans to farmers for agricultural purposes.

To prevent penalties on taxes or financial commitments made prior to today.

SCHOOL MAY BE KEPT OPEN

The Crafton School Board has voted to reconsider its recent decision to close the Third Ward School as an economy measure beginning next fall.

The action followed a protest made last night by the residents of the district affected at a meeting of the school board in Crafton High School. The board had voted in February for the closing.

The school is in South Linwood avenue near Promenade street and is at present caring for about 70 pupils. No early closing of schools in Crafton this term will be necessary, it is reported.

Dauphin Poor Board Head Dies in Crash

HERSHEY, Pa., April 4.—(INS.)—Albert B. Shenk, 63, president of the Dauphin County Poor Board, was killed today when his automobile was struck by a trolley car of the Hershey Transit Company in front of his home on the Deodate road near here.

Roosevelt Plans $55,000,000 Naval Cut

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(Universal.)—President Roosevelt will issue an order this week slashing $55,000,000 from expenditures of the Navy Department during the next fiscal year, Universal Service learns on high authority.

All executive departments are soon to feel the President's economy ax. Indications were the President intends to lop off from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 in all.

Many warships will be kept in port in standby readiness under the naval retrenchment program. While no reduction in personnel was said to be contemplated, the enlisted personnel will steadily decline through expiration of enlistments and curtailed recruiting.

Miami Beach Fines 37 Male Bathers

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 4.—(AP.)—Thirty-seven men arrested by police for improper bathing attire were fined $3 each in Municipal Court yesterday.

Several elected to serve the optional one-day jail sentence rather than pay the fine. Others paid. Authorities hold that persons who appear on the beach without shirts to their bathing suits are improperly clad.

GROUP INDICTED IN 'LIVE BURIAL'

MARTINEZ, Cal., April 4.—(AP.)—Charged with throwing a young wife they had declared unfaithful in marriage into a lonely island grave and burying her alive, six men and four women members of a Filipino secret cult were under indictment for murder here today.

Bound and gagged, Mrs. Celine Novarro, 26, the victim of cult "justice" witnessed preparation of her grave as torches flared in the wind of a midnight ritual, the grand jury, which returned the indictments last night was told.

Those indicted were Leon Kantinello, alleged head of the men's branch of the cult; Mrs. Alberta Asis, head of the women's branch; Kantinello's wife, Theresa; Mrs. Maria Galvez, alleged prosecutor at the cult trial, and three men who dug the grave, Vincente Kang, Eustaquio Cadog and Ramon Castillo. Two John Doe and one Jane Doe indictments were also returned.

Phila. Presbytery Quits Federal Body

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Presbytery voted yesterday for withdrawal of the Presbyterian Church from the Federal Council of Churches in America.

F. R. HOLDS UP LEAGUE COURT

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(Universal.)—President Roosevelt has suggested to Democratic leaders that the League Court protocol be kept in the Foreign Relations Committee indefinitely, it is learned.

With domestic issues of an emergency nature crowding for attention of the Senate, it was said the President was of the opinion the Senate should not be diverted now to the League Court issue.

The young man who learns to save now will always hold an advantage.

Saving is not easy. It can be done. And the man who lays aside money out of his present earnings will build a capital of character and strength of purpose that will carry him on to greater things.

"My Ugly Fat Has Gone! I Lost 23 lbs. in 6 Weeks"

Reduce Fat. Wear Smaller Dresses, Prettier Styles. Throw Away Uncomfortable Corsets and Girdles. Look Years Younger. Start Taking BonKora Today.

Reduced Hips 8 Inches!

Mrs. Hallock before taking BonKora, 23 pounds overweight. Fat was prominent in certain parts.

Her Photographs Show How Heaviest Parts Reduce First

"I lost 23 lbs. in 6 weeks taking BonKora. I lost fat just where I wanted to. It seemed that the heaviest parts reduced first. I reduced my bust 5 inches, waist 6 inches, hips 8 inches. Now weigh 125 lbs.

"I used to hate to wear a bathing suit. Now I look well in one and I am sending a photo just taken in a bathing suit and one taken in a dress when I was stout, so you can see the difference.

"I feel fine, too. BonKora is evidently a good tonic as well as a weight reducer. I got rid of indigestion, gas, dizzy spells, constipation and nervousness. I sleep fine now. And instead of the old tired feeling, I am full of energy. I feel younger and look younger.

"I didn't starve either. I like to eat and with BonKora, I can eat plenty and still lose fat."

Mrs. H. H. Hallock Jr.
1105 W. Lombard St., Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Hallock after taking BonKora. Lost 23 pounds. Shapely figure as well as slender.

MARY LOU GOES SHOPPING

SHE is only eight, but, even at this tender age Mary Lou is a daily customer at the neighborhood stores. Perhaps it is a package of crackers, and a pound of coffee at the grocer's. Perhaps it is some tooth paste or toilet soap at the drug store.

Of course Mary Lou doesn't decide on what she is going to buy. Her mother writes a list—this brand of crackers, this brand of coffee, this make of tooth paste, this kind of soap. She knows the prices, and gives Mary Lou just enough money, with an extra penny or two, perhaps, to spend for herself.

Buying is just as simple and easy as that because of just one thing—Advertising.

Advertising has given all of us a lot to be thankful for.

Because of advertising, people in Texas know about and buy Michigan motor cars. People in New Hampshire buy oranges raised in Florida and California. Because of advertising, merchants and manufacturers are forced to improve their products. It has standardized quality. It has increased consumption and thereby lowered costs. It promotes competition and thereby keeps dealers and merchants wide-awake to secure for you the most for your money.

But best of all it writes "Finis" on the business career of any merchant or manufacturer who attempts to fool the public or give them less than value received.

SEES OPENING OF HOLY YEAR

Mrs. Keenan

This was Rosalyn Miller Keenan, who went across the water as a special messenger for Father Cox for the mailing of nearly 5,000 cacheted envelopes. She has cabled back that the cachets have been mailed and that they carry the new Vatican City postage stamp.

As far as can be learned these Father Cox cachets are the only commemorative souvenirs that went out of Rome on Sunday—the opening day of the Holy Year. The larger number of them are addressed to subscribers in the Pittsburgh area, but there are also many addresses representing every nook and corner of the United States. Stamp collectors perdominate in these addresses. Every person on the mailing list subscribed 25 cents to the Father Cox breadline fund.

Father Cox has had a fine start this week in his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. His Sunday radio appeal brought a gratifying response. For every subscription that comes in on the blank of this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Have you solved this easy cipher? It shouldn't be hard.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

How are you getting along with Cipher No. 79? It's easy. Quite a few fans have solved this one. Maybe after the tip today you will succeed. Let's hope so.

In this cipher there is but one alphabet. The key is "A," "B" and "C." Now it is your job to arrange the alphabet the correct way. That should be quite a tip for you.

Watch for the answer and a new cipher tomorrow.

Peter Raft, of 1210 Bingham street, writes:

"I have been doing your ciphers regular. They sure are great pastime. I like them much better than crossword puzzles as it takes you much longer to decode them. May your cipher column continue and your fans get as much enjoyment out of them as I do."

MACHINE REPAIR BIDS SOUGHT

Director W. T. Rees of the County Bureau of Elections announced that advertisements will be printed tomorrow containing the specifications for the improvement of the county's 1,100 voting machines. Contractors' bids probably will be opened April 18. Rees said the repair work would last about three months, giving time for the machines to be put into condition for use at the primaries in September.

Rees said at least six large firms will bid for the work. Most of the cost will be charged to the bond posted by the Pool Engineering and Machine Company, manufacturers of the machine, county officials say.

LANG IN MARKET FOR BUFFALO

Director Edward G. Lang of the city Public Works Department notified County Commissioners he would be glad to accept any excess buffalo and deer said to exist in the county parks. Lang suggests that the animals be placed in Frick Woods.

Director A. M. Marion, of the county parks, informed the Commissioners there were too many deer and buffalo in the parks and that he had found no market for them. Long's letter said the city could not pay for the animals, but would accept them gratis.

The letter will be taken up at the Commissioner's meeting Thursday.

Husband Accused In Kidnaping Held

Steve Silkow, husband of Mrs. Francis Silkow, 34, 1219½ Fifth avenue, McKeesport, who told police she was kidnaped last week in a plot she said involved her husband, was held for court yesterday on a surety of the peace charge by Alderman John K. Skinner, of McKeesport.

Information against Silkow was made by his wife, who said she was "taken for a ride" in Boston, near McKeesport, last Friday and beaten by two men, police reported.

PASTOR FREED, SEEKS RETURN TO PULPIT

MUNCIE, Ind., April 4.—(AP.)—Freed by a Circuit Court jury of a charge of attempting to attack an 18-year-old Sunday school teacher, the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway today indicated he would appeal for reinstatement in his pulpit at the Madison Street Methodist Episcopal Church here.

He was suspended for one year by a church jury which, on March 16, convicted him of imprudent ministerial conduct.

Acquittal of the 51-year-old minister came less than three hours after the jury received the case late yesterday. Miss Helen Huffman, who testified the minister made advances to her during an automobile ride last December 29, was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read last night.

Choir to Present Religious Drama

The Mt. Washington Methodist Episcopal Church choir, under the direction of Gilbert C. Friar and assisted by the Orpheus Male Chorus, will present the religious drama, "The Passion of Our Lord, Jesus Christ," Sunday night in the church. FLIES TO JOIN SISTER FOR REUNION

James (Indian Jim) Westlake, of Anoka, Minn., visited Pittsburgh yesterday on an air trip to Washington, to see his sister, from whom he has been separated since he was five months old.

Westlake, 41, and a war veteran, was placed in an orphanage when his parents died. His sister was taken by a neighbor's family and a brother was cared for by other friends. Leaving the orphanage, Westlake was shunted about, finally at the age of 10 finding himself living with a tribe of Indians in a government reservation.

He grew up in the Minnesota woods and when the World War broke out joined the Tenth Field Artillery, Third Division. Since his return from France, he has been a deputy game warden in Minnesota.

A year ago he found himself in the limelight of news, through his arrest of a band of game poachers. His colorful life story was published by newspapers. Clippings were shown to his sister, Mrs. Cade Sheridan, of Washington. Correspondence followed and brother and sister established their relationship.

A few weeks ago Westlake's buddies of the Veterans of Foreign Wars got together and obtained for Indian Jim an airplane trip to Washington. It is his first air voyage. Pausing at the County Airport between planes yesterday, he said:

"This is great. I wish I could keep on traveling like this. I hope to visit by brother in Seattle some day and when I do, I'm going to fly."

REMOVE BARRIERS

The conference will advocate the removal of international trade barriers. It will discuss commercial treaties with other nations and a permanent settlement of the debts of the nations.

Some of the more important speeches of the conference will be made following a dinner on April 27 and will be broadcast over a radio network which will carry them all over the world. High Federal officials are expected to be present.

A feature of the convention will be the trade adviser service headed by A. M. Vance, of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Exporters of the Pittsburgh district will have the opportunity to talk to 63 foreign trade experts, many of whom have just returned from other countries and are closely acquainted with commercial problems peculiar to certain nations.

The general conference will be opened April 26 with a speech by Mr. Farrell on "The World Trade Outlook." Col. Breckenridge will talk on "The Growing Importance of Inter-American Relations."

LIBBY AND BABY GO IN HIDING

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—(INS.)—The luxurious room at the Philadelphia lying-in hospital which for many weeks shielded Libby Holman Reynolds and her tiny infant son was empty today, but the whereabouts of the former Broadway songstress and her offspring were shrouded in mystery.

Although Libby and her son left the hospital Saturday, so secretly that not even her physician, Dr. Norris W. Vaux, was informed, the departure was not revealed until yesterday afternoon.

Hospital attaches said Libby intimated she was going neither to a large estate which she leased recently near Wilmington, Del., nor to the home of her parents in Cincinnati.

WILSON MIZNER, WRITER, DIES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 4.—(AP.)—Wilson Mizner, 58, playwright and promoter, died late last night of a heart attack after an illness of more than six months. His death followed by two months that of his brother, Addison, nationally known architect, who died in Florida.

As a young man, Wilson went to Alaska, where he established a trading post. He was associated with the late Tex Rickard, the two of them being among the first five white men to live in Nome.

After leaving Alaska, Mizner went to New York, where he wrote a number of successful plays, among them "Alias Jimmy Valentine," "The Deep Purple" and "The Only Law."

During the Florida land boom, Mizner, with his brother, Addison, formed the Mizner Development Company and sold more than $1,000,000 worth of real estate. He returned to California six years ago to engage in writing for the screen.

Luckies Please!

Havana, Cuba, increasingly smart, increasingly interesting

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please"

You want character as well as mildness in a cigarette . . . Luckies have both!

Everywhere you go—at cosmopolitan Havana as in our own homeland—discriminating smokers prefer Luckies. Why?

For one thing, because of their fine, fragrant Turkish and domestic tobaccos—carefully selected, perfectly blended. People the world over want a cigarette that has Character.

Second, and all important, because these fine tobaccos are "Toasted"—that scientific process which creates true mildness. For these two reasons—character and mildness—"Luckies Please!"

TENAFLY LOOM PRODUCTS ON EXHIBITION

By PENELOPE REDD

The Eastertide exhibition of hand-loomed fabrics from the Tenafly looms is on view at the Winchester School, 4721 Fifth avenue, through April 15.

Miss Redd

The Tenafly Weavers have been the American innovators in the adaptation of weaving to the demands of contemporary decorative art. Basically the same principle as the pioneer woman's manipulation of warp and woof which was born of domestic necessity, the Tenafly Weavers have developed weaving immeasurably beyond "blue and white homespuns."

They have extended the chromatic range and varied the textures for both utilitarian and purely decorative purposes with the inflection distinctively American.

Whether one be attracted to these beautiful textiles either for personal adornment or household embellishment, it is possible to assemble a color ensemble for every taste, be it conservative or exotic.

Particular items are difficult to isolate for special comment because this exhibition is one which the visitor composes for herself because the objects are so inevitably suggestive of immediate personal uses.

There is sobriety in the honest structure of these hand-loomed objects which seems a symbol of security in these uncertain days. The Tenafly Weavers are pioneers in reviving weaving. Their work is included in the textile collections of the great museums.

It is one of the everyday miracles of American life that such excellent decorative art is brought to us by a group that has gallantly survived against the inundation of cheap foreign competition. Enjoy this exhibition before it closes April 15.

Washington Miners Appeal to County

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 4.—A committee of 25 men and women representing the National Miners' Union yesterday brought from the Washington County Commissioners a promise to do everything possible to extend relief to unemployed miners in event of a mine strike.

The commissioners' refused to hear Frank Borich, of 1524 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, organizer of the union and now facing deportation, on the grounds that he is an alien and did not represent citizens of this county.

Fire Chief's Drill May Cost Him Job

Because he wanted to give his men a fire drill, Fire Chief Charles Thomas is $12.60 poorer today and faces the loss of his $50-a-year job when Dravosburg Council meets next Monday. He was fined last night on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct before Magistrate Charles J. Carlson "just because he thought Sunday night would be a swell night for a fire drill."

He sounded a false alarm for the county airport, police said.

Tries Suicide, Changes His Mind

Rescued after he was alleged to have leaped into the Allegheny River from the Manchester Bridge late yesterday, Mike Koptotel, 45, who said he lived at Grant and Water streets, was reported recovering in South Side Hospital today.

After plunging into the stream Koptotel, police said, changed his mind and, overcoat and all, began to swim. He struggled in the water until two men came to his rescue in a skiff. Mike told police he was despondent over unemployment and decided to end it all, but when he struck the water and sank once, he changed his mind.

PENALTIES NEAR FOR RUM PLOT

Sentence in the rum conspiracy trial held last December in Federal District Court will be imposed Monday upon 21 men convicted and 20 others who pleaded guilty. Among the latter group was Rocco DiPippa, betted known as Roxie Long, racketeer, star government witness at the trial.

The sentences date was announced yesterday after Judge F. P. Schoonmaker refused a new trial motion. Whether an appeal to the Circuit Court will be asked has not been announced by Attorney John D. Meyer and other defense counsel. The trial of two other defendants was postponed because of their illness. Two were acquitted.

The indictment charged the 45 men with conspiring to violate the prohibition law by the manufacture and sale of moonshine whisky and the furnishing of sugar, bottles and barrels. Last week DiPippa was placed under bond for another alleged liquor offense, said to have occurred a few days before the trial. In the prosecution the government was represented by Assistant United States Attorneys R. D. Evans and Robert McKinley.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

WOMAN FELLED BY ROBBERS

A victim of thugs who struck her on the head when she screamed, Mrs. Agnes Simpson, 57, of 7000 Kedron street, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today, suffering a possible skull fracture.

Mrs. Simpson was walking to her home when two men accosted her at North Lang avenue and Monticello street, last night. She screamed and one of the pair struck her on the head. They fled without loot.

TWO PLANES SKIM SUMMIT OF WORLD'S HIGHEST PEAK; AMAZING RANGE REVEALED

By LORD CLYDESDALE

Chief Pilot, Houston Mt. Everest Expedition

Copyright, 1933, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

PURNEA, India, April 4.—Mount Everest, world's loftiest peak, has been conquered. Yesterday the two planes of the Houston expedition flashed over its white summit, which reaches more than 29,000 feet into the skies and had hitherto resisted every assault by man.

Yesterday morning the Indian meteorological officer at Purnea, S. N. Gupta, whose information and advice have been of very great value to our expedition, reported after balloon observations that the wind, previously unsuitable, had dropped to 57 miles an hour at 33,000 feet. We had decided this altitude would be the best working height for photographic survey.

Our machines took off at 8:25 from Lalbalu Airdrome, in still air. The Houston-Westland plane was manned by Col. L. V. S. Blacker, chief observer of the expedition, and myself. The Westland-Wallace was piloted by Flight Lieut. D. F. McIntyre, with S. R. Bonnett, chief cinematographer of the expedition.

Course Altered

Our direct route to the summit meant flying on a track of 342 degrees (18 degrees west of north.) This necessitated changing the compass course at intervals more to the west because of the increase of wind velocity with the increase in height.

We had relied on overcoming to some extent the difficulty of accurate compass navigation, caused by frequent change of wind speed, by good landmarks near and along our track of 342 degrees (18 degrees west of north.) But heavy dust haze rising to a considerable height almost obscured the ground from Forbesganj to the higher mountain ranges. This made aerial survey work impossible.

We climbed slowly to 10,000 feet. At this height the crews of both machines had tested their electrical heating sets, and Lieut. McIntyre and I signaled each other that everything was satisfactory.

Everest Sighted

After 30 minutes flying we passed over Forbesganj, our forward emergency landing ground 40 miles from Purnea, and we were 19,000 feet up when Everest first became visible above the haze.

We flew lower than our intended working height in order to make every endeavor to pass over Komaltar. Close to this is the ground control from which we had planned to begin our aerial survey. It proved impossible to identify any landmarks at all until we were within approximately 20 miles of the summit.

At 9 o'clock we passed over Ehamlang at an altitude of 31,000 feet. On the approach to Lothi, southern peak of the Everest group, the ground rises at a steep gradient. Both machines encountered a steady down current due to the deflection of the west wind over the mountain. This caused a loss in altitude of 1,500 feet despite all our efforts to climb.

Skim Over Peak

Both airplanes flew over the summit of Mt. Everest at 10 o'clock. We cleared the peak by 100 feet.

The wind velocity was noticeably high near the summit, but no bumps were felt by either aircraft.

Fifteen minutes were spent in flying in the neighborhood of the summit, and because of the smooth flying conditions the taking of close range photographs was possible.

The visibility of distant high peaks was very good. The great Himalaya range could be seen extending a vast distance and providing a magnificent spectacle.

The return journey was carried out at a slightly lower altitude so we might have better conditions for oblique photography. Both machines landed at Lalbalu at 11:25. The pilots pay the highest tributes to the splendid performance of engines and aircraft.

Glaciers Dwarf Swiss Alps

By E. C. SHEPHERD

(Copyright, 1933, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

PURNEA, India, April 4.—The flight over Mt. Everest yesterday was carried out with no more fuss than if it had been an ordinary service flight at home in England, and it was completed in exactly three hours.

The only mishap was a fracture of the oxygen tube in the apparatus of S. R. Bonnett, aerial photographer, who went as observer in the Westland-Wallace plane piloted by Lieut. McIntytre.

This mishap occurred over the summit of Mt. Everest. Bonnett became faint from violent pains of the stomach. He had to sit down in the cockpit and eventually he discovered the reason for his illness—the broken oxygen pipe.

Crew Comfortable

Apart from this and a blister caused by heat from one of Lieut. McIntyre's electrically - heated gloves, the crews of both planes were entirely comfortable.

So far as the aerial survey is concerned the flight probably was not very satisfactory, because both cameras failed to operate over part of the flight. But the still cameras produced magnificent photographs of the crest of Mt. Everest and of the surrounding peaks, including one fine closeup of Mt. Everest showing the main southern slopes and the final ridge where George Leigh Mallory and Andrew Irvine, climbers, lost their lives in 1924. This closeup showed the great peak, Everest, itself.

The morning was still, with the sun climbing late over the haze. Air Commodore Fellowes, leader of the expedition, at 5:30 went up into the haze in a Puss Moth plane for reconnaissance. He climbed 17,000 feet over the Nepal frontier, but failed to clear the haze.

Test Balloon

A balloon sent up at dawn had been watched to a height of 16,000 feet. At this point it indicated a wind speed of 22 miles.

The planes for the flight were brought out at 7 o'clock and the cameras were fitted in. The machines left the ground at 8:25. They made a quarter circuit of the airdrome and then headed north, flying in formation with Lord Clydesdale in the lead.

The planes climbed steeply and in a few minutes were lost to sight in the haze. Thereafter no word was heard of them for three hours. During this period they climbed through three miles of haze, traveled a double journey of 160 miles and reached a maximum height approximating 30,000 feet directly over the crest of Everest itself. Bonnett said:

"I was particularly impressed by the enormous size of the glaciers. They are vastly bigger than any I ever saw in Switzerland. There are many tremendous precipices apart from the north ridge. Some of them are absolutely perpendicular for thousands of feet."

Scenery Inspiring

The scenery was magnificent beyond description and all who took part were impressed by the enormous size of the mountains and by the extraordinary visibility which permitted the whole range to be seen to the western horizon.

Col. Blacker said on his return that the only limit to the view along the mountains was due to the curvature of the earth surface. The stupendous scale of the scenery and the clear air upset the estimated size of the distance. Bonnett confessed that he could not tell how far or near things were.

The flight proceeded without incident until the great massive Chamlang was approached. Climbing over the huge edge both machines received the full force of th down-draught caused by the wind from the West striking the steep side of Mt. Everest, being shot upwards over the summit and recovering in a steady downward sweep some 12 miles beyond.

Altitude Lost

Caught in this, something like 2,000 feet in height was lost in a very few seconds. The machines at this time were quite close to the mountainside and the pilots were ready to turn away if necessary, but they found they were getting across down the current, and estimating they had just enough height to get safely over they continued and crept over the ridge with little room to spare.

This was the last serious air disturbance they encountered on the way up.

Over the summit of Mt. Everest there was a strong wind blowing, though less than earlier in the morning, when violent gusts could be seen driving a snow plume high into the air off the crest.

The machines made two complete circuits of the summit, occasionally banking steeply to give the photographers good chances to take oblique views.

Photographer Ill

After 15 minutes both turned away. It was at this point that Lieut. McIntyre missed Bonnett who previously had been standing with his head and shoulders above the cockpit using the camera.

Bonnett says he had been feeling ill until the machines had descended to 25,000 feet, by which time he was fast recovering.

So surprising was the sight over the mountain tops that neither pilot was prepared after this short flight to define precisely the nature of the country or to express an opinion as to gaps or inaccuracies in existing maps.

If the survey cameras between them can produce a complete mosaic of the country flown over, details will be available. This is thought unlikely and if permission can be obtained from Nepal for a second flight it certainly will be made.

Capt. Bennett, physician attached to the expedition, examined Bonnett to see if he had suffered any serious harm from his mishap. He found Bonnett still shaken, but this was all.

Repairs Break

"The spiral armor had pulled out near the connection, and no oxygen was reaching my mask. After I had tied my handkerchief around the break and we had started down fast, I soon began to recover."

Capt. Bennett also examined the others who made the flight.

The pilots showed no sign of strain. McIntyre said that his mask had come unfastened for a short period while he was flying over the summit, and that he had replaced it with some difficulty. Col. L. V. S. Blacker, who flew as observer in the plane piloted by Lord Clydesdale, was pale and tired after the flight, but not suffering from exhaustion.

Numerous letters were carried over the summit in Lieut. McIntyre's plane. They bear special cancellation stamps, and they are being sent out of India by airmail. Included are letters to King George, the Prince of Wales and Lady Houston, the backer of the flight.

Peaks Higher Than Everest?

By COL. L. V. STEWART BLACKER

Chief Observer Houston Everest Expedition.

PURENA, India, April 4.—Immediately after we left the ground I began by routine duties. At the start of all high altitude flights a number of vital checks must be made and to avoid omitting any I made list amounting to 46 separate jobs.

The while flight might be ruined, for instance, by failing to remove the caps of the camera lenses which in this dusty climate must be left on until the craft has sprung clear of the haze.

We soon found a wonderful view of Mount Kanuchenjunga in all its gleaming whiteness on our right. I opened the cockpit roof, put my head out into the slipstream and there, the pulsating rocker arms of Pegasus, showing level with us, was the naked majesty of Everest.

I was not able to remain long watching the wonderful sight as the machine roaring upward unfolded countless peaks right, left and in front in all their amazing mantles scarred with black precipices.

Peaks Revealed

Somewhat to my dismay, Everest bore that immense snow plume which means a mighty wind tearing across the summit, lifting clouds of powdered snow and drifting it with blizzard force eastward.

Soon we came closer to the big mountains, and my time became fully occupied handling the three cameras. Now and then I checked the drift and saw the automatic survey camera was working, looking vertically down through the hatchway to the amazing mountainscape bare of trees and seamed with immense glaciers interspersed with peaks.

Higher Than Everest?

The machine went up into a sky of indescribable blue until we came on a level with the great peak itself. Then to my astonishment at a great distance northwards across the vast snowless plateau, a group of snowclad peaks lifted itself. I hesitate to conjecture the range of this view but by some trick of vision the summit seemed even higher than Everest.

This astonishing picture of Everest, its snow plume now gradually lessening, its tremendous southern cliffs flanked by the immaculate whiteness of Makulu, was a sight which must remain in by mind in all the years of my life.

Pinchot Expresses 'Profound Regret'

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today expressed "profound regret" over the tragedy which befell the dirigible Akron. He said:

RETURN HOARD, WOODIN URGES

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Declaring that rebuilding of the banking structure of the United States had resulted in the reopening of 12,737 banks at the end of March, Secretary Woodin last night urged in an address a further return of hoarded money to the banks.

Of the total number of banks that reopened, Woodin said, 5,387 were national and Federal Reserve member state banks and 7,350 were state banks. The national banks had total deposits of nearly $26,000,000,000, he added.

The Treasury Secretary said that since the national banking holiday ended the work of restoring banks unable to open at that time had gone forward rapidly. Since March 15, he said, 289 national banks with deposits of about $435,000,000 had been strengthened and reorganized under the supervision of the comptroller of the currency, enabling them to reopen on "the same solid basis as the banks reopened in the first days."

TWO OHIO BANKS ASK R. F. C. AID

CLEVELAND, April 4.—(AP.)—Two of Ohio's largest unlicensed banks—the Guardian Trust Company of Cleveland and the First-Central Trust Company of Akron—today carried their cases before Reconstruction Finance Corporation officials in Washington.

They hoped to obtain financial assistance, which would enable them to reorganize under national bank charter.

Harold H. Burton, recently elected president of the Guardian, headed the Cleveland group and Sterling B. Cramer, First-Central president, led the Akron delegation.

A. V. Cannon, who has been chosen as chairman of the First National Bank of Cleveland, successor bank to the unlicensed Union Trust Company, was reported to have gone to Washington aboard the same train as the Akron group. The reason for his mission was undivulged here.

LAYS DIVORCE TO JOB LOSS

Asked if he had counsel, he answered:

"I have no counsel, nor do I have a job nor money. If I hadn't lost my job we would have had a home of our own and there wouldn't have been any need of a divorce."

Mrs. Rachel Cohen, 24, of 133 Crawford street, asked the divorce on a charge of indignities.

Declines Mayor Job In Wilkes-Barre

Name Conservators For Three Banks

The Pittsburgh Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank has announced appointment of three more conservators for banks in Western Pennsylvania.

They are the First National Bank of Jefferson, Harry A. Cree; the First National Bank of Stoyestown, N. G. Speicher, and the Citizens National Bank of Windber, Henry K. Sarver.

MURPHY WARNS OF DEFAULTS

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, told the House Judiciary Committee today that the nation cannot permit cities to continue defaulting their obligations without "dire consequences."

He testified:

"Up to six weeks ago, before the banking holiday, more than 1,000 municipalities had defaulted. That is a very perilous and very dangerous thing, and can't be continued."

He pointed out that of Detroit's $68,000,000 budget for next year, $34,000,000 will be for payment of interest and retirements of bonds. He said tax delinquencies this year are 36 per cent and predicted that "next year they will be 80 per cent."

Murphy indorsed the McCleod bill, which would permit municipalities to petition federal bankruptcy courts for moratoriums on their obligations for two-year periods.

Two Bandits Slain In Cuban Clashes

HAVANA, April 4.—(AP.)—Army headquarters here was advised today that two bandits had been slain in brushes with rural guardsmen in the interior of Cuba.

SENATE PAVES WAY FOR QUIZ OF MORGAN

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—Without debate or a word of discussion, the Senate today approved a sweeping resolution authorizing the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to include private banks and trust companies in the scope of its New York stock market investigation.

Its passage leaves the committee free to go forward with an investigation into the financial dealing of J. P. Morgan & Co., the world's largest private banking house, which challenged the Senate's authority, under a resolution approved at the last session, to delve into its capital structure and some of its financial transactions.

Ferdinand Pecora, the committee's counsel, planned to issue subpenas at once to all the major officials of the Morgan bank. Armed with power as far reaching as was ever conferred on a Senate group, the committee expected to force the Morgan bank to disclose all the information sought by Pecora.

Public hearings involving the Morgan firm will be heard in 30 or 60 days, Pecora stated. John W. Davis, the 1924 Democratic Presidential nominee, is representing the House of Morgan.

INVESTOR HITS SECURITIES BILL

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Arthur H. Dean, of New York, who said he represented a "number of investors," assailed the administration's securities bill before the Senate Banking Committee today. He said it was "a hopeless confusion of ill-assorted provisions lifted bodily out of the English marketing act and certain blue sky laws."

Dean said he was in sympathy with President Roosevelt's message on securities regulation, but that the bill would not afford adequate protection to investors.

At about the same time the bill was attacked before the House Commerce Committee by William C. Breed, of New York, as "not representing" the proposal of President Roosevelt for publicity on all issues.

Minimum Wage Law Suggested by Borah

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—A minimum wage law is "equally as important" to the welfare of the workers as a law regulating the hours of labor, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, declared today in debate on the Black bill for a compulsory 30-hour week. He said:

"If Congress has power to exclude from interstate commerce commodities produced in violation of a law limiting hours of work, it can also exclude commodities manufactured at below a living wage."

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Costly Doubles

In the recent Eastern Tournament, held in New York, the finals of the team-of-four match were played between a team representing a prominent club, the members of which were Messrs. Theodore A. Lightner, Michael T. Gottlieb, Oswald Jacoby and Louis H. Watson, and a team, the members of which were Messrs. David Burnstine, Howard Schenken, Charles E. Lochridge and Richard Frey. The later team was the victor in the finals by a margin of 1980 points. Most of the margin of victory occurred on the hand below and was the direct outcome of a costly Penalty Double, the result of which was a 1700-point swing.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 9 2 ♡ 10 8 5 ◇ J 9 8 7 4 ♣ 6
♠ K 8 7 6 ♡ A ◇ Q 10 6 5 ♣ A Q J 7	North West East South	♠ J 10 5 4 3 ♡ K 7 6 ◇ A 3 2 ♣ 5 4
	♠ — ♡ Q J 9 4 3 2 ◇ K ♣ K 10 9 8 3 2

At one table this hand was played by North and South at two hearts doubled, the result being that three were made, North and South thus scoring 720 points. At the other table the contract was four spades redoubled. This contract also was made, netting 980 points for the players. As a result, the club's team was minus both ways of the board, making a net loss of 1700 points on a single deal.

Unquestionably, there is a strong tendency in match-point plays to make Doubles of low contracts when the hands do not suggest the probability of a worthwhile score if played at one's own bid. However, it is quite easy to overdo in seeking to penalize opponents. West has a hand of an extremely unbalanced type, as do both North and South. No one of the three indicates cards of great defensive strength if played against opponents' declaration. It is quite true that North, with 2, and perhaps 3, trump tricks, cannot be greatly blamed for feeling that he can defeat an opposing four-spade contract, particularly if it has been reached after competitive bidding. But South certainly has little in his hand to suggest that his cards will be of much value played against an oposing contract. On the other hand, it certainly does appear as though the East and West hands should at least seek to tempt North and South above a contract of two hearts before doubling for penalties. The bidding in the two rooms was:

Room 1:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Redouble
Pass	Pass	Pass

Room 2:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	Double
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣	Double
2 ♡	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Today's Question

West opens with a Forcing bid of two diamonds and North passes. What response should East make with the following hand?

♠ K 10 9 4 ♡ 4 ◇ K Q 9 6 5 4 ♣ K 9

Answer—Three diamonds. It is almost certain that West has a second biddable suit, and the full strength of the hand in support of diamonds can be shown on a later round, after first determining the fit of the combined hands.

Working Girls Deserve Same Considerations as Men

Should a working girl help mother with the house work? Peggy says "No." Mamma says "Yes." So just now there is war in the family.

"I don't see why I should come home from a hard day in the office, and be told it's my 'duty' to dig in and dust and do the dishes," Peggy snorts. "Nobody seems to think my brother should end his day like that."

Well—how about it?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am coming to you because I hope that you can help straighten out something for me.

You see I work downtown and I don't have a particular easy job. Often, when night comes I am pretty tired. But even when I come home feeling as if I'd like to rest for the balance of my life, my mother thinks I should help her with the housework.

Now, don't get the idea that my mother is crabby or mean. She is not like that at all. In fact she is one of the sweetest people on earth. But she just seems to take it for granted that because I am a girl, it is my business to "do my part" at home.

I don't think mother realizes that I actually work downtown. I think she just looks on my days at the office as a sort of "freedom" and little short of a vacation. And she thinks that after spending all those "hours of ease" away from the confines of home, it is up to me to make up for it by doing the dishes, the sweeping, the dusting and any other odd job that happens to be handy.

MOTHER FEELS HURT

I have tried to tell her that I wanted to pay my board. My brother Bob, who is also working, pays his. But every time I say that I'd like to, she seems to think that I think they don't want me around. She begins to cry, and to say that "she wouldn't dream of it;" that "her little girl will never pay board in her own home, so long as she has a mother."

All of which sounds sweet, but doesn't keep her from still thinking that all this work is Up to Me, when I get home.

I have a more responsible position than Bob has—he is younger than I—and I work harder than he does. But nobody ever dreams of even asking him to do any "home work;" yet it's taken for granted that I will—or should. Just because I'm a girl, I guess. I can't see any other reason.

What on earth can I do? If I try to talk about it, my mother doesn't say much, but it's plain that she is hurt and shocked that "her little girl doesn't want to help her." So I do it, but I'm nearly at the end of my row. I just can't get rested. Please help me. PEGGY.

What'll you do? Use your brain and make mother use hers.

"But mother cries," you say.

Of course she cries. Tears are a perfect way to escape facts. And even the dearest of mothers use their little racket in order to get their own way.

DESERVES SAME BREAKS

So then, what?

So then, Peggy, you must go ahead and establish your right, regardless of Mamma's sobs. And you must do it for the sake of her happiness, as well as your own. The present arrangement isn't resulting in happiness for anyone—and it is growing worse fast. You're losing out on life every day, and presently you'll begin to hate your mother and say it's all her fault.

But it isn't her fault. We must protect our lives in the home as well as outside it. You would know how to protect yourself against the selfish unfairness of an office boss. Then you must learn how to protect yourself against the sentimental injustice of a home boss.

And if you won't do it, it'll be your own bad luck, and you'll deserve it.

So put it up to your mother that you refuse longer to carry two jobs. Make her see that your job is as real as Bob's and that you are entitled to the same consideration after your day's work is done. Tell her that she must permit you to pay board or you'll get out, as thousands of other girls have done

For a working woman is entitled to the same breaks as a working man.

That's my answer to Peggy. What's yours?

Fay King Finds Nothing Desirable in Undeserved Praise

By FAY KING

Few persons are actually all their reputations make them to be. Reputation is either too favorable or too unfavorable.

Enthusiasts refuse to admit a single flaw in those they admire. Detractors will not grant a single good point in those they do not admire.

Yet of the two I should prefer to be unfairly "panned" than unfairly praised. One must feel very unworthy indeed to enjoy a better reputation than one's character deserves.

A careful, clever person can seem so much better than he really is, while a careless, thoughtless person often seems much worse.

But each knows in his own heart what he really is!

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Sharp Ears Detect Suspicious Sounds

Hugh was silent for a second or two after my father's question, and when he did speak it was in the voice of one puzzled over some problem to which there seemed no slightest clue.

"Frankly, I am all at sea," he said at last. "Never before have I known Lee Chow even to consider accepting the easy post in any adventure, let alone proposing it himself. And yet, he has so much wisdom and balanced judgment that I am sure he would pursue just this course if he felt that any weakness of his was hampering the rest of us."

"His voice and appearance are not those of a weak man," my father commented, musingly.

"No, they are not," Hugh answered promptly. "Furthermore, he is sapient enough to know that we would not need him for his strength, but for his counsel. I don't know. It's a Chinese puzzle, if you'll excuse the atrociousness of the pun. But I have a lurking though unreasoning suspicion that he has not told us the real reason for his remaining with Samuel Brixton while the rest of us go on."

"I agree with you," my father said. "But—I wonder if he realizes how much he is hampering us by his secrecy."

MADGE WATCHFUL

"I am afraid he never thinks of that angle of the situation, at all," Hugh replied ruefully. "As I told you before, he plays a lone hand, and never discloses what he is planning until he has every thread of his problem untangled and arranged in orderly fashion. Of course that makes it possible for him to appear at the end of an undertaking like a god from the machine, but it's rather harrowing for the nerves of his coadjutors."

"Well!" My father's tone held dismissal of something irritating. "We shan't have long to wait for all the answers, now."

"No, indeed," Hugh answered perfunctorily, and there was no further word exchanged between the two men until we had reached our destination. In front of us, Harry Underwood and Philip Veritzen also were silent, patently conserving all their energies for the task before them.

Mary and I, feeling distinctly like fifth wheels, knew better than to intrude any question or suggestion of ours into that tense silence, and our ascent of the final stretch was marked by no sound save the occasional snapping of the small dry branches scattered along the path.

SUSPICIOUS SOUNDS

It was perhaps five minutes after Hugh's last words to my father that there came over me a queer little feeling that I have often experienced in moments of stress, when my nerves are keyed to concert pitch. It is a warning to watch and listen, and sub-consciously I began to strain my ears for any extraneous sounds, while my eyes searched the darkness around me.

At first I heard nothing save our own footsteps and the sound of labored breathing, as the constantly increasing grade took its toll of us. Then—I wondered if it were my fancy—or did I hear the sound of snapping dry branches a little way to the right of us?

I knew how close to each other some of these winding mountain paths were, and that it was quite possible for a climber to be so near to us, though invisible because of the darkness, as to enable us to hear the snapping of branches beneath his feet.

Yet, who could be on the mountain-side at this hour? There were no houses near save the shack where Marion and Carolyn were imprisoned; no one who could have any possible errand in this direction unless a member of our rescue party, or of the gang holding the girls in their power.

I knew the whereabouts of every member of our party, from Ronald, guarding his sick mother back at the hotel, to my father, just behind me, on whose account I was growing steadily more concerned because of the steepness of the trail. If my imagination were not playing me false, the sound of snapping branches could only mean one thing—we were being trailed by some sentinel of the kidnapers whom our men had overlooked in their stealthy roundup, and the attack upon the shack would lose its greatest asset—the element of surprise.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Birthday Card

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I work for a lady who goes South for a few months each year. She told me when her birthday is and I have been wondering if it would be correct for me to send her a nice birthday greeting card for her birthday?

2—Is this form of printed stationery proper for a young girl to use? WONDERING.

1—I am sure that your employer would be most happy to receive a birthday greeting card from you. Choose a very simple one, plain and good-looking.

2—I think you must have forgotten to send me the piece of paper that you meant to inclose, for it was not in your letter, and your note was written on plain paper. If you will send me a sample of the paper you mean, I shall be delighted to talk this over with you.

The Bride's Choice

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am intending to get married soon, my father is dead. My sister says it is proper to have my grandfather — my father's father — give me in marriage. I don't think he could fill this place very well. Could it be one of my father's brothers or mother's brothers? I have no brothers, only one brother-in-law. What do you think is proper? B.

It is for you, the bride, to choose the one whom you would prefer to have present you in marriage. If you would prefer to have an uncle present you in marriage, don't hesitate to do this. You probably have a favorite uncle who would love to have you ask him to do this. It is just as good form for you to have your uncle give you in marriage as it is for you to have your grandfather do this.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Include Building Foods in the Child's Dietary

What a pity that there should ever be a failure to regard the necessities of the children!

Dr. Copeland

Perhaps there never was another time when the health of the little ones needed to be guarded as at present. When we are enjoying the good things of life let us not forget the thousands of little ones who are without good food. They must get on without vitamins and nourishing things to eat that are so essential to health and welfare.

One of the things that every mother must remember is this: There are foods which satisfy the appetite, but which do not build bone and tissue. That is why it is necessary to know exactly what foods are essential to the welfare of the growing child.

The mother can do no more important thing than to make a study of food combinations. She should do this in order that she may give her little one exactly the sort of nourishing food it must have if it is to develop normally. It is the pride of every mother to have her child vigorous of health, pink of cheek, clear of eye, and energetic in every particular. The child cannot have all these good qualities unless the feeding is exactly right.

I wish I had time and space to go extensively into the matter of infant feeding, and the feeding of young children. Of course I cannot do that today, but I can say one thing which I know is true and the observance of which is sure to be helpful. I refer to the fact that every child must have at least a quart of milk every day.

We cannot expect growth to be perfect, we cannot expect the tissues to be strong or the bones sturdy, unless the lime, phosphorus and other minerals which are found in milk, shall be given to the child in unstinted quantities. That is why it is so necessary that there should be in the dietary of every youngster a full supply of milk. Likewise, of course, it is wise to give vegetables and fruit to supply the minerals and vitamins, so that the stimulating quantities of those substances may be guaranteed to the child.

You will forgive me if I speak feelingly on this subject. I do so because I feel strongly. The fate of every child depends on the feeding.

Miss E. C. Q.—What can be done for swelling under the eyes? What causes this condition?

A.—This may be due to a kidney condition. Have examination so that definite advice can be outlined.

Reader. Q.—My 16-year-old son has a patch of gray hair at the roots above his forehead. He has a splendid growth of dark hair. What can be done for the gray patch?

A.—Nothing can be done. The trouble is probably due to loss of pigment or coloring matter. If the hair is healthy there is no cause for worry.

GLENWOOD BOY SHOT AT PLAY

Ten-year-old Ralph Wolititch, of 201 Renova street, Glenwood, was in South Side Hospital today with a bullet wound in the side inflicted, police say, by another boy during a marble game near their homes late yesterday.

From his hospital cot, Ralph told police he and several others were playing marbles, when the boy, watching the game said:

Ralph said he saw no revolver and picked up his marbles. A bullet struck him in the side.

From the boy accused of the shooting police said they learned that he drew the revolver in a spirit of fun and it was discharged accidentally. He was arrested, but because of his age the Sun-Telegraph will not publish his name.

BUS, AUTO CRASH IN MT. LEBANON

Mrs. Dorothy Malone, 49, of 5906 Bryant street, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today with a possible fracture of the spine suffered in a collision between a bus and an automobile in Marlin drive, Mt. Lebanon, late yesterday.

Mrs. Malone was riding in the automobile with her daughters-in-law, Mrs. Mazie Malone, 28, of 5909 Bryant street, and Mrs. P. W. Malone, 5906 Bryant street, and her grandchildren, Dorothy Jane Malone, 4, and Dale Malone, 6 months old, driven by Mrs. P. W. Malone's mother, Mrs. Frances B. Wilson, of 1225 Illinois avenue, Dormont.

An Oriole motor coach collided with the machine, police said. The automobile passengers other than Mrs. Malone suffered shock and bruises.

Two years later, she testified, she saw her husband in Chicago and declared he was then living with another woman.

POLITICS
Workmen's Insurance Job to Come Here
—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, April 4.—W. Jack Stitler, manageer of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund, is to be displaced by an Allegheny countian, selected by Senator Frank J. Harris and approved by Senator William D. Mansfield.

Mr. Shields

This will be the first major recognition recorded the Crafton Senator recently by the Pinchot administration, and he probably will offer the name of Howard Devlin as successor to Stitler.

Devlin is the Democratic member of the Pittsburgh Civil Service Commission, but has been closely associated with Harris, and has probably more friends among the Republican wing of politics than the Democrats. Devlin's elevation would offer the chance for a Lawrence Democrat on the Civil Service Commission.

Stitler was the Dauphin County chairman in the last Pinchot campaign, and the appointment he now vacates was his reward. It is understood he will become affiliated with an insurance company, but there were reportts that his resignation was not unwelcome to the administration, which wished to make some new awards to friends.

* * *

Harris Firm Ally Of Pinchot Forces

Harris has stood with the Pinchot forces on practically every legislative encounter, though in past primaries he has often supported the candidate of the regular wing of the party. This has counted against him somewhat in the distribution of patronage, despite his anti-organization attitude in the Senate, and he has not been able to bring home the bacon to his friends in Allegheny County as did his brother, the late John P. Harris, whom he succeeded in the Senate.

When Judge Ralph H. Smith was appointed to a vacancy in Common Pleas Court a short time ago, Harris had as a candidate for the position Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay.

When Lindsay was shunted aside for Smith, through the instrumentality of Mansfield, Harris was understood to have told the Governor that he was not surprised, that he was not accustomed to being recognized.

The episode, however, caused no rift between the two independent senators for Harris approved Smith so long as Lindsay was not to be named. This accord is working in the appointment to the Sitler vacancy and it is understood that the approval of neither Judge Smith or County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is to be required before the selection finally is announced.

* * *

First Recognition For Some Months

Appointment of an Allegheny Countian even though it be not Devlin to the post, which pays $7,500, is the first time in months that the western county has been recognized in the filling of a place, the holder of which functions outside of Allegheny County.

The last good paying job was that of William B. Rodgers, as head of the State Board Emergency Relief Board. Mr. Rodgers, like Devlin, is a Democrat in politics and was with Pinchot, rather than the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, John Hemphill, in the campaign of 1930.

His selection was generally credited to McGovern, who before then, and now, has complained that Mr. Pinchot got his votes in Allegheny County when a candidate, but distributed plums to Philadelphia from which he never received much but abuse.

McGovern tried without avail to have a Pittsburgher named to the Public Service Commission, and, though Pinchot has named five members of this seven-man commission during his present term, four of them came from Philadelphia, if P. S. Stahlnecker can be classed as a resident of the eastern city, and the fifth came from the little county of Cameron.

Perhaps Mr. Pinchot is fixing the fences for 1934, and if a candidate for the U. S. Senate then, wants to put Allegheny County in a good humor.

Salus Offers Bill To Provide Program

Senator Samuel Salus last night introduced in Senate a resolution for a joint legislative committee to meet prior to each session and perfect a program upon which Senate and House could launch themselves when they get to Harrisburg. It might not be a bad idea. It might work. It might not, but nothing could be worse than the biennial morass which now occurs, and which is worse this year than for several sessions.

It is a rule of the House that no bill can be voted on unless it is on desks of the members, theoretically that they may inform themselves of what they are approving or negativing.

Within the past two weeks, Speaker Talbot has thrice halted the roll call after it has been run half through when informed by one of his aides that the bill under consideration was not in print for final action. Members had voted perfunctory approval until the time the Speaker stopped them. Of course, they didn't know what it was all about when they were voting—or some didn't.

With the mass of bills to be considered, it is unreasonable to expect any member to be familiar with all. He must take the word of friends that a bill is good or bad, else nothing would ever get done.

But you would think that a deliberative body would at least know that the bill on which a vote was being taken was not in print.

Ain't Legislatures wonderful?

Many Park Squatters Shot by Gunmen in Armored Automobiles

Gabriel Over the White House

CHICAGO GANGSTERS MASSACRE SQUATTERS

* * *

In a top-floor room in a Chicago hotel just outside the "Loop," six leading representatives of the city's underworld were in conference.

Three men sat at a round table on which stood half a dozen empty glasses. Two others were talking together in low tones, in a corner. The sixth stood alone by the fireplace facing the others.

This last was Wolfgang Miller — "Wolf" Miller to friend and foe. He was the acknowledged and feared leader of Chicago gangdom. He ran no special racket of his own, but drew a liberal rakeoff from all the others.

Any suggestion that he was a racketeer infuriated him. He called himself a politician.

In his power lay the secret of his unchallenged domination of the gangsters. The chief of police, several judges, and even the mayor himself feared his political machine. A product of the "bad lands," he had outgrown his environment, was better dressed, better educated, better mannered and more mentally acute than most political bosses and a marked contrast to the flashy roughnecks who actually operated the city's rackets.

The Borellis were twin brothers who peddled liquor at wholesale. Together they were probably the richest men present. They had an elaborate organization, both in Chicago and in Canada, and a fleet of airplanes and motor boats.

Mario Borelli crossed the room to speak to Miller:

"All right, we come in and put up our share, Wolf, but there is just one condition."

"There would be," Miller growled in undisguised contempt. Black hatred shone for a moment in Mario's eyes, but his smile broadened.

"Yes," he went on soothingly, "Jackson Park's in our territory. We—my brother and me—take charge of this job but we don't want no outside help. The dark's dangerous for a mixed mob and if others come in something might slip."

Accept Gang Plan

"Red" Andy pushed back his chair and stood up. "Yuh accusin' me of double crossin', you dirty wop?" he barked.

"Wolf" intervened: "Shut up, Andy! If the Borellis here want to do it on their own it gives us more men for the main job. You in on this, Spike?"

"You, Greeny?"

Joe Greenbaum, boss of the South Side and interested in every racket in the city from beer to brothels, slowly took a new cigar and lit it before he replied.

"It's jake with me, boys, but I'm not all worked up about it. Yuh ain't convinced me that our grief is due to them damn squatters. I guess more'n half the trouble is that folks are poor and our booze prices too high. I wish some of yuh wise guys 'ud tell me what's going to happen after me make them hoboes scram. We're going to light a hell of a fire that'll make it pretty damn hot for all of us."

* * *

Two nights later four squatters were talking to some girls on the fringe of Jackson Park. It was bright moonlight. They said goodnight and moved off toward their camp. Less than a minute later the girls heard a burst of machine-gun fire and stopped briefly to listen. But when there were no further sounds, they moved off toward home.

In the morning four men were found dead at the junction of one of the park pathways. The next night seven more squatters were killed in different sections of the park. The camp leader, a man named Jack Bronson, went to the chief of police, who told him that his men were too busy guarding shops and stores in the business quarter to patrol the park.

Bronson obtained an interview with the Mayor to ask for protection. The Mayor told him that he would not supply aid to lawbreakers and that he had better evacuate the park and tell his men to return to their homes.

Jobless Raid Armory

That night Bronson organized guards at the entrances and collected automatics and ammunition for them. Just before dawn, two of the posts were attacked by men in armored cars. The guards were withdrawn and a ring of sentry posts placed around the camp. But each night added to the toll of casualties. Bronson, a man of some resource, organized a surprise raid on a store of rifles and ammunition in a National Guard armory, which was bloodless and successful.

With 40 rifles and ample ammunition, he prepared for the unseen assassins.

Bronson realized he was in a hopeless position. Half of his men had deserted and the rest were thoroughly demoralized. He made up his mind to march to Springfield.

With 3,000 men he started on his long march. He had an-

Fishing Tackle Goes With 'Army' To Open Spaces
—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We're jealous of those 250,000 job-army boys who start for the woods next week.

We've read President Roosevelt's message and there ain't nothing to stop you from taking a fishing rod along.

All you have to do is to plant trees, and the toughest job will be chasing a razor-back hog to get an acorn back.

It's a real vacation in the springy outdoors with pay. Most of us have to wait until August for ours.

You may have to sew a button on once in a while. But not as many as at West Point. And it's about the only job left you don't have to prove you're a Democrat to get.

MAID'S SLAYING NOW LAID TO SWINDLE
Bogus Stock Dealer Killed Woman, Police Theory

Ferris said he favored the theory that the man took the money from Miss Lindberg to buy stock for her, then, failing to do so, beat her to death.

The maid was found dead in an alley near Peabody High School Saturday night.

Her friends said she had "a date" that night, presumably with the killer, but the police have been unable to identify him.

Ferris said that Miss Lindberg was interested in stocks and bonds and had a few shares among her possessions.

GIRL STRIKERS BEAT WORKMAN

UNIONTOWN, April 4.—Two hundred shouting girl strikers attacked and beat a male worker at the Berkowitz shirt factory here today.

William Grundy was standing on the running board of a truck which was moving into the plant when the girls pulled him to the ground, dragged him several feet and pulled off some of his clothes.

Other men rushed from the factory and rescued Grundy.

FLED JAIL HERE, HELD IN PHILA.

Thomas Mitchell, the 28-year-old federal prisoner who escaped from Allegheny County Jail by jumping from a kitchen window 15 feet from a city patrolman last September 17, has been captured.

Philadelphia police arrested him there late last night. County Detective Charles Stewart will leave today to bring him back. The prisoner faces an escape charge placed against him by Warden John McNeil.

At the time of his getaway, Mitchell, alias Thomas Bowder, was held as a fugitive and in connection with the interstate theft of automobiles.

A GAME: AIR-STEERED TRUCK, EASIL HANDLED, MUSTN'T KNOCK OVER ANY BARRELS

'FIXLESS' TAGS CUT INCOME

If you get a traffic tag, go to court. It may save you money, according to a compilation by the City Controller on fines turned over to the city by Traffic Court the first three months of this year.

The new "fixless" tags were distributed for 18,513 separate offenses. Motorists who paid their fines by mail, without appearing, numbered 8,748. Of 3,788 drivers who chose to go before Magistrate J. Scott Morgan, only 357 were fined, the remaining 3,451 being discharged as not guilty.

The Controller's records show also the city has collected less money during the first quarter under the fixless tag system than it did for the same period of 1932, when former type tags were used.

Magistrate Morgan's court has turned over a total of $11,496 in fines to the treasury for the first three months of this year. In 1932, fines totaling $14,030.25 found their way into the coffers during the same period.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Ruth Bryan Owen is going as ambassadoress to Denmark, or Sweden, or Norway, or one of those (Americans will never become civilized enough to tell a Swede from a Dane, or a Norwegian from a Swede). I know the difference means a lot to them, but it just means another tall blonde to us. Well, anyhow, Roosevelt is trading Ruth to that part of the country for Greta Garbo, and it's the only bad trade he has made since he got in. Ruth's got it on her anyway you jump. Those three countries we have always thought a lot of (even if we don't know 'em apart). They built up our great Northwest, and when we send the talented daughter of our great commoner, we are giving 'em the best we got. Yours, WILL.

FIRE DAMAGES SYNAGOGUE

The roof of the synagogue of Congregation Shaare Tefillah, Miller street near Foreside place, was swept by fire that resulted in injury to two firemen last night.

The blaze broke out anew shortly before midnight, but was quickly extinguished. Ladderman Joseph Ross, of No. 5 Company, and Hoseman W. A. Ostermeyer, of No. 30, were injured and treated at hospitals. Ross was hurt at both fires.

Two months ago fire damaged the basement of the edifice.

Twenty-five persons were attending the services when last night's fire broke out. Aided by others who rushed in from the street, they carried 30 sacred scrolls to the nearby home of Rabbi Samuel Hausman.

Deputy Chief Louis J. Conley estimated damage at $6,000.

Two Men Injured, Police Seek Cause

Robber Takes Purse Of Woman on Porch

STEERS TRUCK BY AIR POWER

Truck driving is the newest field opened to women. This because it is no longer necessary to have arms of steel to guide the giants of the highways. A child can do it with the new air-steering control perfected by the Bendix-Westinghouse Automotive Air Brake Company.

Following a demonstration in New York today for an omnibus company requiring buses to dodge elevated railroad pillars and other obstructions, the company received an order for 65 units, according to a telegram received here.

But D. W. Scott, an executive of the company, says:

"Its safety factor is one of its main features. A driver will be less fatigued by one-fifteenth of the normal effort of driving and will be less liable to cause an accident."

In a private test, the same truck was driven across the continent by air-controlled steering.

OLD DOG LOSES SHOWDOWN IN COURT
Master and Playmate Weep Over Sentence 'To Protect Society'

Sandy must be killed by noon Friday to "protect society," Visiting Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County, ruled today. This decision came in a legal showdown with the dog's master, Frank Sechan, of Versailles Township.

After the judge had spoken the words that sealed the fate of the kindly old mongrel he had raised from a pup, Sechan walked out of the room with tears in his eyes. His little daughter, Olga, sobbed frantically, for she and Sandy had been playmates for seven years.

COURT DRAMA

Sandy, whose soulful eyes seem to show his sense of impending danger, became the center of an unusual court drama after he is alleged to have bitten Gordon Zawaski, 4.

Judge Reed placed his master on a six-month parole on condition the dog be executed and court costs of $250 and the hospital bill for the Zawaski boy be paid. Sechan has been out of work for three years.

Observing the conditions had not been complied with, the court declared:

"Society must be protected from vicious dogs. He is liable to maim human beings. Is the defendant ready now to have the dog killed?"

LAWYER'S PLEA

Sechan stood mute. Attorney Charles D. Coll, obtained for Sandy's defense through the interest of a Carrick woman, pleaded:

"I, myself, would go to jail before I'd kill my own dog. This defendant told me he couldn't kill Sandy."

The court stipulated no method of execution for the dog. Neither did the judge name an executioner.

Recalling that Sandy had taken a nip at Constable Gordon Cargo as he walked through the Sechan yard, Judge Reed said:

"I can assign the police officer who was bitten to kill the dog, but in the ordinary case, the man who maintains the nuisance is the one who should abate it.

"If the dog is not killed by Friday noon, you must come in here for sentence."

Ordered to Hen House, Man Seeks Divorce

His wife drank to excess, disgraced him before friends and told him to move into the chicken coop, Clarence E. Ryan, of 1190 Cedar boulevard extension, Mt. Lebanon, charges in a divorce suit against Irene A. Ryan, 1194 Cedar boulevard extension.

The husband avers:

"Last January the respondent, while intoxicated came to my bedroom, took off the bedclothes, broke the window and the lock on the door, and the next day told me to move to the chicken coop. For years she has nagged me and brought me into disgrace with my friends."

He charges that on September 2, 1925, he found his wife "in a hotel room with a man and registered under the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stern."

In 1925 while he was visiting friends in Perrysville avenue, Ryan sets forth, his wife followed him and threw bricks through the window.

In 1930 Ryan says he permitted Mrs. Ryan and their two daughters to occupy his home in North Highland avenue and gave her an allowance of $350 a month. His wife pawned her jewelry, he declared, and it cost him $700 to redeem it.

PROPOSE LOCAL JUDGES TRY VOTE CASES

That all election cases be handled by Allegheny County judges is the recommendation of the Committee on Judiciary of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

The committee also recommends to the judges that it should be the policy in future election cases which involve actual fraud that a defendant who pleads or is found guilty receive a jail sentence in the absence of unusual or extenuating circumstances.

The report says:

"It seems that in the past it has frequently been the practice of district attorneys to recommend, and upon his recommendation it has been the practice of the court to order the placing of a defendant on probation even though guilty of election fraud."

URGE RECORD MADE

In all cases of parole and probation, it is recommended that a record be made by the court of its reasons for the disposition made of the motion.

Where there are motions to nolle prosse, it is suggested the reasons for the motion instead of being stated orally at the bar as heretofore shall be made in writing by the district attorney and filed on record, and that this rule shall apply not only to election cases but to all cases of importance.

After tabulating the cases growing out of the elections of 1931, the committee gives the opinion that the judges in their disposition of the cases are not justly subject to criticism.

GARDNER AGREES

Judge Samuel H. Gardner, presiding in Criminal Court, informed that the Bar Association committee desired the use of Allegheny County judges in election frauds cases, said:

"The general policy is that all election fraud cases as well as all cases of a political character shall be tried by local judges. That plan will be followed while I am presiding."

In the cases arising from the 1931 elections, the committee reports that 232 persons were indicted. Of this number, 154 came before Allegheny County judges and 78 before visiting judges.

Of those coming before Allegheny County judges, 81 were found guilty or pleaded guilty, while before the visiting judges seven were found guilty or pleaded guilty.

Of the 81 cases tried by Allegheny County judges, only 40 involved actual election frauds, the remainder being technical violations of the law.

25 GET PROBATION

In disposing of the election cases coming before them, the Allegheny County judges placed 25 defendants on probation, sentenced 13 to jail from which they were afterwards paroled, suspended sentence on one and fined and sentenced one to jail.

The visiting judges placed two on probation, fined and sent to jail two who were later paroled, fined and placed on probation one, suspended sentence on one, and nolle prossed one after an order for a new trial was granted.

The report was submitted by William A. Challener, chairman; Charles A. Woods, Jr., Joseph S. Rosenbaum, H. Stewart Dunn, Park J. Alexander, Robert A. Applegate, Horace F. Baker, H. V. Blaxter and M. W. Acheson.

INDICT NINE IN CULT MURDER

INEZ, Ky., April 4.—(AP.)—The slaying of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, aged mountain mother, as the climax of weird religious practices was charged in an indictment returned today to nine of her close relatives. Trial of the case was set to start Thursday morning. It was indicated the defense would seek separate trials.

The woman, in her late 60's and owner of a farm of approximately 600 acres near Tomahawk, in the mountains west of here, was found choked to death and bound in chains last February in the home of a son-in-law, Tommy Boyd.

Witnesses at the preliminary hearing said she was sacrificed to prove the power over death of members of the small cult after days and nights of praying and fasting and talking in "the unknown tongue" had worked them up to a religious frenzy.

The indictment returned before Circuit Judge J. F. Bailey did not say how the woman was killed nor specify any one of the accused as the actual slayer. It charged murder, conspiracy to murder and aiding and abetting against all nine named in it.

The nine named were John H. Mills, 33, the victim's son, and his wife, Alma Mills; Fred Mills, a son, and his wife, Trixie Mills; Mollie McGinis and her husband, Blaine McGinis; Mrs. Ora Moore, a daughter; Tommy Boyd, a son-in-law, and Ballard Mills, a grandson.

HOME TALENT FOR TEACHING JOBS URGED

The Citizens' Committee of McKees Rocks paid a surprise visit to the McKees Rocks School Board last night. The board was in session at Hamilton Public School to elect teachers for the next semester.

The committee of 35, headed by Frank F. Wilde, asked that qualified home talent be given preference over out-of-town applicants. He said:

"If home talent is hired they naturally will spend their earnings in the community. Merchants, who are taxpayers, will benefit. But, if out-of-town teachers are hired they will spend their salaries in their respective towns."

Demanding that the board keep politics out of the school system, he continued:

"The McKees Rocks Board of Education was elected by the people and it is their duty to serve the people and not to allow any politicians to interfere with the school system."

C. K. Johnston, superintendent of schools, promised the delegation he would recommend hiring of all qualified home talent. The board evaded the political question and Wilde hinted action would be taken to bring them to realize the school system was not a playground for politicians.

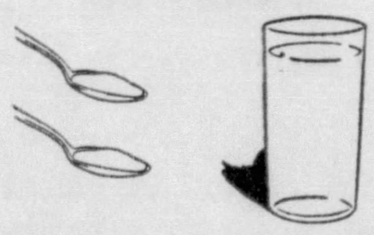
ACID STOMACH EASY NOW TO CORRECT

Just Do One Thing—That's All

THE SIGNS OF ACID STOMACH

Nervousness	Sour Stomach	Loss of Appetite
Neuralgia	Mouth Acidity	Frequent Headaches
Indigestion	Nausea	Feeling of Weakness
Auto-intoxication		Sleeplessness

WHAT TO DO FOR IT



TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

THROWING KNIVES BLINDFOLDED!

ILLUSION:
You see knives flash from the magician's hand and plunge into the board, framing the girl so closely that she cannot move.

EXPLANATION:
Here is one way the blindfold knife throw is done: The knife thrower lets the knife go over his shoulder into the wings. The knife that you see quivering beside the girl is another knife. The girl standing against the board presses at the right place and a knife is sprung from behind the board into position.

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

A clever trick employed in cigarette advertising is the illusion that manufacturing processes account for mildness in a cigarette.

EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes are made in much the same way. Cigarettes vary greatly in mildness because they vary greatly in the quality of tobaccos used. Mildness, as well as character and good taste, depends upon the quality of tobaccos used.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is the most important statement ever made in a cigarette advertisement. Weigh its words. Consider what it means. Smoke Camels critically and learn to appreciate what costlier tobaccos can mean to you in mildness, in throat-ease . . . in added pleasure! Other cigarettes, we believe, will taste flat and insipid to you forever after.

BOY PUTS BEAN IN EAR, DIES OF MENINGITIS

Like any boy, Billy Mulkern, 8, didn't think so much of staying in a schoolroom when the weather warmed up.

Then Billy heard about a boy in St. Francis De Sales Parochial School in McKees Rocks. That boy had inserted a bean in his ear and then complained, truthfully enough, he had an earache. He was excused from classes for the day.

So Billy and two of his friends tried the idea. That was two weeks ago. Somehow the plan failed. Billy was the only one who left the bean in his ear.

It was in there a week when Billy told his mother, Mrs. Mark Mulkern, of 117 Frustom street, Esplen, that his neck was paining him.

Doctors finally removed the bean, but the ache remained. They took Billy to the Municipal Hospital Sunday.

He died last night of meningitis.

nounced his intention overnight, with the object of preventing any night shootings, but the gangsters took toll.

The first day's march out of Chicago brought Bronson's men to a large vacant lot in the grimy suburbs, where they spent the night under a kindly sky. Next morning they started off early, Old Glory flying in the middle of the column, with Bronson following closely behind, talking with two of his lieutenants.

The squatters straggled on, some singing, all looking forward to the next halt. Suddenly shouts arose from the front ranks as two heavy closed cars bore down with reckless speed on the marchers. The morning air was filled with angry cries: "Keep to the right—God, they've knocked 'em down—look out there!" In a panic men scurried to the side of the road as the machines hurtled past.

Bronson Slain

The cars were alongside of Bronson and the flagbearers. They slowed down. Through cracked windows machine guns belched red flame, again and again. Ex-Sharpshooter Bergmann had an army rifle. Reacting subconsciously to his army training, he took aim at the first car, fired. Nothing happened. He aimed at the second car. There was a narrow slit for the driver and his companion to see out of. Bergmann methodically sighted on the slit. In the first car a shutter dropped. From it a shot merged with the crack of the sharpshooter's rifle. Bergmann turned half round and fell dead. Inside the second car a discussion arose as to what was to be done with the body of "Red" Andy, who sprawled in the front seat with a bullet through his head.

Whatever had been the gangsters' motive, they succeeded in setting alight a flame which ultimately was to consume them and rid the United States of its greatest shame. Riddled with bullets, Jack Bronson grasped the American flag as he went toppling down into bloody dust to become a symbol, a challenge, a hero for the nation.

CHAPTER V

The usually placid atmosphere of the White House grew more tense and electric as the days passed.

Attempts had been made in one or two places to emulate the dispersal of the Chicago squatters, but because the bootleggers' local organizations were not efficient enough or they were intimidated by the growing anger of the people, they were only half-hearted affairs, confined in the most part to desultory sniping.

When with the permission of the Governor the President sent a small detachment of Federal troops for the protection of the squatters in New York City, in which the gangster element was fairly powerful, his action was widely acclaimed, though there were murmurings in Congress and a hostile undertone in some of the eastern papers.

President Hardened

Pendie and I found the President very difficult these days. He had enrolled an army of secretaries, stenographers and messengers, working them almost to death.

I hardly ever saw the President for more than a few moments at a time.

Hammond was making no attempt to placate anybody. The slightest hitch or difficulty or slowness on the part of on official occasioned furious anger. He listened to no excuse and dismissed officials and stenographers without apparent cause.

His thinness was becoming accentuated. He hardly bothered with food. His meals usually took the form of sandwiches and coffee carried into his office. His face was more cadaverous and white than during his illness, but his eyes remained bright and penetrating, though often they seemed to glow as if lit with the fires of an inferno.

The Secretary of the Interior had resigned following a stormy interview in which the President had expressed his frank opinion of his capacity.

Two days after the shooting of Jack Bronson, Peale Lindsey came into my room. The President had sent for him and he had just come away from a half-hour's interview.

"Beek," he said as he sank down in the easy chair, "either old Hammond is mad or I am. On the whole I think possibly it is me. I take back all I have ever said. Whatever Hammond may have been in the past, he is not the same man today. Give me a cigaret, will you?" He went on talking.

"I must pull myself together because you and I have got to talk business."

'I Believe in Him'

His inward excitement once more overcame him. He got to his feet and, marching up and down the room, almost declaimed: "The American nation has always found its leader when he was most needed. Shades of Washington and Lincoln! Does it sound like lunacy if I say that I believe it has found the man to get her out of the present mess? Something has come over Hammond.

"I believe in him, Beek. Believe in him more than I've ever believed in anybody. From now on right, or wrong, I'm on his side and I don't think I give a damn which side that is."

"Just for that, Peale, I'm going to kiss you," the slightly husky voice of Pendie broke in. She had entered the room in time to hear the closing sentences of what I felt to be a somewhat theatrical performance.

With great composure and unaffectedness, Pendie crossed to Lindsey and placing both hands on his shoulders, kissed him on the lips. For a few seconds she let her hands linger on him while they looked searchingly into each other's eyes. What they found there I don't know, but their faces shone with an exaltation in which for the first time I realized that love played a part.

It was a simple matter of arranging for the transfer of cash from the President's private account to Peale, but for a purpose so fantastic I could hardly believe it.

Lindsey, whose company controlled one of the more important motion picture production concerns in Hollywood, had been instructed to prepare a film based on the story of the Chicago squatters. In the screen version Bronson was to have a highly melodramatic death with every adventitious aid to simulate sentimentality and patriotism.

Picture Completed

Before the symbolic Bronson finally fell dead, he was to wrap himself in Old Glory and call upon the President as the only savior of the nation. Before his eyes closed, he was to be granted visions of the future of a happy contented country at work and at play.

The President was secretly to pay for this monstrous ballyhoo out of his own pocket.

I was nauseated. It appeared to be cheap, jawdry propaganda and absolutely pointless. I could neither understand Peale's enthusiasm for it nor his praise of its begetter, and said so quite frankly.

* * *

Three weeks later the finished picture was being shown everywhere. From the point of technical quality and camera work it was brilliantly done and the acting was above criticism, but the story was cheaper and more banal than even I had anticipated.

A box office success, it did not cost the President a cent.

No one guessed that Hammond was behind it, of course.

Kuhl, the leader of the squatters, saw his chance and redoubled his efforts at organizing a movement which was in a very short time to become a decisive factor in subsequent American history.

He formed the detached units of squatters into a National Unemployed Citizens' League. The leaders of the isolated encampments were ordered to break camp immediately and march on Washington. Within a few days of the issuing of this order, a quarter of a million men started for the capital.

Kuhl exercised an iron discipline, and the leaders of the various sections copied his example. There was no disorder. Each ragged battalion carried the United States flag in front and close behind were placards bearing pictures of Bronson and, significantly enough, of President Hammond. Their marching song was that of the Chicago eviction, "John Brown's Body," but now the words "Bron-son's Body" were substituted.

I cornered Peale on one occasion as he was passing along the corridor to the President's office.

"It is that damned picture of yours that started all this. Why, the closing part was practically an invitation to Kuhl and the squatters to march on Washington."

Peale looked at me queerly for a second or two. Then, as he turned away abruptly, he shot back:

"You're quite right. It was."

East End Store Held Up by Bandits

Two bandits held up M. A. Baker, manager of a chain store at 424 Collins avenue, near closing time last night and escaped with the day's receipts. Baker was counting the receipts when the bandits entered and ordered him to throw up his hands. They escaped in an automobile.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That a lotta people will foam at the mouth on my birthday, April 7th.

That Fanny Ward wants to play on the same program with Milton Berle—so that she can have her face lifted for nothing!

That the mother of Edwin Markham, the 80-year-old poet, whose "Man With the Hoe" won international fame, was maiden-named Elizabeth Winchell. (Well, now!)

That all floor mops used by the postoffices of the U. S. are made by blind people in a Brooklyn institution. (Okay, Postmaster Farley!)

That the Mamba snake of South Africa is the most poisonous in the world and it can keep up with a fast-paced horse. (Just like some snakes on Broadway.)

That there is a cemetery under the casino at Monte Carlo for the victims who knock themselves off after losing all.

That if a suicide there has no identification he (or she) is quietly put to rest and the secret is rarely revealed.

That in Vienna it is the custom for any employe of a store to welcome the patrons with the words: 'Ich habe die ehre," meaning "I have the honor."

That if you chance to look at a guide book in Denmark—and these items are not from Hellinger, who only sends postcards, the mugg!—it will tell you that Denmark has nine months winter and three months no summer. (Figure that out.)

That in Glasgow, Scotland, there is a little box affixed to every street car reminding passengers that if they haven't paid the fare they should kindly drop the coins in the box. (Fency thet!)

That America is the only country in the world where you can get matches without paying for them. Theater programs are also given to you free in America. You pay a fee for the theater programs in Europe.

That life may be a bowl of cherries, but they are out of season.

That in the phone directory here, thanks to Tony Wons (who goes to such great bother) you will find that the New York "zoo" contains 11 Lions, 4 Tigers, 357 Foxes, 1 Leopard, 1 Bear and 45 Bulls.

That the human eye can see millions of miles away. (Oh, no? How about the sun?) Except, of course, on rainy days, you funny mans.

That Harvard was started away back in the 17th century to train ministers. Not to turn out tap dancers, saxophone players and so forth.

That the Hopi Indian women are the "husbands" of the family. The groom even takes the wife's name.

That the Hopi wife who wants to give the air to her husband merely places his saddle outside the door to show him he's no longer wanted. (Or, in other words: "Saddle be all, darling!")

Yacht Awaits Barrymore

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 4.—His yacht is waiting, and plans are all laid for John Barrymore to take an Alaskan vacation, but work may keep the actor in Hollywood yet a while.

One delay may be the lead in "Fugitive From Glory," the picture for which Ernest Schoedsack went to Arabia to film backgrounds. Barrymore signed for the part and Merian C. Cooper indicates the film will be under way in the near future. It probably will precede the actor's appearance with Katharine Hepburn at RKO.

In the Arabian story, Barrymore will play the commandant of a handful of British aviators who police a vast domain of native tribesmen. Hostility of these Arabs is expressed in showers of rocks when an airplane lands and in some cases shots. Schoedsack had several glass shields broken on his plane while making scenes for the film.

Mr. Barrymore

The director spent eight weeks on the expedition, traveling 8,000 miles. He has shots of thousands of native tents on the deserts and of mile-long caravans of camels.

Philip MacDonald wrote the story and is assisting Ruth Ross (Mrs. Ernest Schoedsack) on the screen play.

* * *

Close friends of Mary Pickford now believe there is only a remote chance that she will join with Walt Disney in a production of "Alice in Wonderland." Cost of the picture, it is said, would almost equal that of a regular feature and due to the novelty of a film with only one human player, the element of risk is considered high. It is altogether likely, however, that Mary will make an early start in a picture. "Secrets" is going well everywhere, and she is full of confidence.

Miss Pickford

Meanwhile Douglas Fairbanks is on his way to China to hunt. He wants Doug, Jr., to join him there, but more than likely young Doug will remain in Hollywood. Rumors are he is tired of stardom and wants to become a leading man again. Warner's would like to keep him on this basis.

The Lilian Harvey-Gary Cooper friendship is on again. He was out to Fox to take her to lunch the other day, and they are busy with plans for the race between their two cars.

Travis Banton has turned interior decorator. He is doing over Adrienne Ames' bedroom and playroom while she is in New York . . . You'd be amazed to hear Mae West's theory of the reason why slenderized fashions have come in. Mae herself is a perfect 36. Her measurements, she says, practically duplicate those of the Venus De Milo. Wasn't that the ideal recently set up by Mussolini? . . . That was no phoney about Marlene Dietrich's fall from a horse. She returned to the studio to work yesterday, but had to go home without taking a scene . . . Lew Ayres has been taking Ginger Rogers to the Club New Yorker.

'Fra Diavolo' Sad Devil In Film

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Once upon a time when Scribe was writing plays and Auber was composing operas, "Fra Diavolo" was as popular as that other brigand, "Robin Hood." But that dashing old operetta has little relation to the musical film on the same subject which is being shown at the Avenue Cinema in Italian.

Mr. Seibel

It is the picturesque bandit, but he is represented by a fat tenor, and his fair inamorata is about as alluring as a jointed doll. The whole thing is as stilted as it can be—everybody posing or reading letters and proclamations in well lubricated lingua Italiana.

Only toward the end, when the two chief adventurers disappear by diving through a window, is there any semblance of dramatic action. It all happened in the days when Naples had a king—and the Duke of the Abruzzi still ducoed the peninsula. Such banditti couldn't make a living nowadays, either as tenors or revolutionists.

A further shade of heliotrope is imparted to the program by a mournful comic in which a once popular fat comedian tries to come back with sentimental slapstick, and by a vaudeville film with jests and ditties that weren't funny when Tony Pastor cried for Castoria. Alackaday, this is Lent at the Avenue Cinema!

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Green Pastures," which began its second week in the Nixon last night, will lay off next week, Holy Week. The play will be presented in Cleveland Easter Week. Part of the company will go there after the close of the run here Saturday. Some will remain here with friends while others will go to New York. Richard B. Harrison, "The Lawd," will journey to Chicago to visit his wife, who is ill.

* * *

A possible booking for the Nixon is "Autumn Crocus," English comedy that has been running in New York since Thanksgiving week, and which introduced Francis Lederer, Czech actor, who made himself the season's "matinee idol" in New York. Although he had appeared in the play in London, he was an unknown when he came to America in October. Now he has a movie contract among the evidences of his conquest. The company that will tour is announced to include Mr. Lederer and Dorothy Gish.

* * *

The Little Theater of Homewood will give three one-act plays in the Homewood Library Auditorium Thursday night. They will include "Speaking to Father," directed by Elva Catley; "Thank You, Doctor," directed by John B. Bresch, and "Sauce for the Gosling," directed by Roy E. Henry.

Molly Conn, Yiddish actress of Pittsburgh, who has toured the country for years with her own company, has now established it as the Jewish Theater, Centre Square, Herron Hill. A couple of seasons back Miss Cohn was guest star of the George Sharp Players for a week in an English play, "The Eternal Magdalen." On the opening night her mother was in attendance. Spying a friend she shot a sotto voce sentence across the aisle—in Yiddish. It was a suggestion that the friend be sure to applaud Molly.

Nixon Keeps 'Pastures'

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Green Pastures," Marc Connelly's biblical fable, suggested by Roark Bradford's "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," began the second and final week of its engagement in the Nixon last night. A well pleased audience attested its high esteem of the whimsical allegroy, told in the language of the Southern Negro, and expressed in the ideas of Heaven held by a benignant old darky Sunday school teacher, as expounded to children.

Whether or not the conceptions are racially typical is not important, because they are at least ideally inspired, and are the basis of inspirational acting by the all-Negro company headed by Richard B. Harrison as "The Lawd." Spirituals by the choir add much to the atmosphere of the production, as well as to the enjoyment of the audience.

Director of Gaynor Assigned to Landi

Wilhelm Dieterle, now directing Janet Gaynor and Henry Garat in "Adorable," will next work on "Dressmaker," Elissa Landi's starring vehicle following completion of her work in "I Loved You Wednesday." "Dressmaker" is the shortened "Dressmaker from Luneville," the film adaptation of the play by the famous French dramatist, Alfred Savoir.

Norman Foster Loses Role by Injury

Gene Raymond was signed by Columbia Pictures to play the masculine lead in "Rules for Wives," replacing Norman Foster, who was engaged for the role, but met with an automobile accident, under the direction of Eddie Buzzell. Ray Wray has the feminine lead.

Carrillo Star In Variety

By MILDRED FILLMORE

The Variety marks its first week as a strictly movie house by presenting the best photoplay it has had. This is "Men Are Such Fools" a combination of comedy and drama that has Leo Carrillo doing dialect for the screen as well as he did on the stage in "Lombardi, Ltd." This combination of comedy and drama is unusual, too, in that the comedy is in the lines while the plot is dramatic throughout.

Carrillo is an Italian musician of high artistic ideals who is destined to play second fiddle not only in the orchestra but in the affections of his wife, a beautiful two-timer, well played by Vivienne Osborne. He is a good natured, witty and ambitious, a likeable fellow who goes to jail rather than expose his wife when he beats up an admirer of the lady. Later he kills him, and prison is the place where he triumphs as a musician.

Carrillo does a grand characterization and he is well supported by Miss Osborne. Also by Una Merkle, whom it is a relief to see as something besides a silly little chit; Tom Moore, as a detective; Joseph Cawthorn, as a genial cafe proprietor, J. Farrell McDonald, Earle Foxe and others.

A moving picture, finished in Hollywood at 4 o'clock this morning in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, will interest millions of Americans and stir up considerable thought. It will interest especially the new President of the United States. "Gabriel Over the White House" is the title of the picture and story.

The story told in the picture is truly imaginary, but a million Americans will wish for it to come true.

A new President has been inaugurated, as many have before, and enters the White House to keep promises made privately, after having made numerous promises publicly that are not supposed to be kept.

Then comes an accident, the practical politician President is knocked on the head at exactly the right spot. When he recovers his attitude is changed. He becomes a President for the people of the United States instead of being a President for the bosses. His secretary thinks the Lord must have sent down the Angel Gabriel to work the change.

He dismisses instantly one of his Cabinet, who suggests calling out the Army to suppress the unemployed. He has previously told reporters "unemployment and crime are local problems," but now discovers that those are problems of the United States Government. Formerly he told reporters "the President must not be quoted." Now he says "the President may be quoted, and I want him to be quoted."

He advises his Cabinet to read the Constitution of the United States, telling them: "You will find that the President has a great deal of power and I mean to use that power."

He does use it.

In fact, he becomes the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, not the President of any particular clique or group, or set of bosses and financiers in the United States, and dies at the right moment.

It may be called a very improbable picture, but people will like it, and you want to see it.

All in a Day

ABOARD THE S. S. RESOLUTE, INDIA-BOUND.—I heard another swell yarn last night, which I'd like to let you in on. Of course, I know that I should write more about my experiences on this trip. But doggone it, folks, I've written about almost everything possible since I've boarded this boat. I've told you about some of the passengers, the fancy dress ball, a day in the life of a reporter while passing through the Suez Canal. And a few other things. Accordingly, when I hear a good story, I'm very anxious to pass it along. So:

Last night, while in the barroom, a few of the men on this cruiser were discussing various topics of the day. And when I stepped in for my nightly glass of lemonade, I was immediately invited to join the crowd. The usual barroom conversation continued for a while, until somebody got around to the subject of hidden skeletons.

Now, it has always been my contention that the best of us have skeletons in our closets. Sometimes they mean much less than we think they do. But, with all that, there are episodes in every private life that would not render the individual quite happy should they become known to the world at large.

I voiced my opinion accordingly. But a few of the boys failed to agree with me. Mr. S——, of Pittsburgh, for example, said he'd defy anybody to dig up anything in his past that would embarrass him one teeny bit. Mr. B——, of Los Angeles, made a similar statement. And so on.

The gentleman from Baltimore finally spoke up. He stated emphatically that the others were all wrong in making such statements; that I was perfectly right in saying what I did—and to prove I was, he'd tell them a little story about a man who, today, is one of the most powerful banking officials in the entire world.

The gentleman in question is seldom off the front pages for any length of time. Internationally famous, people refer to him as a financial wizard. If his reputation bears any blemishes, they have never been broadcast. On the surface, he is nothing more than we of the public know him to be: a very important and influential man, riding high on the wave of Big Business.

Some 10 years ago, our Mr. X—to give him a name of some kind—was a capable attorney back in a western city of the States. He was a partner in one of those high-sounding law firms with six names, 20 desks and no conscience. He was no different from many other attorneys—with the exception of the fact that he had a burning ambition to become a great power in the banking world.

To that end he laid his plans carefully and well. For days he sat and pondered as to the best method of procedure. And he finally drafted a crafty scheme that night take years to put through. Nevertheless, he determined to try it.

That night he called an old friend of his upon the telephone. The friend was at the head of one of the most famous law schools of this nation. And Mr. X explained his needs.

"I want two of the brightest men in your graduating class for my office," he said. "They must be experts in analytical work. They must be excellent when applied to research. Do you understand?"

The professor promised to assist Mr. X. And he did. Immediately after their graduation, two young attorneys arrived in Mr. X's law office. They were put to work at salaries of $1,500 a year.

Meanwhile, Mr. X had moved from the apartment he formerly occupied. In accordance with his plan, he purchased a modest home in a town about an hour's ride from his office. In this town lived at least eight men who were great figures in the banking world.

He then commenced to give the two young men in his office work to do that made them wonder.

Each week, each of them was assigned to some particular bit of research work. The most obscure financial problems were given the boys to analyze. They would spend their time in libraries digging up data and preparing briefs for Mr. X.

Upon receipt of these reports, Mr. X would lock himself in his office and study them carefully. He would read them from beginning to end, make notes on a little pad he always carried with him and smile with satisfaction.

Then, that afternoon, Mr. X would make it a point to be aboard the train upon which the millionaire bankers would travel to their homes. He would choose his seat carefully, making certain that he was within earshot of these men. And with him he would have a man from his office who was a good listener.

As soon as the train was under way, Mr. X would bring his conversation around to the report he had that day received. He would talk on and on, refreshing his mind every now and then from the notes he had made.

From the moment he boarded the train until it arrived at his station, he talked figures. And his companion, knowing nothing about what was in Mr. X's hind, marveled at his intelligence as he sat and listened. But he was not the only one who listened.

The millionaires looked forward to the ride home, because they knew Mr. X would be present. And they were quite certain that the man was a genius who as yet was unknown to the banking world. But some day—

For close to two years, Mr. X followed that system. Using the brains of his two brilliant employes, he was able to discuss finance to a remarkable degree. His knowledge of intricate banking technicalities astounded the men who had been listening to him all this time.

By this time, they had become quite friendly with Mr. X. They had arrived at the stage where each and every one of them had already invited him to their homes. It goes without saying, of course, that Mr. X accepted the invitations. And what's more, he had reciprocated. And one and all were just as sappy to accept his invites as he was to accept theirs.

When it came time for a great financial operator in that city to pick a new partner, he called in a number of advisers. Among these men were several who knew Mr. X. And all of them advised the financial operator to see Mr. X. have a talk with him and then make his choice.

The operator agreed to do so. A meeting was arranged. And after talking to Mr. X for about one hour, the operator was very much impressed. So much so, in fact, that Mr. X became the partner of one of the greatest financial geniuses America has ever known . . .

The two men who made Mr. X what he is have both become very successful attorneys in that same city. They often see him in the various clubs around the town.

But when he sees them, he turns the other way and departs hastily. For he is deathly afraid that the real story of his success will some day be told about him . . .

'PERFECT BROADCAST' -:- Fussenfumer Presents 'Kickers' Club Ideas -:- ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Waring Boys Give Radio Interview

Last week Solly Ward, alias Papa Fussenfumer, organized "The Kickers' Club"—an organization with tremendous potentialities in which membership may be gained by any listener by merely proffering a suggestion or squawk designed to further the "perfect radio program's" advance around the corner.

As a result of his aerial activities last week, Solly has made up tonight's program, which takes the air over CBS-WJAS at 10, in accordance with suggestions and requests already seent in by members. Each of his subsequent broadcasts will be built in the same manner.

The submitted ideas are varied, to say the least, ranging from demands for bridge lessons and piccolo solos to a request to drop the whole program into a central African jungle accompanied by specific details of how to get there. (Papa is waiting for excursion rates).

"Snooney" Blair, the unheralded little lady whose "animal imitations" brought forth a flood of favorable comment following her debut on the program, plays a return engagement before the "mike," and the Men About Town and Josef Bonime's orchestra complete the lineup.

Not Garbo---Miss Jasper

Listeners had to be reassured that the Great Garbo herself wasn't speaking when Alice Hill mimicked the star on a California broadcast once. That was Alice's first radio hit. She is heard currently in the role of Thelma Jasper, Jack Arnold's secretary, in the "Myrt and Marge" sketches offered five times weekly on WJAS.

Passion Play Group on Air Sunday

By AIRCASTER

Magnetic storms, which comprise the greatest difficulty broadcasters must face in long-distance short-wave transmission, can be forecast with such accuracy nowadays that it is possible to tell weeks ahead what's to be in the air.

Consequently, CBS engineers, looking up their charts, frowned when program listers decided, without taking this fact into consideration, that Easter would be a fine time to bring over a special musical program from Oberammergau, home of the Passion Play.

These learned gentlemen predicted a serious magnetic disturbance over the Atlantic on Easter, so, past experience having proven that such reception forecasts can be relied upon, the program men advanced their Oberammergau date a week—to next Sunday.

The broadcast, marking the world radio debut of the celebrated Passion Play troupe, will bring to the microphone the famed "Christus," Anton Lang, and the Passion Play chorus and orchestra. The program will take the air from the Passion Play Theater, with C. Hooper Trask doing the descriptions.

A. Boyle, of Windber, Pa., registers a kick with this department. In disgusted vein, demanding "more action and less gab" on sponsored programs, he says a checkup on the First Nighter program reveals that 4¾ minutes of the weekly 30 minutes are devoted to advertising.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Here's a story about some broadcasters we seldom hear about, yet their audience is as steady and as attentive as any that can be boasted by any radio person or program.

To the more than 60 men who ride the police radio cars the voice of WPDU, the Pittsburgh police short wave radio station, means a quickening of the pulse, a hushed attentiveness, an alert readiness to leap into action when the word from the air unleashes their mounting reserve of energy.

Frank S. Verner, the chief, William Gamble, Charles Sproull and their assistants, working eight-hour shifts, inform the various officers of any disturbance of the public peace. Their message may be the simple and oft repeated "trouble in a house," or like the report coming through as I write this is of a daring holdup, giving a description of the men and a warning that they are dangerous characters and all have guns. It is never necessary to say "hurry." The scout car is on its way to the scene almost before the voice of the announcer fades away.

The city fleet is composed of scout cars, emergency cars, and detective cars, more than 30 in all. Two men to a car. The scout cars patrol the neighborhoods, the emergency cars are at the various stations ready to go out on a second call or if a scout car breaks down. Dormont and Crafton have scout cars, too, and they are kept advised by the men of WPDU.

A radio repair car operates 24 hours a day, ready at all times to remove any impairment to the hearing of the "ears" of the force.

* * *

For the lack of something better to do, pause a moment to consider if a frog sat on a log three feet long and jumped half of the remaining distance each time how many jumps to reach the end. Helen wants to know.

KOTEX ANNOUNCES
Patented* Equalizer
in great offer
3 BOXES for 59c

A RADICAL innovation! . . . Not a mere improvement in sanitary protection . . . but something new, different. Kotex, with the New Patented Equalizer! And—look!—offered at a sensationally low introductory price.

Step into any drug, dry goods, or department store. Get three boxes of Kotex with Patented Equalizer, all for 59c! Try the new idea in sanitary protection at a lower price than you pay for ordinary pads!

Insured safety

Kotex, with the New Patented Equalizer, gives 20 to 30% greater protection. The center equalizer not only thickens protection but makes it more adequate, more comfortable—because edges stay dry, removing possibilities of irritation through chafing. An intimate explanation of the new equalizer is given you on the direction sheet inside the package.

Ends must be "phantomized"

Mere rounded ends are not enough. They must be flattened, embossed. Kotex—and Kotex only—offers this special shaping, making it possible to wear the closest-fitting gown without the slightest revealing line. Absorbency, softness, disposability—those qualities for which Kotex is famous—remain unchanged. Remember, too, that it can be worn on either side with equal protection.

Now you can buy Kotex with Patented Equalizer at less than you pay for the usual sanitary pad, at any drug, dry goods or department store.

Yes, it looks simple, but this device took 2½ years to perfect. Imitations can be made, they will be made, but it cannot truthfully be said of any other pad that it is like the New Kotex with Patented Equalizer...and this is why:

1—it took two and one-half years to perfect.
2—a board of three hundred women tested it.
3—medical authority of high repute checked their findings.
4—★AND, the United States Government granted Patent No. 1,863,333 to protect it for use of Kotex, exclusively.

HAPPY?
OH, YES — IT'S JUST GRAND KEEPING HOUSE FOR YOU, LARRY
ARE YOU SURE SCRUBBING CLOTHES ISN'T TOO HARD FOR YOU?
GRACIOUS, DARLING — NOBODY SCRUBS ANY MORE. WASHBOARDS ARE OUT OF DATE
SEE, I JUST SOAK THE WASH IN THESE CREAMY RINSO SUDS. THE CLOTHES COME 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER — AND THEY LAST TWICE AS LONG, TOO
YOU'RE EVEN SMARTER THAN I THOUGHT
Rinso
THAT AFTERNOON
SO LARRY THOUGHT YOU USED A WASHBOARD — AREN'T MEN STUPID?
IMAGINE SCRUBBING MY NICE TROUSSEAU LINENS AGAINST A METAL WASH BOARD! IT WOULD WEAR THEM OUT IN NO TIME
RINSO'S AN OLD STAND-BY IN MY HOUSE, I USE IT FOR DISHES AND ALL CLEANING—IT'S SO EASY ON THE HANDS

'I never scrub—that saves the clothes,' says Mrs. Emma McConnell, 5320 Browns Pl.

"RINSO is my idea of a real work-saver! I use it for the wash, for the dishes, and for all cleaning. A little gives a lot of rich, lively suds—and how those suds save work on washday! Dirt soaks right out and all I need to do is rinse. My clothes are always the whitest ever. I never scrub—that saves the clothes! And what a difference in my hands! They're never red and swollen any more."

The "scrubless" Rinso way makes clothes last 2 or 3 times longer! Great in washers, too; the makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Get the BIG household package.

The Junior League is exhibiting the didoes of the architects and their friends, whose spirits are depression-proof, judging by the 25 exhibits entered in the competition for the Architectural Club's "Soiree Charette."

The sketches are for invitations to be issued to the first two of the club's series of entertainments at the club, Charette way, to be sponsored by the Junior League. The series will benefit unemployed draftsmen.

Jane Wehr Winner

Robert L. Lepper's second prize is definitely moderne in communicating the sensation of a room in a night club, syncopated by design into motion.

Charles M. Stotz admits his dual personality in his third prize of an architect and his lass on a gypsy sort of charette; his other contribution is a comic mask crowning a column as the center of a synthesis of classic detail.

And so it goes from one zany to a zanier with an occasional romantic one like Rody Patterson's atmospheric Trilby characters enveloped in an aura of romance, and willy nilly making a very good study in black and white.

Mildred Floyd Schmertz, an architect-by-marriage (she's Mrs. Robert W. Schmertz), has a rhythmic pattern of dancers.

Honorable Mentions

Rody Patterson, Mrs. Schmertz, C. E. W. Morris, H. Walter Damon and Maurice Parker were singled out for honorable mention.

Mr. Damon's sketch will be used, by the way, for the menu card.

The jury included Norman McGilvary and A. J. Kostellow, artists and teachers at Carnegie Tech's Art School; Mrs. Roberdeau Green Annan, Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland and Miss Dorothy Slack, of the Junior League.

In a recent issue of "The Charette," the Pittsburgh Architectural Club's publication, Mildred, who is named after her mother, submits the following limerick on the beer situation:

"There was an old man named Career
Who got in a terrible smear.
He fell on his ear

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

"Beer bring back prosperity? My Lord!" was the characteristic way in which William Starr Myers, of Princeton, expressed himself on this question before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. The beer bill is no solution of the problem and the country will only find itself tied up more and more in knots, he said.

Mr. Myers spoke with his usual frankness both in approval and criticism of Congress. Congress has risen to heights of statesmanship, he said, commenting on and criticizing several of the bills that have been passed. He reiterated his tribute to Mr. Hoover (that he is one of the greatest presidents the country has ever had) saying that much President Roosevelt has accomplished was made possible by Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Myers takes "the magnificent way" the country met the bank crisis as an indication that America need not be despaired of. He said he would like to see a system that would force every bank to take out a national charter or a federal license and that would bring about complete divorce of commercial annd investment banking. He holds that the right to take your gold when and where you want it is your guarantee against a poor banking system.

To think that President is another Mussolini is the most arrant nonsense that can be held by a supposedly educated people, he went on, remarking that Mussolini has power with accountability. Mussolini is one of the keenest intellects in Europe, Mr. Myers thinks, and as long as there are relations between Italy and the United States and the former is discharging all her international obligations it behooves the American people not to criticize her form of government.

It would be a mistake to recognize Soviet Russia just now, the speaker stated, for he believes it would mean the spread of subversive propaganda. He pleaded for reticence and restraint of judgment where all facts are not known—the present situation in Germany for instance.

Mrs. Max Henrici to Give Illustrated Talk at 'Y'

Mrs. Max Henrici will give an illustrated talk on "At Peace on the Western Hemisphere" before the Bellevue Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary tomorrow, following luncheon in the "Y."

The Rev. P. A. Callery will celebrate the mass and the Rev. Leo A. McCrory will deliver the sermon. After mass the women will go to Council House, where Bishop Boyle will make the address of welcome and a business session will follow. Luncheon will be served at Council House.

The afternoon session will include reports of executive officers and chairman of committees, followed by election of directors. An informal reception and musicale for members, delegates and visitors will be held in the evening at Council House. Election of the executive officers will be held on May 19. The Pittsburgh Diocese includes the 10 counties of Western Pennsylvania.

Tourists 'Visit' Islands And 'Lost Continent'

An unusually fine program was given yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Tourists. Mrs. W. R. Clasper's paper told entertainingly of "Atlantis—the Lost Continent." Mrs. W. R. Clasper spoke concerning the Canary Islands, which, she said, are really the peaks of Atlantis, each one having a character of its own. The islands are the only place in the world where wild bananas are grown, she said.

Next to the Bible, Robinson Crusoe is the most widely read book ever written, Mrs. D. M. Campbell said in her paper about "The Isle of Robinson Crusoe," off the coast of Chile. Mrs. Campbell also described Crusoe's birthplace in Scotland, which she has visited many times. Next Monday the club will have an all-day sewing for the Workshop for the Blind.

Miss Esther Musick is chairman of refreshments; Miss Betty Beatty, of Aspinwall, will be master of ceremonies; Mrs. T. M. Staub is in charge of table reservations; and Mrs. Florence G. Eckhardt is in charge of prizes.

RECORD SPRING FOR NEW SHORTSTOPS

THIS SPRING HAS been a remarkable one in baseball for the uncovering of new shortstops of ability. Like good catchers, capable shortfielders usually are very hard to find, but 1933 shapes up as an exceptionally big year for them. Behind Floyd Vaughan, of the Pirates, who in his second season is tipped to be a riot, an unusual number of newcomers have won success on the training trips at the difficult position. To Bill Werber, of the Yankees; Blondie Ryan, of the Giants, and Marvin Owen, of the Tigers, must be added Bill Knickerbocker, of the Indians.

Floyd Vaughan

Two years ago, Knickerbocker had to hitch-hike to the Cleveland camp to get a trial. Today he is one of the most talked-about rookies in the game. He is fast, smooth and spirited, knows all the shortstopping tricks, and promises to hit better than most shortfielders. Before going South, the Indians had made arrangements to return him to Toledo under a 72-hour option, but Knickerbocker opened their eyes to such an extent that they made haste this week to cancel the agreement, and there is a strong chance that the youngster will start the season as a regular.

PAUL GREGORY, delivering as a pitcher for the White Sox, is one minister's son who did not have to face any parental objections when he picked out professional baseball for a career. His father, of the Methodist clergy, approved his decision and encouraged him.

Gregory attributes his improvement since he joined the Chisox last year largely to the coaching of Ted Lyons. The youngster was almost exclusively a fast-ball pitcher at first, but Lyons taught him a change of pace and a lot of other tricks. Now the recruit has a fine assortment of fast and slow curves and also varying speeds on his fast ball.

IT'S AN OLD story in baseball that a player may look like a star while performing for a tail-end club, and yet prove a dismal failure when shifted to a pennant contender. There have been several instances of this in the majors.

It may be that the player, care free and under no strain of responsibility on a club that isn't going anywhere, lacks the nerve and the steadiness to maintain a winning gait on a club to which every game is important and means something. Or he may have looked good on a tailender partly because opponents do not bear down against a weak team as hard as they do against a pennant bidder.

CHANCES ARE THAT Danny MacFayden will be the newest addition to the list of failures of that type. Pitching for the feeble Red Sox, the bespectacled right-hander looked like one of the best in the game, and it was figured that the Yankees had been strengthened greatly when they obtained him for $25,000 and Pitchers Ivy Andrews, Henry Johnson and Dusty Rhodes. But as soon as he joined the Yanks, MacFayden lost his effectiveness. He didn't do as well in finishing the 1932 season for New York as Andrews, just a part of the purchase price, did for the Bosox. And this spring, Danny's pitching has continued to be so unimpressive that it is expected he will be let out in a short time. The deal for MacFayden was one of the few bloomers ever charged up against the Yankees.

Glenn Wright

THERE IS JOY in the Dodger family over the prospect that Glenn Wright is no longer to be a doubtful quantity. The throwing arm of the former Pirate shortstop, which was a source of deep concern, appears to be in shape again, and talk of Jake Flowers taking his job is out.

While throwing underhand up to a few days ago, Wright insisted that there was nothing wrong with his arm, and that he was only babying it to avoid straining it too early. Recently he proved it by cutting loose with a few of his old-time rifle shots. Manager Carey has warned him to go slowly and not to take too many chances, but is convinced that his worries are over as far as shortstop is concerned.

COCKY ROOKIES WHO think they are good enough to walk right into regular jobs in the majors have a striking opposite in Marvin Duke, the Yankees' young southpaw pitcher from Erie. He thinks he has come up too fast and actually expresses the hope that Joe McCarthy won't keep him, as he believes he is not yet ready.

Duke probably will get his wish, as he is pretty certain to be farmed out again, but the Yankees predict that the modest youngster, a Georgia Tech graduate, will come back later and make good. They say he has a fast ball that will take him places by and by.

THE PLAY-OFFS in the National Hockey League have not interrupted the remarkable record of Murray Murdoch, of the New York Rangers, for continuous service in the lineup of one club. Murdoch has taken part in every game played by the Rangers since they entered the National League, and the play-offs have boosted his grand total to 366 consecutive contests. Of the five original Rangers remaining on the roster, Murdoch is the only one who never has missed a single game. The four others—Bill Cook, Bun Cook, Frank Boucher and Ching Johnson—have spent various vacations on the sidelines through injuries, illness, major penalties and the like, but Iron Man Murdoch always was on the job.

WHERE DOG RACING flourishes, you can name your own price for a hound that has the right sort of blood. This has been made evident in England, where six young sons of Mick the Miller are ranked among the most valuable dogs in the world for their ages.

Mick the Miller is England's most popular greyhound racer, and there is a great demand for his offspring. When they were six weeks old an Irish breeder offered $1,250 for two of them. The offer was refused, and the present value of the six is set at more than $5,000.

THE LISTING BY Les Gage, former Wisconsin star, of what is generally accepted as the all-America intercollegiate basketball team for 1933, points out again the ruggedness of the Pitt floor schedules for the last four or five years. It proves that the Panthers have been meeting the best.

Moose Krause

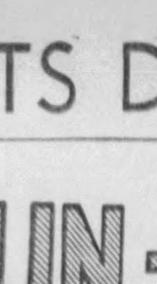
On his squad, Gage named 38 men, including Capt. Don Smith, of Pitt, as a first-team guard. Of those 38, selected from all over the country, no fewer than 14 opposed Pitt in the last three years, and nine of the 14 have been honored by the Panthers in the picking of all-opponents teams.

AMONG THE PLAYERS chosen on Gage's first team were Reiff, of Northwestern, and Loughlin, of Navy. Both names appear also on the Pitt all-opponents team. Of the players picked on Gage's second five Moose Krause, of Notre Dame, was named on the Panther all-opponents quintet in both 1932 and 1933; Collins, of Creighton, and Nemer, of Southern California, were honored by the Carlsons in 1932, while Spahn, of C. C. N. Y., played against the Blue and Gold in 1931. Of Gage's third team, Hokuff, of Nebraska, was a Pitt selection in 1931, and Fergus, of Carnegie, has been named for three years by the Panthers. Among the players to whom Gage gave honorable mention, Hargaden, of Georgetown, and Johnson, of Northwestern, were picked by the locals this year, and Hashagen, of Penn, opposed the Panthers in 1932.

FAST BOXING NETS JACKIE DECISION

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Little Jackie Wilson, of Homewood, today probably is just about the happiest young Negro lad in these United States, for last night, at Motor Square Garden, he upset the calculations of the 5-to-1 bettors and halted the winning streak of Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, after the latter had beaten Jimmy Thomas and stopped Mose Butch in the same ring during the past month.



Jackie Wilson

The result, a referee's decision for the local boxer, with the judges splitting, Frank Brown voting with Referee Red Robinson for Wilson and L. K. Meininger for Paul, was the biggest surprise in a major bout here in years. Wilson was the last of the local hopes against the classy Buffalo star, and, because of his frail build, it was generally believed he stood the least chance.

BATTLE IS CLOSE

The battle was very close and general opinion, like the official viewpoint, was not unanimous that Jackie was the victor, but none there were who would begrudge Jackie the fruits of his brilliant effort against an opponent touted to beat him easily and probably knock him out. This writer's score sheet showed Paul ahead by a narrow margin at the finish, on a basis of harder punching and six rounds won against four, his body walloping in the closing session keeping Wilson from adding that round to the four he already had to his credit.

Paul fought a lazy sort of a bout all of the way, lacking the sparkle of his earlier performances here, and, with the issue so close, it is no one's fault but his own that he didn't step out a bit more, if, indeed, he could under the circumstances, and erase any doubt from the minds of the officials and spectators that he merited the award.

Wilson was all earnestness from bell to bell in every round; Paul fought in a cool, cocksure manner that always was promising to develop into something, but never quite got around to doing it.

JACKIE KEEPS BOXING

Jackie used his speedy footwork to good advantage and also kept snapping out his left hand to ward off his more experienced foe. There was Paul stalking him about the ring, much the heavier hitter, but able to score only at close quarters and then mainly to the body. Wilson was too smart to mix with him. He kept shoving in that left to the head and occasionally following with a right. Paul made little or no attempt to avoid the left, boxing with both hands low and merely moving his head, and it was obvious Jackie's punches held little force; yet they were scoring points for him, and he would have been very, very foolish to have boxed any other way. His speed bothered Paul no little.

Paul won the first two rounds, with Wilson not quite sure of himself, driving Jackie to cover on the ropes late in the second. In the third, Wilson began to force the going and managed to scratch up Paul's left eye, which started to trickle blood in the fourth. Jackie carrying both of these rounds. Then Paul got into the fight again and slowed down Jackie enough with body punches to keep him within hitting range and win the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds.

TIDE TURNS AGAIN

The tide turned again in the eighth, with Wilson speeding up and outboxing his man to carry it and the ninth and make the score on rounds four to five going into the final frame, in which Paul again sank enough lefts and rights into the body to win the honors. There were no knockdowns, but Paul fell down off balance in the first round, and his slightly cut eye bled intermittently to the finish. Wilson was unmarked.

Paul weighed 123¾ and Wilson 124½ at 3 p. m.

Three of the four preliminaries ended in technical knockouts.

The Alabama Kid, Dover (O.) Negro southpaw, won over Carl Montebano, of Braddock, with five seconds to go in the seventh round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final when Referee Joe Zivic called a halt as Carl, who had put up a good battle up to this time, got up groggy along the ropes at the count of five following a left hook to the jaw. If he had taken the full count of nine, the bell would have saved him for the final round.

DUARRY A PUNCHER

Edourado Duarry, Cuban Negro welterweight from Erie, dropped Marty McHale, of McKeesport, for counts of five and nine late in the first round and the referee stopped the bout with McHale in his corner after the bell had saved him as he got up the second time.

PIRATES WIN INITIAL FRAY OF SERIES, 9-6

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

EL PASO, Tex., April 4.—George Gibson's propheecy that his club would begin to take form as soon as the Eastern trek began has borne rich fruit today. In El Paso on their "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with the Chicago White Sox, the Pittsburgh players, like their boss were confident the crux of their preparatory season had been reached and things were looking up for the big stuff which starts one week from today.

Playing with a National League rocket at Tucson yesterday, and with the fences where the fences belong, the Pirates scored a clean-cut victory over the American Leaguers. The game was entirely free of fluke home runs, and this happy ending to a diamond tale was achieved despite the presence in the lineups of clouters like Al Simmons, George Haas, Gus Suhr, Paul Waner and one or two others. The score was 9 to 6.

VAUGHAN BOOTS TWO

Few of the runs scored off Steve Swetonic were really earned. In the first round, Arky Vaughan had trouble with two balls hit at him and the bit of laxity led to four tallies. North Side Steve worked six runless rounds in a row after this bit of misfortune.

The extraordinary run production of the Pirates was partly due to a cleanup double exploded by Swetonic with two out in the sixth. Steve's liner down the left field line scored everybody and won the old ball game. The Buccos scored six runs in the inning. Not all the Pittsburgh runs were untarnished.

Larry French pitched the last two innings, but the ball game was a dandy from a comprehensive point of view. About 2,500 natives of Tucson and the neighborhood were out in holiday attire and the day was perfect.

LYONS ON MOUND

The Pirates had to drive a wedge through the celebrated Ted Lyons to cop the game. Ted was through for the day after the sixth inning bombardment.

In event of warm weather today, Remy Kremer will face the White Sox. Durham will twirl for the enemy. The two clubs will play in Amarillo tomorrow.

Chilly Sauce

Lloyd Waner gave the big throng at Tucson a thrill. Sprout caught five fly liners in succession in the fourth and fifth innings.

When Honus Wagner was introduced to the throng, the happy fans almost tore the roof off the structure. The Pirates cannot find a spot where the Flying Dutchman is unknown.

The Buccos were tickled over the return to the National League ball. The American League rocket will be used on days when the Sox are the "home" team. Manager Fonseca thinks his White Sox have a chance to finish in the money although the critics have guessed otherwise. Lou's problem, like Gibson's, is pitching.

Simmons, Dykes and Haas, fresh from the Athletics, will lend the White Sox a punch. All three are in excellent condition, according to Haas, former Bucco, who told me he was pleased with the transfer. George added, however, he was sorry to leave Connie Mack.

Hal Rhyne, who came to the Pirates in the famed Paul Waner deal, is a utility infielder for the White Sox.

Duquesne High Banquet April 20

The Duquesne High School basketball squad will be honored at a testimonial banquet to be held in the Duquesne Republican Club on Thursday evening, April 20.

The Duquesne High quintet won the W. P. I. A. L. championship during the past season. Karl Goldstrohm will be toastmaster and the principal speaker will be Ralph Evans.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

During the past two weeks thousands of waterfowl have passed over the lowlands of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio on their spring journey to the breeding grounds in the wilderness of the Dominion. Likely the various species of wild ducks now are in flight over the air lines on the Atlantic coast, along the Illinois River and the Pacific coast and the lowlands of the Western states.

That there ever can be a scarcity of waterfowl in this country seems incredible when those large flocks are observed en route to the northern countries. However, for a time there was evidence that calamity was in store for the sportsmen. A few years ago, when so much swampland in the west and middle west was drained to increase the agricultural areas, waterfowl were derived of feeding and resting grounds, especially feeding grounds, and their breed were diminished in alarming numbers.

However, action by our national lawmakers, such as establishing sanctuaries throughout the west and south salvaged the flocks and each year more conservation territory will be established for our waterfowl. This spring the flight of waterfowl seems very much larger than at any other time during the last five years, and it is to be hoped there will be a favorable breeding season for them in the north.

The writer remembers the days when spring shooting of waterfowl was legal throughout this country and ducks and geese were killed in large numbers. The last spring shooting in which I took part was in the state of Indiana and geese were so plentiful that any thought that ducks or geese ever would become scarce appeared out of reason. However, when the agriculturists started to drain the lowlands they were reduced in alarming numbers. Then the late President Taft and the governing solons of Canada entered into the Migratory Bird treaty, which abolished spring shooting of any migratory game birds and waterfowl.

Within a few years, waterfowl seemed to be aware of their immunity from hunters in the spring. They permitted the approach of boats when swimming about Conneaut Lake. In fact, they simply would swim out of the path of boats like domestic ducks. When they returned in the fall, however, they displayed their natural sophistication and it was impossible to get within gun range of them in an open boat.

PITT TO USE SOUTH HILLS

By TOM BIRKS

When the niblick wielders wearing the Blue and Gold of the University of Pittsburgh inaugurate their season campaign within the next two weeks, the Panthers will hit the elusive pellet over the greensward of the South Hills Country Club, and not at Highland as they did last season.

Graduate Manager Jimmy Hagan today announced that the Pitt home matches would be played over the links of the club presided over by Jock Graham. South Hills will not be any easier for the collegiate stars, as the course furnishes a stiff test.

Pitt will not have the Wolff brothers back this season. Charley has graduated, and Regis is not eligible, but it is assumed that he will have charge of the team as coach.

Claude McKee, a boy very familiar with the South Hills course, Art Sekay, Arthur Decker and Finleyson probably will make up the team. Duquesne, Notre Dame, Kiski, and probably Carnegie Tech will be met.

DUKES HONOR FLOOR SQUAD

The men of Duquesne, and friends and followers of the school's athletic teams, particularly those interested in the doings of the basketballers, will gather around the festive board tonight to honor the Duquesne varsity court squad, city and district champions.

The affair, slated to get under way at Webster Hall at 7 o'clock, really will take the form of a testimonial to Coach Chick Davies. It is being sponsored by the Bluff school's alumni. Paul G. Sullivan will serve as toastmaster.

The list of speakers will be headed by John S. Herron, acting Mayor of the city, and will include the Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the university; the Rev. Michael J. Brannigan, the Rev. Eugene McGuigan, Patrick Cronin and Coaches Elmer Layden and Davies.

Bucknell has been added to the Intercollegiate Basketball Conference, according to an announcement by W. Don Harrison, of Pitt. The Bisons probably will not be able to play home-and-home series with other teams in the conference next year, due to the fact that the majority of the schedules are complete.

So far, 13 of the leading high school swimming teams of Western and Northwestern Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio have entered the nineteenth annual University of Pittsburgh swimming championships, slated for Trees pool Saturday afternoon.

Included among the entries are Strong Vincent, 1932 champion; Erie East, Erie Tech and Erie Academy, Wells High, of Steubenville; Canton McKinley, Homestead, Duquesne, Clairton, Turtle Creek, Carrick, Perry and Taylor Allderdice.

A full squad of 50 candidates began a seven-week spring football practice program at Washington Jeff yesterday. Coach Leroy P. (Hank) Day was in charge.

PRACTICE SCHEDULED

The Stowe Cardinals, under the management of Ernie Andrews, will be back on the diamond again this season. All last year's members and others desiring a try-out, report for practice on the Stowe High School field tomorrow evening.

ELEY, ANGOTT OUTSTANDING IN A. M. A. RING TOURNAMENT

WILLOW BOXERS FAIL TO TAKE SINGLE TITLE

By JESS CARVER

It's been a long time, a very, very long time, since an A. M. A. amateur boxing championship tournament was concluded with the Willow Club out in the cold as far as the grabbing off of any individual titles was concerned. But that is exactly what happened last night at the Keystone Club as the annual senior A. M. A. ring event drew to a close.

Kneeling in the corner, seconding Johnny Ochs, the last title hope of his club, the veteran tutor, Jack Metz, remarked:

"Well, I can take it. I've had the ups and I've had the downs. I guess I've had all the breaks that were a'comin' to me. Anyway, this is the last Willow Club team I'll handle. I'm through."

And Spike Shannon, who has been following the doings of the amateurs for lo, these many years, turned to this correspondent and cracked:

"Yes, he'll quit. He's quit 50 times at least, but he always comes back. When Jack quits, it will be because the fighters start wearing ribbons in their hair."

TOUGH ON CHAMPS

The Willow Club put 10 men into the semi-finals last night, four of them champions, too. Six were eliminated in the semi-finals and the other four in the finals.

It was a tough night for champions, a tough night and a tough tournament. Of the even dozen who started out in the quest of laurels last Thursday night, only one came through. William Eley, of the Pleasant Valley A. C., of New Salem, the crack Negro lightweight, adjudged by those who know the best man in the tournament, pound for pound, captured his fourth amateur championship. He won the senior crown last night, adding it to the junior 135-pound, the Pittsburgh Golden Gloves and the Monongahela Valley titles which he already held.

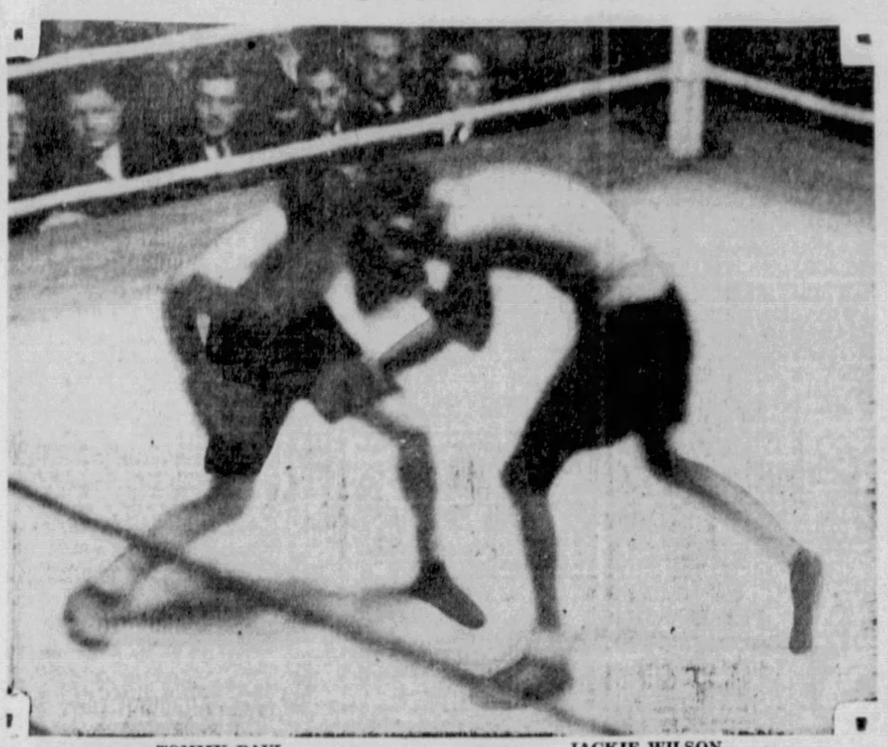
Wilson's Win Over Paul in Pictures



TOMMY PAUL — JACKIE WILSON

TOMMY PAUL — JACKIE WILSON

Duarry impressed as a terrific puncher.

Tommy Harris, Bloomfield lightweight, trying a comeback, outboxed Johnny Hazel, of Hazelwood, in the first round and then was dropped for nine and saved by the referee early in the second round of the scheduled four-round opener. Harris' mouth was badly cut and he bled freely.

In the preliminary that went the limit, Charley Burns, Johnstown featherweight, who recently was awarded undeserved decisions in bouts with Nat Litfin and Willie Davies in local rings, really defeated Litfin in a six-round return bout, only to see the unanimous decision go against him. Maybe it was poetic justice, or something like that. At any rate, Litfin did not fight anything like the fight he did in their first meeting and Burns was swarming all over him, swinging away with both hands, despite a badly bleeding nose.

City Volley Ball Play Continues

Connelley, Peabody, Westinghouse and Allegheny scored wins in yesterday's City Scholastic Volley Ball League in the senior division.

Connelley beat Washington Traders, 15-7 15-3; Allegheny took Carrick, 15-12, 6-15, 15-9; Peabody downed Fifth Avenue, 15-0, 15-14, and Westinghouse defeated Somers, 15-2, 15-1.

In the junior division, Fifth vanquished Peabody, 15-8, 15-2. Latimer lost to Knoxville, 9-15, 1-15, and Connelley tripped Washington, 15-6, 15-9.

CUB, CARDINAL TRADE LOOMS

CHICAGO, April 4.—(AP.)—The Chicago Herald and Examiner in a copyrighted story today said that despite denials of National League baseball officials, rumors were current that Outfielder John (Pepper) Martin and Jimmy Mooney, southpaw pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, would join the Chicago Cubs in a trade involving Shortstop Mark Koenig and a cash payment.

The Herald and Examiner said negotiations for the exchange have been under way since the Cub outfielder, Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, received a fractured right ankle in an exhibition game at Los Angeles a week ago.

TORONTO GAINS ICE FINAL IN RECORD FRAY

TORONTO, Ont., April 4.—(AP.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs won the longest hockey game on record early today, beating the Boston Bruins, 1-0, after 104 minutes and 46 seconds of overtime, to win the National Hockey League championship and a place in the Stanley Cup finals.

Clashing in the fifth and final contest of the series between the league's two first-place teams, the Leafs and Bruins struggled through eight 20-minute periods of gruelling play before little Ken Doraty, smallest player on the ice, scored the winning goal in four minutes 46 seconds of the sixth overtime session.

The game broke all hockey endurance records by a wide margin. The old record, 68 minutes 52 seconds of overtime, had been set by the Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers in the 1930 playoffs.

The victory qualified the Leafs, cup holders, to meet the New York Rangers in the Stanley Cup finals, a best three-out-of-five series. Immediately after their triumph, the Toronto squad rushed to a waiting special train for New York where the series opens tonight.

Frank Casey to Captain Dukes' Tennis Squad

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Grant Siverd's Duquesne University racqueters get out of doors today and thus join the Pitt Panther squad of Dr. Billy McEllroy in preparation for inauguration of intercollegiate net activities here less than three weeks hence. The Pittites open with Grove City at the Stadium on Saturday, April 22, with the Dukes probably preceding them by a day or two.

The Hillmen were tentatively scheduled to meet Waynesburg on the Bluff on April 18, but the contest will be set back because of the fact that the original date would have caught the Siverd crew during Easter vacation.

The Duke contingent staged its initial meeting of the year yesterday, when 17 candidates handed in names to Manager Larry Griffin. Frank Casey, Homestead senior about to serve his final season on the squad, was appointed captain and will assist the volunteer coaching corps throughout the campaign. The following players are aligned for the Red and Blue array to date: Capt. Frank Casey, Cliff Soisson, Bill Purcell, Joe Thompson, Frank Serany, Roy Getty, Bill Hill, Loren Mercer, Robert Dougherty, Tom Keary, James Schaming, Tom O'Connor, Al Smith, Ed Rowan, Vic Koerner, William Vaughan and Francis Comer.

Koerner and Vaughan are transfers from other institutions and will be ineligible this spring, as will Comer, who is a freshman. The mentors were pleased to note the return of Joe Thompson, who has been out of school for several years and who now is enrolled as a junior in quest of a degree in 1934. Thompson had won a regular berth with the netmen when he left the city in 1928.

Rod Flannery is leading the class A field in the P. A. A. intramural squash racquets title tourney, the rangy Winged Head president having attained the semi-final bracket at expense of Karl Wolfe, whom he defeated in five games after dropping the first two cantos, and being down at 1-9 in the fifth.

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin entered the second round by default of Bob Monroe yesterday, and his brother, Dr. John, eliminated George Henderson in five sessions to reach the same frame.

SCOZZA GAINS VERDICT OVER ROSENBLOOM

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 4.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, world light-heavyweight champ, lost an unpopular decision to Lou Scozza, Buffalo light-heavyweight, in 10 rounds here last night. Referee Goodrich and one judge voted for Scozza, the other judge for Rosenbloom. Rosenbloom's title was not in jeopardy, as he weighed 177½ and Scozza 177.

Scozza landed perhaps a dozen good right hands to the head and face, but could do no damage, while Lou's left eye and ear were badly swollen from Maxie's left.

PIRATES AND YANKEES FAVORED IN PENNANT POLL

BRUINS RATED SECOND TO CORSAIRS

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—The wide divergence of opinion on the outcome of the National League pennant race was reflected today by more complete returns in the seventh annual Associated Press "pennant poll," although the Pittsburgh Pirates maintained a safe lead as favorites to dethrone the Chicago Cubs.

Meanwhile, the New York Yanees, overwhelming choice in the American League ballots, increased their lead over the Washington Senators, picked by the experts to give the world champions their stiffest fight. The vote was: Yankees 66, Senators 13.

The Pirates, with 45 first place nominations, and the champion Cubs, with 25 out of a total of 89, dominate the National League voting, but the range of opinion is such that seven of the eight entries have at least one backer willing to put them at the top of his list in predicting the probable outcome.

AMERICAN LEAGUE (87 BALLOTS)

Barring a long overtime match in the United States Open in Chicago, June 8-10, the team will sail on the Aquitania at midnight, June 14.

GRAPHIC GOLF

ADVANTAGES OF A SLOW START

The golfer who takes his time during the early holes of a round is gradually warming up to the game is apt to score rather better than usual. In the first place this starts one off on the right foot. The care and attention devoted to each stroke with no thought given to pressing, thereby minimizing the mistakes that so often go with it, afford a preparation that is right, and the subsequent strokes are bound to improve.

It is not entirely a matter of loosening up the muscles, although the process is useful in this regard, but it gives one an idea of how his game is working that day and just what can be accomplished with it.

Players who start off with a bang on the first tee often are taking chances as to just what their strokes may accomplish on that particular day.

Nearly all of the first flight players get the feel of their game on a graduated scale of this sort. Bobby Jones not only swings easily on the first few tee shots, but confines a like process to his irons. He generally chooses one that will cover the distance to the objective with no undue strain, if anything rather on the easy side. There is little sign of effort, but rather a comfortable stroke in which the ball is aimed at the wide part of the putting surface, steering as clear of the hazards as possible.

While with such methods there is not apt to be an avalanche of birdies during the first few holes, neither is there much danger of going away over par and destroying one's balance for the rest of the round. After these first few holes have been played in this fashion, one is better able to apply pressure judiciously and accurately when needed.

Burns A. C. amateur bouts, New Kensington.

It's Ted Yarosz and Tommy Freeman in the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, a match arranged to fill the date when the Max Schmeling exhibition scheduled for that night was set back a week due to the delayed sailing of Schmeling from Germany.

Yarosz and Freeman originally were slated to box the windup at the Garden Christmas afternoon, but instead the Arena grabbed Ted to box Jack King, and Freeman was put in with Gorilla Jones in a battle of fragrant memory. Freeman and Jones didn't mean a thing here, and they put on what the fans were convinced was a song and dance. There'll be no carrying of Freeman by Yarosz, however, for Teddy is young and going places, and he can't reach his destination by playing around with a fellow like Tommy, who has been the welterweight champion and is near the end of the trail now, although still a fair fighter.

Between Rounds

Neither Frank Novak nor Jack Pallat has had a fight since they fought their tough battle against each other at the Arena, on the North Side, some five weeks ago, which is why Matchmaker Lew Raymond has put them on top on his card for Friday night. Both were so badly beaten up in their first meeting that they have some money coming to them to repeat the joust and the only way to give it to them was to pair them in a main bout and put on a strong supporting cast, which Raymond has done.

Pee Wee Jarrell meets Eddie Latko and Carmen Barth takes on Harry Jacobi in twin eight-rounders at East Liverpool, O., tomorrow night.

Ray Hatton will box Buster Lowstetter, Pat Tarrasi will meet Wolf Black and George Martzo will engage Jimmy Ferry in three of the bouts on the amateur card in McKeesport, Thursday night.

A show in Detroit last Friday night netted only $332, yet Promoter Scotty Monteith is going to run again this Friday, with Pee Wee Gale and Ernie Maurer in his main bout.

Frankie Edgren, who meets Al Catchell, of Cleveland, in one of the 10-rounders on the Arena card, Friday night, is paired with Gene Klopack in one of the six-round preliminaries to the Benny Bass-Johnny Farr bout in Philadelphia tonight.

Three Pittsburgh district boxers appear in Ohio bouts tonight. Willie Davies boxes Ross Fields a fifth time in a 10-rounder in Cleveland, while Marty McHale and Harry Fine are on a card in Toledo.

MID-ATLANTIC LEAGUE IN CONFERENCE

WHEELING, W. Va., April 4.—Eleven cities will be represented at the meeting of the Middle Atlantic League here today, at which the circuit will be organized for the coming season.

President Elmer Dailey said last night that five cities had requested league franchises during the past 24 hours. These cities included Dayton and Springfield, O.; Cumberland, Md.; Fort Wayne, Ind., and Clarksburg, W. Va.

With the increased number of applicants for places in the circuits, it is possible that an eight-club league will be formed.

Local Yacht Still In Second Place

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla, April 4.—(AP.)—The schooner Haligonian, commanded by Houston Wall, of Tampa, was apparently far in the lead in the fourth annual St. Petersburg-Havana yacht race, according to fragmentary messages picked up from the coast guard cutter Tuscarora, convoying the fleet of 11 yachts from this city to the Cuban capital.

Reports received last night indicated the Haligonian's position as 40 miles north by west or Drtortugas, or approximately half way to Havana harbor.

LOCAL MAN FILES SUIT

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 4.—(INS.)—Frank Jones, of Pittsburgh, today filed suit for $25,300 against Walter Burgess, of San Diego. Jones, in a hospital here, charged he was permanently disabled when struck by Burgess' automobile, March 26.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 4. — The expensive training trips are now practically over and I can sum it up for my constituents by saying they don't mean a thing. One season the Red Sox licked all the big league clubs in the grapefruit league and came North to finish at the bottom of the barrel.

Another spring Nick Altrock the Dodgers were massacred by everyone but the Pensacola married men's team and only lost the National League pennant by a nose—and it wasn't a hippopotamus' nose, either. This year they're ballyhooing a Braves' rookie that held the slugging Yankees to two hits last week. Well, by June he may be back on a milk route in East Junkville, Ia.

You got to figure when the bell rings April 12 all that climate is back in Florida or California and you're playing in Boston blizzards, or Cincinnati floods. Spring training results mean exactly zero. And you can deduct it from your income tax.

FOWNES VICTOR IN PINEHURST TOURNEY

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4.—(AP.)—George T. Dunlap, Jr., the Garden City golfer who won medalist honors with a corking 137, led a brigade of favorites into the second round of the annual North and South amateur golf tournament here. He battled Richard A. Jones, Jr., of Larchmont, N. Y., yesterday and had to go to the nineteenth hole to win, 1 up.

The 32 low scorers of the 36-hole qualifying round fought it out in 18-hole matches. A final round of 36 holes Friday will decide the championship.

James A. Fownes, of Pittsburgh, advanced to the second round by defeating Fred B. Town, of South Orange, N. J., 3 and 2, but another Pittsburgher, R. G. Morrison, lost to Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., 4 and 2.

Col. Winn Retains Turf Body Control

CHICAGO, April 4.—(AP.)—Col. Matt J. Winn, the man behind the Kentucky Derby, still is the man ahead of the American Turf Association, more firmly intrenched than ever.

The 71-year-old guiding genius of racing yesterday was re-elected president of the association, sweeping aside all opposition that had threatened to oust him from administrative control of the Washington Park and Lincoln Fields race courses in Chicago, and Churchill Downs and Latonia tracks in Kentucky.

STOCKS EASY IN LISTLESS TRADING

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—Stocks showed little inclination to deviate from the pattern of recent markets today as Wall street kept an eye on Washington.

Scattered short covering at the opening gave some leaders a mild flip, but there was no depth to the demand and as soon as it had been satisfied the list turned irregular. Sugar and gold mining shares worked higher, the former in fairly active trading. A few tobacco issues continued to meet support, but rails dipped moderately. Several old-line industrials were little changed. Trading was very light.

Early gains ranging from fractions to a point for a number of trading favorites had been generally dissipated by afternoon. American Telephone yielded a 1-point rise, while less extensive improvement by American Can, United States Steel, American Tobacco "B," Santa Fe and Consolidated Gas, among others, disappeared or was replaced by small recessions.

Wall street has noted some pickup in business, mostly of a seasonal character, though partly in reflection of beer's return. Automobile production is currently showing a slight rise and a moderate gain in steel output this week would not be surprising. There has doubtless been a fair rebound from the lows of the banking holiday.

Statistics of loadings of revenus freight for last week indicated slightly larger movements on a few western roads. However, the first handful of reports suggested that little net change had occurred in the week ended last Saturday. Santa Fe's loadings totaled 20,453 cars, against 20,292 in the previous week.

Continued easiness was evident in credit markets. Dealers reduced bankers' acceptance yield rates by ¼ of 1 per cent, while stock exchange call money renewed at 2 per cent, which was yesterday's closing rate, and funds were available unofficially at 1½.

COTTON PRICES HOLD STEADY

NEW YORK, April 4.—Cotton futures opened steady, ½ lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and under scattered selling by commission houses. May, 6.29; July, 6.46; October, 6.66; December, 6.81; January, 6.86; March, 7.00.

Liverpool was a seller here again at the start while there was scattered selling through commission houses and from Wall street sources, but offerings were light and prices steadied on trade buying and covering. May sold up from 6.29 to 6.34 and October from 6.66 to 6.71, making net advances of about 2 to 4 points at the end of the first half hour.

Except for some further switching from May to later deliveries the market showed no special trading feature later in the morning. Business was quiet. The market at mid-day was steady, with May selling at 6.31 and October at 6.69, or about net unchanged.

LIVERPOOL, April 4.—Cotton, 12,000 bales, including 400 American. Spot moderate business done; prices unchanged; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.91; good middling, 5.61; strict middling, 5.31; middling, 5.16; strict low middling, 4.96; low middling, 4.81; strict good ordinary, 4.61; good ordinary, 4.31. Futures closed quiet and steady. May, 4.93; July, 4.94; October, 4.97; December, 5.00; January, 5.01; March, 5.05.

RAINEY GIVES R. F. C. LOANS

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—How 47 states shared in the $262,346,000 advanced by the Government in February to aid business and the needy was shown in figures in the Reconstruction Corporation's monthly report to Congress.

There had been some doubt as to whether Speaker Rainey would follow the precedent set by Vice President Garner and release the statement to the public. Rainey, however, held that "the public is entitled to the information" and forthwith handed out the first report Congress has received since he became Speaker.

The resignation of Gardner Cowles, Sr., sole remaining Republican director on the Corporation's board, revived speculation on future activities of the agency which has loaned more than $2,000,000,000 as an antidote to depression.

There are now three Republican vacancies, but apparently President Roosevelt has given little attention to prospective appointees. In some quarters it was felt there was a bare possibility that the Board's duties might be placed under the Federal Reserve Board or put directly under the Treasury.

PROFIT SHOWN BY REICHSBANK

BERLIN, April 4.—(AP.)—The German Reichsbank, in its 1932 report, declared a 12 per cent dividend, the same as in 1931.

A net profit of 40,000,000 marks (currently about $9,600,000) for 1932 was reported. Of this sum 4,000,000 marks will go into the reserve fund, 18,000,000 marks will be devoted to dividend payments and the remainder will be turned over to the Reich's government.

The report remarks that the economic development has been unsatisfactory despite signs of a slight improvement. It adds that the surplus of exports over imports is dwindling alarmingly. It asserted:

"A debtor country is not able to fulfill its obligations if creditor countries continue to shut out the former's goods."

ICKES DRAFTING OIL PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(INS.)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes and his technical advisers were engaged today in drafting proposed legislation to aid in curbing overproduction in the oil industry. It will be submitted to Congress with President Roosevelt's indorsement shortly.

Specifically, the administration will ask for an act preventing interstate shipment of oil produced in violation of state law and the divorcement of oil pipe lines engaged in interstate commerce from the other branches of the industry.

TULSA, Okla., April 4.—(AP.)—Attacking as incorrect and unreliable the reported crude oil production from East Texas, the Oil and Gas Journal this week instituted its private system of collecting reports and declared that immense area's output last week was 760,240 barrels daily.

Reports of producers to the Texas State Railroad Commission the previous week showed an output of 395,714 barrels daily.

As a result of the sharp upward climb of East Texas, the total for the state of Texas went to 1,311,806 barrels daily, as compared with a previous average of 949,164 barrels.

INDEXES SHOW TRADE DROP FLATTENING

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Several weekly indexes of industrial activity show a comeback from the sharp reactions which attended the general bank suspension.

This is partly a natural rebound from an abnormal decline. Also it is partly due to the usual effects of the Easter season. Easter is late this year, and that makes comparisons with a year ago appear more favorable.

On the whole, it seems fair to say that the gains in weekly indexes so far have not yet indicated any major change in trend. That is, if we wipe out the dip caused by bank suspensions, and go back to February data, we find the business curve a little lower.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

I think, however, that the business curve seems to be flattening out in its decline. The current rebound may not go a great deal farther after Easter, but it is difficult to see how it can again fall so low as at the middle of March.

The view warrants hopefulness, but at the same time suggests that we should avoid such excesses of "optimism" as developed last fall.

The probability seems to be that, after another week or two of more cheerful comparisons with "a year ago," we will have to settle down to the realities of completing the readjustment of financial affairs. This will involve some deflation at the same time that positive improvements are made here and there.

A dull summer would not be a bad indication. Following that, we might expect either a sound gradual recovery, or an inflationary spurt. Let us hope for the former. The latter would be of uncertain duration and would be sure to have a kickback.

STEP IMPORTANT

The refunding of farm mortgages now proposed by the administration, is perhaps one of the most important measures yet considered. If conservatively handled, it may be the most constructive.

The farm debt problem has been fundamental all along. Farm mortgages are outstanding to the amount of upward of 12½ billion dollars, which is an enormous load.

To make things worse, it may be estimated that the load of farm mortgages is nearly four times as great as it should be. That is, the mortgage indebtedness per acre is three or four times as big as the land is worth under present conditions as to farm earnings.

The proposal is to have the government finance a refunding of farm mortgages to an amount of between $2,0000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000, probably through the Federal Farm Land Banks.

Now, of course, it is dangerous to put the government into the farm mortgage business. We don't want Uncle Sam to have to take over farms as some insurance companies have had to do.

We must remember that all of us, including the farmers, are the government. In a very real sense, therefore, the farmers (as citizens and taxpayers) would become mortgagees as well as mortgagors!

Forbes

U. S. Economy, Big Outlays Not Illogical

By B. C. FORBES

THE ROOSEVELT administration is being called "inconsistent" because it is drastically cutting expenses with one hand and instituting gigantic expenditures with the other hand.

Mr. Forbes.

Such criticism is not wholly justified.

The administration is entirely warranted in cutting ordinary government costs to the very bone. You and I simply haven't the money to continue boom-time governmental extravagances, boom-time taxes.

Emergency conditions demand, however, emergency legislation entailing CAPITAL expenditures of magnitude. There may be legitimate ground for questioning the soundness of some of the colossal capital expenditures proposed. But extraordinary expenditures to meet extraordinary conditions are not necessarily inconsistent with thoroughgoing curtailment of ordinary expenses of running the government.

UNEMPLOYMENT relief admittedly is direly needed. Much can be said for originating governmental projects designed to furnish work for large numbers of idle men. President Roosevelt's latest proposed enormous governmental investment, in farm mortgages, is in a very different category from the disbursement of hundreds of millions annually to ex-service men not disabled in the service of their country, or maintaining a costly multiplicity of unnecessary bureaucrats.

Every well-managed organization distinguishes between ordinary expenses of doing business and extraordinary capital investments. The administration follows sound business practice when it lops off unjustified day-to-day costs. It likewise follows sound business practice when it incurs warranted extraordinary capital expenditures.

Who can deny that the nation is confronted with extraordinary conditions, extraordinary emergencies? Who can deny that it is the imperative duty of statesmanship to do everything possible to prevent perilous emergencies from exploding disastrously?

We cannot afford to incur useless expenditures. True.

But it is equally true that we cannot afford NOT to incur expenditures needed to keep our whole economic and social structure from collapsing.

Any individual or group of individuals who would take to lifeboats in mid-ocean unless their ship threatened to sink, would be insane. But occasions sometimes arise when NOT to use lifeboats would be equally insane.

EVERY RESPONSIBLE private banker realizes the present temper of the public and realizes how futile it would be to attempt to insist upon hiding anything even remotely connected with the issuance of securities to the public.

The prospect is that we shall by and by be regaled with big headlines featuring the magnitude of the total commissions reaped by underwriters of ten million, fifty million and one hundred million dollar new security offerings. Big deals usually involve big total commissions.

LET THE government provide more serious penalties than now named in the security bill for those who hereafter fleece the public. It isn't conceivable, however, that the law could be made applicable to every stock and bond issue now outstanding. These horses have already left the stable.

EXPECT lower money rates.

WE ASSUREDLY are headed for "more government in business." Finance and business, having fallen down on their job, are chiefly responsible. And unless financial and business leaders bestir themselves without much further dilly-dallying, the movement may reach unimagined lengths.

CHAIRMAN WILLIAM B. JOYCE, of the National Surety Company, tells me that he called together all his assistants and told them "to refuse to talk to anyone who indulged in conversation about the weakness of any institution." He urges other business heads to do the same. Certainly, there has been altogether too much disturbing and discreditable rumor-mongering.

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

"There's plenty of time to talk about business school later on," her mother said. "Right now I'm going to keep you at home with me."

For a week she stayed at home all day long, keeping Sharlie under her eye. She seemed to be making up for all the years when she had let her run wild.

"It's a good time for you to learn a few things about housework," she decided. "This flat hasn't had a good housecleaning since last fall."

So all week long Sharlie washed furniture and brushed down the walls and rubbed wax on the floors.

"Why don't you let all this go until next week when I'm away from home?" Mr. Dunn asked one night when he came home from work to find a cold supper waiting for him on the kitchen table.

"You shut up!" his wife answered him promptly. "You're going away all next week on a fishing trip with Carl Hanaberry—and what I do while you're gone is my own business! But, believe me, it's not going to be housecleaning!"

* * *

At the break of dawn on Saturday Mr. Dunn and Carl Hanaberry started off in Carl's big touring car for their week of fishing.

"Leaving a couple of heart-broken widows behind them!" as Maud Hanaberry said to Sharlie's mother when she dropped in after breakfast. "Believe me, it wouldn't hurt my feelings if they stayed away for a month!"

"How about six months?" asked Dodie, and she laughed too.

PARTY PLANNED

At noon Edna came home with the news that she was going out of town for the week-end.

"The Bower girls' folks live down at Lynchville and they're asked me to go down there for over Sunday with them," she explained as she passed through the flat on her way to her bedroom.

"Jiminy! I wish she could take Sharlie with her," Sharlie heard Maud say to her mother. "Then we could have this place to ourselves. . . . I'm sure Lela will come back tonight, although I gave her the whole day off. She always does come home to sleep.

Lela was Maud's housemaid. She slept in a room off the kitchen of the Hanaberry flat, and she had been with them ever since they had been married. Sharlie had heard Maud say so dozens of times.

"I don't think Sharlie would say anything to anybody if we had a little party up here," Dodie answered. "Sharlie doesn't talk much."

An hour later when Edna was gone she called Sharlie to her.

"Honey," she said, "Maud and I are going to ask some people up here tonight to play cards. I'd like to ask Maud to stay here all night and if you went over to your grandmother's house she could have your room."

"I could sleep in Edna's room," murmured Sharlie.

"I'd rather you'd go to your grandmother's house, Sharlie," her mother said to her. There was rebuke in the lift of her eyebrows and the tone of her voice.

GETS INVITATION

And so the matter was settled.

Late that afternoon Sharlie put a nightgown and some toilet articles into her little overnight bag and left the flat.

Her mother was dressing when she left. She was flushed and fragrant from her bath when Sharlie went into her room to kiss her goodby and she didn't look a day over 25. . . . Not in the sunlight that came pouring in through the west windows.

"Sharlie, darling, she said, "you mustn't tell your father and Carl that Maud and I had a little party up here while they were gone . . . When you're married you'll realize that only a fool woman tells her husband all her business."

"If they go up to the woods to fish and leave you alone," Sharlie answered loyally, "I don't blame you for having a little fun, Dodie."

She didn't . . . And what harm could there be in a little card party there in the flat?

Down in the street the Barnums were gathered about a new little automobile that stood there shining in the sun.

Sharlie walked across the sidewalk to them. It was the first time she had seen any of them in a week, and she felt shy with them as she never had felt before . . . What must they all think of her?

But they were just as they always were. Friendly and talkative—comfortable to be with

MOTHER OBJECTS

"What do you think of Jim's new bus?" Guy King asked her. "Isn't it a pip?"

"Some wagon!" said Sharlie, slangy but appreciative.

Jim took his pipe out of his mouth and spoke to her: "We're all going to drive over to Shelbyville for supper. Want to go with us? Like to have you."

Sharlie thought for a minute. "I'd love to go," she was beginning when she saw Maud Hanaberry come out of the apartment house on the other side of the street and start across the road.

She was all in white, and in her hands she carried two covered dishes. Under her arm was a bottle wrapped in newspaper.

"Maud!" Sharlie spoke to her. "Maud, will you tell my mother that I'm going over to Shelbyville in Jim's new car?"

"Don't you think you'd better come up with me and tell her yourself?" she asked. "I think you ought to do that."

"I made Sharlie come back here with me," Maud said when Dodie came walking out of her bedroom wrapped in a kimono. "She wants to go joy-riding with Jim Barnum—and you know how your whole family will jump on you if anything happens to her."

"All the Barnums are going!" cried Sharlie. "Jim has a brand new car, and—"

"And you're not going anywhere in it!" her mother finished the sentence for her. "You're going to your grandmother's house and no place else—Then, if anything happens to you, your father can blame HER for it, for a change!"

NOT AT HOME

"You treat me like a 6-year old child!" complained Sharlie bitterly as she walked out of the flat once more, kicking at the carpets as she went.

The house was locked up when Sharlie rang the front door bell at 6 o'clock that Saturday evening.

After she had rung the bell two or three times she went around to the back porch. It was closed and locked, too. She tried all the windows, and not one of them was unlocked.

As she stood looking at the windows of the dining room Mrs. Hinman, who lived next door, came out upon her vine-covered back porch and called to her:

"Looking for your grandmother, Miss Dunn?—I'm 'fraid she won't be home till 9 or 10 o'clock. She and Miss Gordon went downtown a while ago. They were going to the market, they said, and afterward they thought they might take in a moving picture. And Mr. Hartley's not in town this week."

Sharlie walked slowly down to the corner of the little street. There was a neighborhood picture house two or three blocks further on.

And then all at once the thought of Joyland popped into her mind.

Joyland was the biggest dance palace in town. She had danced there lots of times with Eddie.

Girls came there alone, and so did young men.

Many a time Sharlie had noticed some girl standing at the entrance alone for a few minutes . . . Then the next time she caught sight of her she would be in the arms of one of the young men, dancing with him.

"I'll go there myself," thought Sharlie, who preferred dancing to eating any night in the week. "And see what luck I have."

Synopsis

Young and pretty Sharlie Dunn is attracted to irresponsible Eddie Wallis. One night, Eddie takes Sharlie to his apartment and makes violent love to her. She flees in fear, and, returning home, interrupts a tete-a-tete between her mother and Carl Hanaberry, a friend's husband. Next evening Jim Barnum, a neighbor, invites Sharlie to the theater. As they leave Eddie arrives and forbids Sharlie to go. Then she goes with Eddie instead. On the way home from a roadhouse Eddie's car runs out of gas. He and Sharlie spend the night in the car. Next morning Sharlie and Eddie accede to Mrs. Dunn's demands and get married. That night, returning from the movies, Eddie is struck by an automobile. He dies and Sharlie returns to her mother's home.

COMMUNITY CARE OF DEPENDENT, HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

This boy's legs were absolutely useless. Modern surgery and medicine brought relief after two and a half years of treatment. The same boy healed.

These blind children are learning to "see" with their fingers. No school system is complete if it lacks provision for the education of the deaf, the blind and the crippled child. (Problems of Democracy.)

VITAMIN C (Science)

Vitamin C or antiscorbutic vitamin is a substance (chemically undetermined yet), the lack of which in the food causes scurvy, manifesting itself in soreness of gums, loose teeth, hemorrhages, observed by sailors and people living on a deficient diet. Pellagra, another disease involving the digestive tract, skin and nervous system, is also caused by lack of vitamins. Above picture shows eruptions of skin of a pellagrin. Both diseases, if not too far advanced, can be cured by proper diet containing the necessary vitamins. Good sources of vitamin C: Grains (sprouted), malt (green), cloudberries, lemon, orange, raspberries, tomatoes, fresh cabbage, carrots, lettuce, potatoes and milk (little quantity). Long cooking destroys vitamin C. (McCollum: Newer Knowledge of Nutrition.)

CHARLES' LAW (Chemistry)

Charles discovered the law (1787) and Gay-Lussac (1802) published it. It states that, with pressure constant, the volume of a given weight of gas varies directly, as the absolute temperature; also that, with the volume constant, the absolute pressure varies directly, as the absolute temperature. Plotting the temperature as ordinates and the corresponding volumes as abscissas in the ordinary temperatures of observation, we obtain the straight line A-B for a certain pressure and D-E for another, greater pressure. Extending these lines, they cut the vertical axis in C, marking the absolute zero temperature (at which the volume of gas would theoretically disappear). Designating two different values of volume (V), absolute temperature (T) and pressure (P) with capital and small letters, we have: V/v=T/t=Pp. (Emswiler: Thermodynamics.)

INSTRUMENT PANEL OF AN AIRPLANE

It includes radio receiving equipment enabling the pilot to bring the plane to a landing on the airport without seeing the ground. (Blind landing.) (Science.)

AIRPORTS IMPORTANT FOR AVIATION (Science)

With the advance in the use of airplanes, sooner or later each community will need one or more airports for safe landing and taking off. The site should be carefully chosen with regard to topographic and meteorological conditions, accessibility, etc. The effective landing area should be preferably a square with a sidelength of at least 2,500 feet (for transport crafts 3,500 to 5,000 feet), firm, smooth surface, and slope not to exceed 2% in any direction. Obstacles outside reduce effective landing area, as shown. It needs extensive electrical equipment, including beacon (rotary or flashing), boundary and obstruction lights, landing area flood lights, hangar lights and radio sending apparatus for directing blind landing.

Where There Is Smoke There Is a Girl

We will detour collegiate a few minutes to see how the co-eds are doing with their gin and their tobacco.

Up at Scrammons Reform School for subdebs they once had a rule prohibiting smoking within a mile of the college campus.

That was way back in 1900 when men were men and boys were their sons.

That mile rule was changed in 1920 to read a quarter-mile.

Ten years later it proscribed smoking on the campus. Getting closer. And just this semester the sign reads, "No Smoking in College Buildings."

Next year it will be, "Don't Blow Smoke Through Your Nose When Reciting Shakespeare."

After that this placard will be hung on the lady dean's office wall: "We Don't Care Where You Smoke Provided You Bring Your Own."

Which proves how a little neglected habit grows into an article like this. The girls started smoking a mile away and 33 years later they crashed the premises.

And as for the gin? Well, we're glad to say there is no truth in that accusation. The girls are reasonably sober. They don't like liquor at all. But they will smoke.

Thirty years ago the sight of a lady smoking a cigar would cause people to throw up their hands like a yarborough. A yarborough is the worst hand you can get in bridge.

Today, we consider it perfectly okay for a girl to smoke. And the students at Scrammons College are no exception to the by-laws and rules.

The cerebral stress and strain of geography and arithmetic is terrific. Ask the feminette to multiply two by three and she checks it off on cigarets.

Ask her to name the capital of Long Island and she immediately starts puffing away and hides herself in a smoke screen.

Jail for Vote Crooks

The Bar Association's Judiciary Committee Makes Some Sound Recommendations

Common sense marks the recommendations of the Judiciary Committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association in its report on its investigation of the election scandals in the primary of 1931.

The need of such advice is shown by the fact that of 77 persons who were convicted or pleaded guilty of violating the election laws in that primary, 62 were freed before they had served a single day in prison and the others were paroled before they had completed their terms.

In thus generously and generally extending clemency the courts conveyed the dangerous impression that violation of the election laws is not a serious crime.

The Bar Association committee does well in emphasizing the gravity of election frauds. The necessity of imprisonment as punishment for such offenders was demonstrated by the boldness with which election laws were violated in the election following the trial of the 1931 culprits and by the great number of the districts in which the offenses were committed.

The crooks who tried to steal the election in Allegheny County last November have not yet been brought to book. If a goodly number of the 1931 criminals had been required to serve prison sentences, these later frauds probably would have been prevented.

The committee also hits the bull's-eye in its recommendation that election cases in Allegheny County shall be tried before Allegheny County judges.

Fourteen visiting judges from other counties were called in to help try the 1931 cases, and there is a widespread belief among the public that this was done to relieve the local judges of the danger of offending the political gangs and gangsters whose henchmen were on trial.

Our own judges should be made to face their responsibilities in such important cases as these. They should be required to account for their stewardship when they come before the voters for election. Dodging such responsibility by referring embarrassing political cases to visiting judges is cowardly.

The Bar Association committee has touched on genuine evils, and it is to be hoped the courts will adopt corrective measures.

The State's Opportunity

Much Can Be Done With Federal Aid to Improve Pennsylvania's Forest Lands

Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, calls attention to the fact that the new act of Congress authorizing President Franklin D. Roosevelt's unemployment relief program provides for work on state-owned and privately-owned forest lands as well as in the National forests. He has summoned state foresters to a conference in Washington Thursday to discuss plans for putting the program into effect.

Pennsylvania should fare well, because R. Y. Stuart, United States Chief Forester, who will have charge of the work, formerly was at the head of Pennsylvania's Department of Forests and knows our needs. The fact that Gov. Gifford Pinchot formerly was United States Chief Forester and later Pennsylvania's Commissioner of Forests also should be helpful.

Ten years ago it was proposed to issue $25,000,000 of bonds for the purchase of 5,000,000 additional acres of State forest, but the voters defeated the plan on the plea that the land could be acquired in a less burdensome way.

Pinchot asserted that 5,000,000 acres of State forest, carefully managed, could be made in time to yield a revenue sufficient to pay the State's school expenses.

E. A. Ziegler, director of the Pennsylvania Forest Research Institute, estimates that about one million acres of forest land in the State was in the hands of the counties or advertised for sale last year for non-payment of taxes.

The forests of Pennsylvania present problems which President Roosevelt's Civilian Conservation Corps may help to solve. By protecting the woodlands from fire, by controlling insect pests, by eradicating tree diseases, and by replanting denuded areas, the forest workers will bring great benefits to the State.

Press Censorship

The House of Representatives without warning and under mysterious circumstances yesterday rushed through a bill which is potentially the most drastic peacetime censorship measure since the alien and sedition laws were passed more than a century ago.

This drastic measure was framed, it was explained, "for the purpose of protecting our diplomatic code and to prevent government employes and former government employes from disclosing secrets of a confidential and diplomatic nature."

Those Congressmen who raised their voices against the bill, and there were only 29 votes against it, did so realizing that the hastily drawn measure abridged the freedom of the press.

When a storm of protest reached the Capitol the Democratic leaders began to realize the danger lurking in its broad provisions.

The proponents of the bill stood pat on the statement that the State Department wanted it.

Some hours later Chairman Sumners, of the Judiciary Committee announced he would seek changes to safeguard the freedom of the press before the Senate passes the bill.

It should and undoubtedly will be amended in the Senate, where it is already realized that it violates the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Compensation

You may see him there in the shadows,
So withered and tired and old,
And crouching over his dying fire
As the night grows cold.

And your heart may be brimmed with pity
At the sorrows that have to be,
When it seems, in a world so beautiful,
All things good should be free.

But for him is a compensation
Whose joys will not ever cease;
For he to his vision has still been true,
And his heart knows peace.

He has made no compromises
With life for the sake of gain,
And in age he goes with a child-like soul,
Unmarred by a stain!

Oh, dare not give of your pity
To this feeble and weary one,
For he, with his vision undefiled,
Is like God's own Son!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 4.—Those of us reared by stern fathers are usually awed by the camaraderie between modern youth and their sires. There is an engaging mutual frankness at all times. I was married and settled before I had courage to light a cigaret in the presence of my Dad.

But in New York, fathers drop in at sons' apartments—sons of wealthy rarely live at home any more—for the evening aperitif, exchange persiflage with the girls, a sprinkling of whom may be of the Broadway chorus, and even join in "rolling the bones" in the kitchen.

To such sons, they are "The Governor." And there are certain little secrets that must be kept from "the Mater." I have seen such sons become slightly jingled in the presence of their fathers and there did not seem to be the slightest embarrassment on either side.

I recall a breakfast one morning, late, in a mid-town hotel grill. A gray-haired father waited for his son, obviously late. The lad came in finally, a bit tousled, but explained simply: "I'm sorry, Governor, but I was potted last night and overslep." They talked immediately of other things.

There is a period in every boy's life when he goes around making throaty unga-unga noises. I called today on a family whose hopeful was in the throes of such adolescent abba-gabba. Homer Barton, actor and brother of Ralph, the artist, is, perhaps, the most confirmed Broadwayite. He has lived for 16 years in the same hotel room on a fringe of Times Square. Like the ship boy drowsing on the giddy mast, he stands on a curb, nightly, puffing his pipe and unaffected by the furious swirl about. To him, Broadway is a pulsating example of the old French adage: "The more it changes, the more it is the same thing."

* * *

While Broadway, to many, seems straining grimly against oblivion, the changes are merely physical. There are hundreds of Homer Bartons, whose loyalty to the street never wanes. They have seen it disintegrate again and again, then congeal into the same dazzling thoroughfare.

* * *

Fealty to Broadway is reminding of Rudyard Kipling's brave toast, during the days the British empire reeled: "My lords, ladies and gentlemen: For what there is of it—for such as it is—and for what it may be worth—will you drink to England and the English?"

* * *

The two men who, more than others, to my notion, typify Broadway's solidity are George M. Cohan and Gene Buck. They have been untouched by its inflations, deflations and vagabond whimsy. They are the same as when I met them 20 years ago—regular fellows—and that, along such an avenue of affectations, is a singular achievement.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Once, when I was a little girl, living on the edge of the Indian country, they told me of a certain sacred dance. I am not sure, now, which tribe performed it—Hopi or Apache—or what was the season of its celebration. But the story of it seemed very beautiful to me.

It was supposed to represent the succession of the generations, and the handing on, and on, of the flame of Truth. Actually, it was not a dance at all but a running processional.

Very early, while the dawn still clung in a gray web to the desert floor, a man would start out with a torch, miles away from the final, ceremonial place of meeting. Swiftly, as the dawn brightened, he would run, carefully holding the sacred flame lest, by accident, it be extinguished; then, when his strength was nearly exhausted, another man would spring to meet him, take the torch, race on.

"When I am a grown person, with other grown persons," said I, "life will be like that—a splendid race of proud and noble people."

Then, when I was several years older, someone took me to see the actual race; but it wasn't at all what I had thought it would be. The racing Indians weren't beautiful, bronze demigods. They were dirty, stupid creatures, some of them quite fat, with great, misshapen hands and feet.

There was nothing exciting about their ceremony. I had thought it would be a poem in flesh, as lovely as the wind flashing through the young cottonwoods, or the first rain falling in silver lines across the black mesas.

To the contrary, it was a most dull and dreary performance. The racers proceeded at a sluggish dog-trot, carrying a very smoky, smeary torch. There was no enthusiasm, not even when the flame was passed along. A few grunts. Frequently the racers sat down and gazed off at nothing—scratching themselves.

So this was the famous Dance of the Generations! I was horribly disappointed.

But with the years I have come to realize how stupid was my disappointment; for, though I did not have the sense then to know it, I had seen one of the most beautiful and touching sights on earth—a great lesson about life.

For that is really how the flame goes on. Not as we think it will go on when we are children—a splendid processional moving heroically across the lovely dawn, the glittering noon, the spangled night, handing the fiery torch from hand to hand. No; Life isn't like that. Nor are we like that!

Instead, we stumble stupidly along, burdened by grief and anxiety, soiled by the dust of the trail, bearing the scars of old battles. And the torch we carry—that sacred flame of Truth which was to burn so brightly with honor and courage and tenderness—is at the best but a sooty flicker, hardly bright enough to light our lagging feet, much less to show the way to the generations ahead.

YET, THOUGH IT TOOK ME YEARS TO LEARN IT, THIS IS A NOBLER SIGHT THAN THE FANTASY OF OUR CHILDHOOD.

For it is an infinitely braver and more beautiful thing for a crippled man to struggle onward, fighting his own ignorance and agony and the desperate loneliness of the desert, than it is for an unhandicapped man to race romantically through the most gorgeous pageant.

And often, when I have blundered even more than usual, when I have looked back over the wasted years and seen all I have missed along the trail, and how little I have now to hand on—I have thought of those Indian runners and been comforted.

And perhaps God in His pitying understanding, remembering His own agony in the desert, may understand I truly tried to do my part.

Smith Approves Relief Program

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Al Smith in The New Outlook discusses the Roosevelt program at the end of less than thirty days, and finds it good, and moving courageously in the right direction. A month ago he said that the party of Roosevelt had reached the cross roads; he now finds that it has made the right turn. He sums up his approval in this paragraph:

"It has helped in a forthright way with the currency problem, with reorganization of the Federal government, with the drastic reduction of veterans' benefits in the face of the bitter opposition of a strongly organized minority, with the problem of authorizing and taxing beer, and with the farm problem."

Read that again and then bear in mind that it is just four weeks since the inauguration.

* * *

Roosevelt Has Made His Plan Clear

A strong individualist who does not hesitate to take issue with his party on matters not purely partisan, he is not so sure about the Muscle Shoals program—but this has not yet been definitely announced. When it is announced it will be found to be in the interest of the consumers, and that is one of the things that Smith has been fighting for for many years. He does not think that the conservation army of workers will go as far as public works in relieving unemployment; but the President has made it clear that this peace-time army is not intended as a substitute for public works and that this latter plan is now under consideration.

Thus we properly may interpret Mr. Smith's editorial as highly commendatory of the Administration.

* * *

Party Lines Are Almost Obliterated

He approves the President's plan to hurry through the needful things in Congress before adjournment, not only because the country demands these things, but because of the tactical advantage of immediate action. Just now the people have been aroused by the dashing and yet cautious and sane manner in which the President has moved in the last 30 days. The country overwhelmingly is with him. Party lines have been almost obliterated in the presence of a common crisis. The people have no patience with partisan maneuvering for advantage, nor with obstruction for obstruction's sake. The atmosphere is just right to do the things now that every thoughtful person has been wanting done for two years and more. That is the reason that Al Smith says:

"Everyone in the country, irrespective of party or other affiliations, should support the new administration loyally and patriotically in the path on which it is now moving, because I am satisfied it is the path back to economic health and happiness."

* * *

A Period of Experimentation

Meanwhile, Congress, on its own, is doing things, also. It was months ago that Senator Black introduced his bill for a five-day, or 30-hour week, to put men to work. The President in one of his messages said that this is one of the things we must think about. The Senate has just gone ahead, for the Judiciary Committee has reported the bill out favorably with an amendment to the effect that it shall apply for two years as an emergency measure.

This is better than nothing, but the industrial situation created by the large use of labor-saving machinery makes a problem that will still exist in two years or in four. Our own view is that the benefits of labor-saving machinery must not be confined to capital, but must be extended to labor. However, since the average man is timid about all changes, however necessary, it is just as well, perhaps, to fix a period for experimentation.

* * *

Hire More Men to Cover Work!

This reminds of us things that are going on in some large business concerns, that seem utterly unpardonable in view of the unemployment crisis. We have in mind the fact that some business enterprises have more work than its employes can possibly do in the regular work day. Instead of putting some of the jobless to work, these are making their old force work as much as three and four hours at night after working all day. These get extra money, but few of them, worn to a rag by the long hours of labor, but would infinitely prefer to go along with their regular wage.

This extra work in the night is not to meet a momentary need; it has been going on a long time and the end is not in sight.

Are these business enterprises doing their duty to their country in overworking their employes rather than increasing their force and putting the jobless back to work?

* * *

Public Is Demanding Action

Meanwhile, Congress is moving rapidly toward the enactment of the legislation demanded by the President for securities control. The report from Washington that some investment houses are moving in droves on the capital to prevent such legislation, if possible, comes under the caption, "unimportant, if true." The public which has been so mercilessly fleeced by the misrepresentation of securities is demanding action to compel common honesty and decency in the marketing of securities in the future.

There is not a thing proposed in the measure, as to publicity, that any experienced businessman would not demand before purchasing; there is no disposition, we understand, merely to harass those selling securities since that is not only a legitimate but a necessary work; and the sole purpose is to protect the people by separating the sheep from the goats on the security market.

If there were a real danger that the investment house lobby now in Washington would prevent the passing of the bill, there is just one thing that effectively would send the lobbyists scurrying home and about their business—a full publicity of the identity of the investment houses that are fighting the measure. But that is unnecessary, since the law-makers are not in the least embarrassed by this opposition.

* * *

Speed Expected to Pass the Bill

It is to be hoped that Senators to whom the public looks for action will not permit a controversy over the committee jurisdiction on the bill to delay its passage. We do not pretend to know whether the measure originally should have been referred to the Judiciary Committee or the Committee on Banking and Currency. It was referred at first to the Judiciary Committee; on protest, it was then referred to the other committee where it now rests. Because the committe which now has it feels it was slighted in the first place it is said that it will be in no hurry to report it out.

On second thought, we are sure, no such attitude will be assumed. The public will not understand delay where speed is expected. Thoroughly aroused as public opinion is just now, there would be danger that delay would be interpreted by the public as hostility to the intent of the bill.

And that would put the Committee on Banking and Currency in a position of obstructing the purposes of the Roosevelt administration.

That, of course, is not the attitude of the committee, and we have no doubt that the "technical peccadillo," as Senator Ashurst calls it, will be forgotten and action taken without delay.
